Rock Fest Said Up To Municipality

A Hastings county official today said he had no comment, regarding a statement made yesterday by Quinte riding representative Honorable Dr. R. T. Potter in which he said councilors could pass bylaws outlawing the staging of rock festivals.

County Administrator Carl E. Bateman said he had no comment.

"We'll have something to say some time — but not now," he said.

Dr. Potter's reference to the rock festival planned for Madoc township in July was made during a conversation with the provincial treasurer in which the minister expressed a desire for placing of more responsibility on local governments.

The Quinte riding member said he agreed whole - heartedly, noting that local governments were unwilling to give up their autonomy — until they get a hot potato.

He said a case in point was the proposed rock festival at Madoc where local authorities were asking the province to bring in outlawing legislation.

"It is a local responsibility and counties can pass the restrictive bylaw if they want to," said Dr. Potter.

He suggested the action could be taken under the county's zoning authority.

The Quinte riding member said that although Hastings may not desire a rock festival they were wanted in other parts of the province.

He said there was no way that the province would ban rock festivals throughout Ontario.

"I am a great believer in local autonomy," he said, "but local municipalities must accept their responsibilities."

The proposed rock festival in Madoc township next summer became a certain issue at the March meeting of Hastings county council.

At that time county officials said the county could not prevent the holding of the festival but would advise the local municipality in drafting legislation with respect to health and safety regulations.

The Madoc festival, planned for a 200 acre farm near Queensboro, would be expected to attract up to 50,000 young people.

Thieves Active Last Night

Breakage of a no-draft window in a car owned by Jim Schier of 25 Sidney Street, gave a thief or thieves access to the vehicle, Mr. Schier reported his tape player was used at approximately $60. stolen from the car.

The incident occurred sometime last night.

And another school came under attention Thursday night. Moira Secondary was entered between Thursday night and Friday morning. Entry was gained when the culprit or culprits broke a window after gaining access to the roof.

A filing cabinet in a classroom was completely smashed, but nothing was reported missing.

No More Gravel for Sale

CANNIFTON (Staff) — In the past, Thurlow Township has sold excess gravel to residents requiring the stone for driveways and construction.

However, this offer will not be made this year, Murney Huffman, township road superintendent, told council Wednesday, "we need all the gravel we have."

Council yesterday announced they will call tenders for provision of gravel for 1971 requirements. Tenders are also being called for primary and surface treatment materials and multiplate culverts.

Private Commercial Colleges Object to Course Duplication

Private commercial colleges have accused the government of Ontario of "unnecessary duplication of courses already offered and successfully taught" in private schools.

Private business colleges have fulfilled and can continue to fulfil an important role within the educational framework of the province, says a brief presented Friday to the Commission on Post Secondary Education in Ontario.

The commission, set up in 1969 to advise the Ontario government on long term plans for post - secondary education, conducted public hearing in Belleville Friday.

It heard Mrs. O. A. Brown, president of the Ontario Region of the Association of Canadian Commercial Colleges, claim in a brief presentation for her organization, that Loyalist College operates in "open competition from every person concerned" with Ontario Business College.

Mrs. Brown is owner of OBC here.

"The attitude (Loyalist's) seems to be that for every student enrolled there is a government grant received. With unlimited funds for promotion and courses to be available, it is surprising that after three years of operation there could be only 28 graduates from business courses. The private business college in the area has that many graduates two or three times a year," says Mrs. Brown in her submission.

"We emphatically reject the costly duplication by government - supported acceptance of courses and facilities already available from the established and experienced independent business colleges, carrying on the private education in the free enterprise system," reads the brief. "We emphatically reject the principle of carrying on in less-than - filled buildings when we are at the same time contributing with our own tax dollars, asking no government grants at all, and meeting open competition from newly established government institutions.

Mrs. Brown quoted the department of education report that it cost $1,538 a year to educate a commercial student at a community college. At this rate, total cost of educating the 28 students who graduated from Loyalist in June 1970 was $112,068. In comparison, cost of educating the same students at OBC would have been $20,630. The savings, had the students been enrolled at OBC instead of Loyalist, would have been $91,418, she said.

"If this much saving could be generated by training these students in the free enterprise system . . . and this figure were to be multiplied by all the students in all community colleges in Ontario, as is done in some western provinces, the advance the tax saving would be astronomical," says the brief.

Mrs. Brown's submission asked that Manpower retrainees be allowed to take commercial and business courses at private schools, instead of only at the supported institutions. It also asked that students who choose to attend private business colleges be eligible for unemployment insurance benefits. Such students were eligible before 1966.

"One other factor to be considered is that the students move into the business economy faster from the private business colleges and therefore begin to assume their citizenship responsibilities as taxpayers earlier than those students attending the community colleges," the brief adds.

Private colleges operate 12 months a year, students are free to enrol at anytime, progress at their own speed and graduate at different times throughout the year, thus not flooding the job market at the same time each year, the brief notes.

The brief urges setting up of a committee to review the Trade School Regulations, under which private colleges operate, to bring the regulations into line with "what is needed today" in the private business college student and owner".

The committee should be composed it says, of an appointed group from the Association of Canadian Commercial Colleges, making up one-third of the committee membership. The second third of the representation should come from the business community and the final one-third from the government.

Orthodox Easter Ceremony

Representing the body of Christ, this bride was ceremoniously borne through the downtown section of Belleville by members of the Greek Orthodox Church. The Friday night religious ceremonies were held at St. Thomas' Anglican Church, with the procession wending its way down Bridge Street, north on Pinnacle, west on Campbell, south on Front Street and back up Bridge to St. Thomas'.

Student-centred Program Urged by Loyalist Faculty

A Loyalist College teacher has urged a student - centred teaching program for community colleges in a brief presented to the Commission on Post - Secondary Education in Ontario. The Commission sat in Kingston Friday to hear briefs submitted from people in the Trenton to Gananoque area.

Earl Naismith, head of Loyalist's faculty association called for a program that would allow a student to progress at his own speed, be tested when he is ready, and finish a course according to his own timetable, even if it means at a time other than the end of the standard school year. The program would enable those such as shift workers and nurses who can't fit into the standard school schedule, to complete a course at their own convenience.

The student centred plan would demand new and versatile teaching concepts from teachers and a re-appraisal of administration, said Mr. Naismith.

"Learner centred concepts are, in fact, remedial centered concepts," said Mr. Naismith in his brief. "The essence of it all is to guide a student, from where he is to where he wants to go at a rate according to his ability and desire."

In a second submission, Mr. Naismith proposed an educational philosophy for community colleges.

The basic vocational nature of these institutions must be anchored . . . to the centrality of personal worth, love and creativeness," he said. "We, in a democratic society must dedicate ourselves to the perpetuation of the ideals of the uniqueness and intrinsic worth of the individual, to acquire proper teacher qualifications." The submission read. "The brutish pragmatism of many not only insults the democratic principles we are trying to inculcate, but it breeds a paralyzing moral sterility in our students."

Employment News

During the past two weeks the local labor market has been plagued by adverse spring weather. This condition and other factors have resulted in a continuing limited local labor demand trend. Probably our local farmers are most severely affected as their spring planting is now two to three weeks behind schedule.

It is noted that other areas of employment have not reflected the anticipated improved labor picture. It is hoped that there will be a strong improvement in the local labor market in the immediate weeks ahead.

This improvement is imperative as we are now at that time of year when all persons responsible for or concerned with, the employment conditions, are confronted with the problem of work for those persons now unemployed and the coming student summer employment problem.

There has been much publicity in recent weeks concerning these two problems, and the various programs organized at governmental levels to assist in these two areas of employment.

It is drawn to the attention of all employers that, at the present time, there is an immediate supply of workers, both men and women, registered at the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre. These persons possess qualifications and potentials suitable for a wide range of occupations. They are available immediately for permanent, temporary or casual work. It will be realized that many of them are the family bread-winners.

Employers who have a labor requirement or who will have one in the immediate future are invited to contact this office at 352 Church Street, Belleville, or telephone 962-6581. In addition to the longer term employment do not forget requirements for such casual work as spring cleaning chores. Our local farmers are reminded that if they have a farm labor requirement M. Collins is the manpower counsellor to contact by telephoning him at 962-6581.

Augmenting the present labor supply will be the increased number of students who will be looking for temporary work this year. The influx of university undergraduates seeking temporary summer employment in the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre will no doubt commence this coming week. This will be shortly followed by the Community College and High School students looking for temporary summer jobs.

I might add that a great amount of time, effort and effort has been freely donated by responsible persons from other industries in the area and therefore begin to assume their citizenship responsibilities as taxpayers earlier than those students attending the community colleges," the brief adds.

Private colleges operate 12 months a year, students are free to enrol at anytime, progress at their own speed and graduate at different times throughout the year, thus not flooding the job market at the same time each year, the brief notes.

The brief urges setting up of a committee to review the Trade School Regulations, under which private colleges operate, to bring the regulations into line with "what is needed today" in the private business college student and owner".

The committee should be composed it says, of an appointed group from the Association of Canadian Commercial Colleges, making up one-third of the committee membership. The second third of the representation should come from the business community and the final one-third from the government.

Buffet Features Variety

Hotel's Story Begins

The Four Seasons Hotel, a unique concept in hotel operation, opened on the shores of the Bay of Quinte April 14.

This is the first time in Canada that a hotel and training school have been combined. The Bell Canada Technical Training Centre is the major tenant of the hotel.

At the time of the opening, about 35 students were registered in the Bell school. There are 24 instructors on staff. The school will have an average of 60 to 70 students in training when operations are fully under way, with the numbers peaking to 100 on occasion. The students will live in the hotel and attend classes in the ground floor east wing rooms especially designed for training purposes.

The hotel is built on an eight-acre site, surrounded by parkland. There is parking for 400 cars. It offers a year-round pool, sauna, tennis courts, badminton, shuffleboard, volleyball and horseshoe pitching.

Facilities include two dining rooms — the Bay Buffet and the Terrace Room and lounge — and three function rooms holding from 40 to 225 people which will be used for weddings, small conventions and meetings. There are 125 bedrooms.

Dancing Nightly

Dining to music will be one of the pleasures of patronizing the Four Seasons Hotel here.

A small dance floor has been incorporated into the Terrace Room and lounge. The Roger Witnall Trio will play during the dinner hour and into the evening until April 24. Management is hopeful that local musicians can be obtained to play after that date. There will be no dancing on Sundays.

Emphasis On Service

"We are trying to produce the finest restaurant between Toronto and Montreal," says Soren Sorenson, maitre d'hotel at the Four Seasons Hotel.

A great share of the responsibility for doing that will fall on the shoulders of Mr. Sorenson, who is responsible for all food service in the new hotel.

He is working with a staff new to the refinements of French service, and in many cases totally unfamiliar with any aspect of the restaurant business.

Within three months he expects to have his staff at a state "equal to the highest class of service that can be produced." But he will continue to preside personally over the flambes and other sleight-of-hand tricks that are the stock-in-trade of a European-trained waiter.

"We need a real hotel and restaurant school in Canada, because within a few years it will be hard to get a real, trained waiter," says Mr. Sorenson.

The European school is operated like a real restaurant with the students serving as staff and learning on the job. Mr. Sorenson himself travelled the apprenticeship route to his present position, taking five years to master the skills required.

"We started out learning how to squeeze a lemon, then went on to dishwashing in the kitchen and learning cold food preparation," he recounts. "We learned all aspects of food preparation and service, spending two days a week in the kitchen and three days in the dining room."

Mr. Sorenson began in his native Copenhagen, with time out in 1944 to go underground in connection with his wartime activities of helping fugitives from the Nazis to escape to Sweden. From 1946 to 1956 he worked in Stockholm in the biggest restaurant in Europe. It seated 2,800 people.

Mr. Sorenson calls himself an "outdoorsman" and spends every minute off work camping, fishing and scuba diving. He looks forward to exploring for sunken ships in the Bay of Quinte this summer. He is married, with four children, and will be moving his family to Belleville in June.

Bell Canada Technical Training Centre opened its doors for students two days before its official opening by Ontario Premier William Davis. Instruction in the eight classrooms began Monday for about 35 students. When in full operation the school will train about 5,000 students a year from telephone companies around the world.

First Guest Was Just Passing By

The Four Seasons, Belleville, registered its first guest before the new hotel opened for business either officially or unofficially.

He arrived Sunday night, April 4, a day before the buffet opened and the hotel began swinging into operation.

Charles H. Fowle, president of Halliday - Armstrong Ltd. of Mississauga happened to be driving into Belleville on Highway 2, saw the hotel building, and stopped on the chance that it was open.

The staff accommodated him. Mr. Fowle accepted the limitations of service available and his name became the first entry on the register. He left the next day to continue his business trip to the Napanee area.

offers easier maintenance, since furniture legs are a nuisance and get scratched so quickly. The red, moulded plywood desk chairs are a Canadian award-winning design by Mueller and Stewart.

ples. As some bedrooms double as study rooms, a tack board was needed. These were designed, each one covered in a different vibrant Marimekko fabric. Another break with tradition is the red bathroom vanity.

As the restaurants and bar are one large area, Mr. Kravis has broken this into three intimate areas by brick partitions in various heights. The brick used throughout the hotel is Blue Steel by Canada Brick, chosen because of its superb variations of color and texture, and the interesting irregularities of the bricks. Some transparency is achieved by the use of built in brick screens. A unique feature is that the axis of the partitions is turned at a 27 degree angle to the basic grid of the building to create spaces which have more interest and variety, since this entire area is for entertainment and relaxation.

In the Terrace Room there is a strong use of copper in the walls and ceiling of the grill area, combined with vibrant yellows, orange and deep variations of purple. Black textured Arborite has been used on the counters and service stands. Earth-toned carpeting complements the effect, together with bright red linens on the tables. The silver candle holders and service plates were designed especially for this room by Janis Kravis and his associates, who also acted as consultants for the uniforms throughout the hotel.

The Bay Buffet, which can also be used as a private function room, has tables of solid laminated oak, designed to be used without tablecloths, and the chairs are natural oak. More laminated oak is used in the Front Desk.

An interesting feature in the large banquet room is the use of carpeting on one wall, to the ceiling. This was done for acoustic reasons. Dramatic directional signs have been used throughout the hotel, and this is possibly one of the few times where directory signs have been attractive enough to double as wall decorations.

His other assignments have included the interiors of Avoca Towers — the twin apartment buildings which won an award for architectural excellence, the Three Small Rooms restaurant complex, the Richview Library in Etobicoke, the York Regional School of Nursing in Willowdale, the Athletic Club at the Inn on the Park and the University Centre at Carleton University.

Training School Was Established To Teach Skills

A temporary training school has been operating in Belleville for the last month.

As a result, this city will see trained waiters and waitresses for the first time with the opening of the Four Seasons Hotel.

The concept that serving food and drinks is a highly skilled craft is firmly rooted in the European tradition, but is only dimly realized, if at all, in North America.

Now, 74 local people are finding a new career opening up for them in the service skills as the Four Seasons management offers training to newly hired employees.

The teacher is Lino Ferreira, room service maitre d'hotel at the Inn on the Park in Toronto. Because the maitre d'hotel here is too busy organizing services for the opening, Mr. Ferreira was dispatched to take over the training of room service waiters, dining room waiters and cocktail and buffet waitresses.

And serving in the European way, they are learning, is far removed from hash slinging in the local beanery.

There is a proper way to walk, a special way to knock on doors, to open and close them, to replace ashtrays, to enter a room and to stand when placing drinks on a table. The bunny hop is out in formal dining rooms and lounges.

Mr. Ferreira, who learned his skills in Portugal, is a born teacher who uses praise and encouragement as his goads.

"They must learn to take pride in their work and their careers," he says of his trainees. "As a maitre d', where am I without my employees? I must be able to depend on them."

In Europe, it takes five years to train a waiter, and the one-month cram course here means practice and more practice. The results are encouraging and Mr. Ferreira has been pleased at the speed with which his trainees have grasped the rudiments of French service.

"Those who stick with it have a great future ahead of them, and the training they are getting here is free," he says.

The importance of correct service is emphasized by the maitre d's record at the Inn on the Park in Toronto. Since going there he has doubled the amount of room service.

"Don't forget to give a guest the most important thing," he cautions them. "It costs you nothing. Some people don't have it to give to you, so you must give it to them — a smile".

New Dish Created For Hotel

The coming of the Four Seasons Hotel to Belleville has added a new dish to the cuisine.

It will be available in the Terrace Room.

Belleville New Home For Family

The Four Seasons Hotel here is the first of its kind, and its manager is excited by the concept of a training school set up in a hotel atmosphere.

By our building this type of hotel, formerly lacking in Belleville, others in the business will be induced to upgrade their image," says C. A. C. Cornwall, executive manager of the Four Seasons.

Mr. Cornwall looks farther ahead to see Belleville becoming a convention city for moderate sized groups.

There are thousands of provincial conventions, drawing 200 to 300 people each, that we could attract to Belleville," he says. "Conventions benefit a city."

Although only recently arrived in the city, Mr. Cornwall is working with the Chamber of Commerce on a convention bureau to bring the medium-sized conventions here.

English born and educated, Mr. Cornwall graduated from a hotel school in Glasgow and worked with the British Transport Commission hotels for four years. He came to the Royal York in Toronto in 1963, handled hospitality and entertainment for the Ontario government during Centennial year and was executive assistant manager at the Inn in the Park for a year before being appointed manager of the new hotel here.

The Cornwalls are excited also by the architecture of the hotel — "bold and massive in theme, with its openness and use of natural materials," as Mr. Cornwall says.

"The local interest is marvelous," says Mr. Cornwall.

The hotel had 500 applications for about 100 jobs, many from people who had never been in the hotel business before.

"The speed they have picked up the business is amazing," says the manager.

Canadians have become much more sophisticated in the last ten years, he says, creating a demand for hotels of the type of the Four Seasons.

"The hotel business definitely will grow," says the manager. "All service industries are expanding. Generally, over the past few years, the hotel business has maintained its profit margin or increased it."

VIPs are the easiest to deal with, he says.

"To them, protocol is second nature, so they are amused if something goes wrong to break the routine." Mr. Cornwall observes

Over the years Mr. Cornwall has come in contact with presidents and prime ministers, and members of the English Royal Family. But the public mask is so firmly in place with VIPs that even those who serve them seldom get a glimpse of the real personality behind the public facade, he says.

The intricacies of French service are explained to these trainee waiters at the Four Seasons Hotel, Belleville, by Lion Ferreira from the Inn On The Park in Toronto. The waiters William Thoburn, Mike Kirby, James Cain, Dominick Lenteni and Peter Chandler are all from the Belleville area, and when the Terrace Dining Room opens these gentlemen, resplendent in new purple uniforms, will be well versed in this traditional manner of service. The seated 'guest' is maitre d' Soren of the Terrace Room.

Furniture A Canadian Success Story

Two young men who started a cabinet making shop 18 years ago now employ 250 people to make furniture and fixtures for restaurants, hospitals and hotels, including the Four Seasons.

Joe Indig and his partner Sam Frank, say they feel the expansion of Central Store Fixtures was triggered with their first big chance, the contract for fittings at the Four Seasons Hotel in Toronto, opened in 1961.

From then on their business grew steadily through the association with people met through the Four Seasons project combined with the quality of Central Store workmanship. The company has never been interested in "one shot deals," but has always been more concerned with satisfied people who come back to them over and over again.

The Central Store operation is completely diversified and can produce anything from 100 custom designed suites of French Provincial furniture to the complete interior of a small, intimate restaurant, up to the installation for hospitals and hotels. The company did all the furniture for the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal, work for York University and Guelph Library, heralded by many as the most modern library in Canada.

Although Joe Indig has never lost his knack for cabinet making, carpentry and upholstery, he now has no time to do any work for his own home, and pays one of his workmen to do jobs for him. His hobby is travelling, but most of his time is devoted to his business which is, he says, his pride and joy.

The furniture and fittings for Four Seasons, Belleville, include all the built-in bedroom furniture, special units designed by Janis Kravis. The headboards are combined with small night tables and the writing desk, luggage rack, television stand and drawer units are also combined. This unit is cantilevered, which eliminates legs on the floor, making for easier cleaning of the rooms.

Central Store also makes the lobby furniture and registration desk, all the tables and chairs in the dining room, buffet room and bar. It did all the copper work in the Terrace Room and the wine rack. The kitchen was built by Crown Steel in association with Central Store.

All the furniture and fittings were built in three months.

Mueller Directs Cuisine

Herbert Mueller, executive chef of the Four Seasons Hotel, Belleville, is returning to Belleville after spending two years at the Inn on the Park in Toronto under the tutelage of the Inn executive Georges Chaignet. He experienced full food creativity while at the Inn and is confident that the menus and facilities offered by the Four Seasons Hotel Belleville are on a par with some of the finest hotels in Montreal and Toronto. "This hotel will build its reputation on the menu" he states.

Chef Mueller came to Canada from Germany in 1953. He was born in Frankfurt and it was there he served his four-year apprenticeship before going to hotel school in Weinheim,"Germany. He has worked in some of the finest restaurants in Italy, Switzerland and in Germany.

On arrival from Germany Mr. Mueller settled first in Toronto, and then moved to Bermuda where he worked at the Elbow Beach Club, and was also head chef at the Empire Club.

He was attracted to Belleville originally by the water and tranquility, and on his recent return was overwhelmed by the expressions of welcome from people who remembered him. In 1964 he was one of two chefs who worked together on a TV program for CKWS-TV in Kingston. The show ran for six months and was very popular, receiving mail from all over the Channel-11 viewing area.

Herb Mueller finds that for him some relaxation is essential, his is a very demanding profession, so he unwinds with sports activity. He has a cottage on Hay Bay where he enjoys fishing and hunting but for the relaxation not the kill. Time permitting he looks forward to perhaps coaching young people in soccer or hockey.

Regardless of how much you know, as a chef" he comments, "there is always something new to learn and create", and at the Four Seasons Hotel, Belleville, his culinary creativity will become well known.

Rebels Docile At End

KINGSTON (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson, who spent four hours inside Kingston penitentiary Sunday while the prisoner rebellion was in its final stages, later described the surrender as "quite orderly."

"It ended with prisoners coming out in small groups with the hostages being released one by one.

"They simply came out and were checked by guards who asked what they were carrying."

Mr. Benson, who normally spends his weekends at Kingston, his home riding, entered the prison by car Sunday afternoon some time after the arrival from Ottawa by helicopter of Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer.

He was not at the prison in an official capacity, he said, but Friday, when he was in Ottawa functioning as acting prime minister in the absence of Prime Minister Trudeau and External Affairs Minister Sharp, he kept in constant touch with Mr. Goyer by telephone.

He said Sunday that in the final stages inside the prison both convicts and hostages were calm and quiet.

"The hostages appeared fine. They weren't physically hurt," he said.

"There was nothing unusual about the appearance of either the hostages or the prisoners. They weren't dirty and unshaven with torn uniforms or anything like that.

Mr. Benson declined to comment on how the release of the hostages and surrender of the prisoners was effected.

"Time's up!"

Many GIs Use Heroin

SAIGON (AP) — Two U.S. congressmen said today that heroin addiction among American troops in Vietnam is of epidemic proportions.

They blamed corrupt Vietnamese officials for part of the problem and said the ready availability of drugs makes the situation almost impossible for the U.S. command to control.

The two congressmen are Representative Morgan Murphy (Dem., Ill.) and Representative Robert Steele (Rep. Conn.). The House of Representatives foreign affairs committee sent them to Southeast Asia to look into the drug problem. They spent three days in Vietnam, visited Laos and attended a narcotics conference in Bangkok.

Steele said figures provided them by the U.S. command indicated that 10 to 15 per cent of the American troops in Vietnam —about 30,000 to 45,000 men— are using high-grade heroin which is between 94 and 97 per cent pure.

Guards Freed, Revolt Is Over

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — After 92 hours of anarchy the authorities have again taken control of Kingston penitentiary, but it's not the same institution they were driven from Wednesday night when 500 prisoners rebelled.

The prison's physical plant is a shambles, one convict is dead, a second critically injured, 10 others hurt less seriously, and most of the prisoners moved to other institutions since their surrender early Sunday.

He said Ensor suffered multiple head injuries and severe lacerations of the right leg. His body, still clad in prison uniform, was found lying face-up in a heap of rubble.

Dr. Patterson said Ensor appeared to have died Saturday night or early Sunday.

The remaining five guards held as hostages by the prisoners were released unharmed.

City police, RCMP and penitentiary service officials already have begun their investigation into the cause of the uprising and into the possibility of laying charges in the slaying and other violence.

Official word on what action will be taken, possibly a federal government inquiry, will have to come from Ottawa, where Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer promised a statement today in the Commons.

Prison authorities here have imposed a news blackout, refusing to disclose how the surrender was effected.

Speculation was that a majority of the prisoners had been in favor of surrender once assured the government was considering their complaints. But a fight or fights may have erupted when a militant minority demanded the rebellion continue.

Some of the injured may have been persons the prisoners termed "undesirables," trusties, informers and sex deviates. A prisoners' committee earlier had assured prison officials that these men were protected from convicts who might have wanted to hurt them.

Kingston Coroner Dr. W. Stuart Patterson was called to the prison to examine the body of the dead prisoner. He said in an interview later the prisoner apparently had been killed by a blow to the head. He had been dead since about 6 a.m. Sunday.

Syd Roberts, information officer for the solicitor-general's department, said the death and injury had occurred in the main cell block controlled by the prisoners and that neither prison guards nor Canadian Forces troops had been involved.

A statement from Mr. Goyer's office said the five guards held hostage since 10:30 p.m. Wednesday were released "in an orderly fashion without any concession having been made to the inmates by penitentiary authorities."

The five guards—a sixth had been released Friday as a "sign of good faith"—were whisked away with their immediate families to undisclosed destinations.

They were:

Senior keeper Edward Barrett, 51; Joseph Flynn, 48, Douglas Dale, 41; Karry Bushell, 26; all of Kingston; and Joseph Valliere, 47, of Napanee, Ont. Terrence Decker, 27, of Amherstview, Ont., was released Friday.

Three other guards seized during the initial hours of the rebellion were released Thursday.

The prisoners were being transferred in stages by military and civilian buses to other federal prisons in Ontario. A total of 290 had been transferred by late Sunday night. That left about 350 inside, including about 140 who had remained in custody throughout the rebellion.

One of the injured prisoners was taken to Kingston General Hospital in critical condition with unspecified injuries. The others were treated at the hospital at Canadian Forces Base Kingston. None of those injured was identified.

Mile-wide No Man's Land Surrounds Millhaven Pen

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — From a point on the highway 17 miles west of here one can see a guarded wire gate and, in the distance, the top of a guard tower.

Between the gate and the tower is a one-mile stretch of barren no-man's land stripped of trees and shrubs.

The new prison, situated amid rolling hills one mile from the shore of Lake Ontario, boasts the very latest in penal equipment.

The electronic systems, including intercoms, television and radio outlets raised feaps among the Kingston prisoners that the Millhaven cells have been electronically bugged. They circulated rumors of glass-ceiled cells and televised toilets.

Millhaven, first penitentiary of its type in Canada, was designed to prevent the type of disturbance which wracked Kingston penitentiary for four days.

Many observers believed last week's riot stemmed from a sense of unease and fear among the prisoners regarding what was in store for them at Millhaven. The initial transfer to Millhaven of about a dozen prisoners was made Wednesday shortly before the riot.

Besides a maximum- and minimum-security satellite at Millhaven, plans also call for eventual construction of a medical-psychiatric centre and a classification building.

Millhaven was designed to accommodate a maximum of 428 prisoners. Only the industrial shops were designed for future expansion to ensure an unlimited number of services for prisoners.

A. J. MacLeod, former commissioner of penitentiaries, had to defend Millhaven's design before a special joint parliamentary committee after various organizations labelled it unnecessarily restrictive. At one point construction was delayed while the design was debated.

Prisoners at Millhaven will find it virtually impossible to take over either the main or three minor security-controlled centres. Each one is accessible only through a 225-foot tunnel from outside the prison.

Veterans Urge Peace

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Thousands of Vietnam veterans were converging on Washington today for the start of a prolonged anti-war demonstration that officials hope will reflect peacefully their own new-look relaxed attitude.

However, there already were hints that the veterans and families of men killed, captured or missing in Indochina might defy a court injunction banning them from camping on the grounds of the Washington Monument.

Informed sources said groups of young lawyers were preparing to act as legal observers in case police move in on demonstrators who pitch their tents despite the injunction.

Pakistani Troops Try to Seal Border

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Pakistani troops were reported today to be pressing ahead with a major offensive to seal East Pakistan's borders.

An eyewitness account from the Indian frontier said whole villages had been set ablaze by advancing forces apparently destroying everything in their path.

As giant clouds of smoke were seen rising from several areas in the eastern part of the breakaway province Sunday— including around the towns of Comilla and Brahmanbaria—Indian reports put the total number of refugees who had fled across the border into India at 185,000.

Reuter correspondent Ram Suresh, reporting from Agartala, capital of the Indian territory of Tripura, said Pakistani air force planes had gone into action over the eastern sector. "I could hear bombs and artillery shells bursting and see flashes and palls of smoke," he added.

Suresh quoted Indian frontier security forces as saying the Pakistani army now controls practically the entire eastern sector border area of the province. Press Trust of India news agency reports said the West Pakistanis either controlled or were engaged in major battles for the main towns in the western secor.

An official Radio Pakistan broadcast said the army had achieved further successes in securing towns on the east and west borders of East Pakistan.

An army column had pushed east to Brahamberia and Akhaura railway station on the Tripura frontier while troops in the west had advanced from Chuadanga to secure the border town of Mcherpur, the radio said.

Mcherpur, only three miles from the border of West Bengal, is near the village of Baidyanbaha, where the Bangla Desh (Bengali nation) independence ceremony was held two days ago.

PTI, quoting reports reaching the Indian border town of Krishnagar, said the Pakistani army hit Mcherpur after breaking off its ground attack against Chaudanga, 17 miles to the southeast.

The agency said 60 truckloads of Pakistani soldiers raced into Mcherpur, shooting civilians and burning villages on their way from Chauganga.

The Krisnagar reports said Pakistani planes dropped napalm bombs on Chaudanga and added that two American-built Sabre jets rocketed and strafed Mcherpur before the troops attacked.

Refugees from Mcherpur are streaming into West Bengal. K. K. Moitra, state minister for food and dairy development, told a news conference in New Delhi Sunday night that nearly 100,000 people had fled into West Bengal alone since the army began its crackdown against followers of East Pakistan secessionist leader Sheik Mujibur Rahman March 25.

On the other side of the strife-torn provinces, about 25,000 refugees have crossed into Tripura, All-India radio said.

Tad After Tadpoles

No matter that an afternoon's hunt proved fruitless, Brian Perry, 10, of 365 Victoria Avenue, had a lot of fun Saturday wading through the bullrushes along Herchimer Avenue in search of pollywogs or anything else that moved. All for science, but "I haven't caught anything yet," commented the tad-hunter.

Parents Said Reason

Few Marchers in Picton Protest Parade

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A weekend protest march expected to involve several hundred students charging lack of recreation in Picton and no job opportunities in Prince Edward, drew fewer than 40 participants Saturday afternoon.

Organizer Randy Morris, a 17-year-old grade 12 student at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute said that parental intervention stopped many teens from joining the march.

"I was informed by several persons after the march that they wanted to take part but couldn't," he remarked referring to restrictions imposed by parents. Mr. Morris declared that this project is "still all go" despite Saturday's small turnout and added that student delegations will appear before town and county councils next month.

He stated that originally he felt "very disappointed by the limited student support of the protest march but later changed his view. "I grew more optimistic when I considered how many did sign to change their minds about what we would like to do and how we would like to do it."

Mr. Morris stressed that a large number of teens were expected to join the march and parents and police seemed unsure of what to expect. He felt that for this reason parents, in many cases, refused to allow teens to participate. The march organizer observed that there were "many, many people" in Picton Saturday afternoon to watch the march proceed down Main Street. "There were a few hecklers but I know our signs were read," commented Mr. Morris.

The students carried placards urging recreation for teens and emphasizing that jobs are needed for student graduates. The signs encouraged adult assistance to rectify the alleged problems triggering the march. A large purple van bearing the name Pegasus carried a banner reading "Industry and Recreation", it was followed by the small student group which paraded from the county buildings to the cenotaph on Main Street.

Students joining the march assembled in a parking lot adjacent to the county buildings and were met at 2 p.m. by Picton police chief George Pitt. Although one or two marchers requested a brief delay which would allow latecomers to join the march, chief Pitt insisted that it leave on time. He pointed out that a police escort would be required for a funeral shortly after the march and refused to wait past the specified deadline.

The students, variously dressed in blue jeans, marched quietly through Main treet carrying their placards high. Occasionally orders to "spread out" were given from the leaders as they hastened a brisk pace. Shoppers stopped to watch the demonstration, many of them puzzled by what was happening. One woman concluded that it was "just heavy traffic" when she saw cars halted for the march.A second passer-by observing the teens as they lettered their signs, asked whose wedding was being held. Several bystanders who had known in advance of the protest march suggested slogans of their own for the student placards. Among them were "Get a haircut" and "Ambition and Common Sense."

Mr. Morris seemed completely undisturbed by heckler's remarks as he talked of the march yesterday. He said that it was a small but orderly group that had joined in "a tidy little march." He suggested that it had been "a much neater affair" than a march featuring several hundred students. "This goes over better with the adults," he said speaking of the smaller participating group.

Although a planned delegation will address town and county councils, the question of banning rock festivals in Prince Edward will not be a prime complaint, Mr. Morris said that professors did feel that council should not say "no" to a festival but this does not mean that students necessarily want to see one. He said that recreation facilities and job opportunities will be topics for discussion with council but noted that he could not elaborate on what is specifically desired. "We can't do it alone; we must work together. Youth, I've been told, wants to do it themselves, but adult experience and backing is necessary," emphasized Mr. Morris.

Prince Edward Protest

Only 40 young people turned out Saturday for the march of students to protest lack of jobs and recreational facilities in Picton. The parade went on anyway as "parental intervention" was blamed for the small turnout.

IN MEMORIAM

McPHERSON — In memory of my dear husband, Cleveland McPherson, who passed away April 19, 1970.

Your presence I miss, your memory I treasure,
But in my heart you will live on forever,
—Ever remembered by wife Ellen.

BROWN, Arthur R. — Died April 19, 1970, in memory of dad and Grandpa.

To sit with him and walk a while,
To be together in the same old way,
Would be our dearest wish today.
—Remembered every day by daughter Jacqueline, son-in-law and grandchildren Allison and Graham Sunday, Trenton.

McPHERSON — In loving memory of our dear father Clarence McPherson who passed away April 19th, 1970.

After the winter comes the spring
To show us again that is ever-lasting.

There is always renewal divinely planned
Flowerbright perfect, the work of God's hand,
And just like the seasons that come and go,
When the flowers of spring lay buried in the snow,
God sends to the heart in its winter of sadness,
A spring time awakening of new gladness,
And loved ones who sleep on a night season of death,
Will, yet be welcomed by God's life-giving breath
—Lovingly remembered by daughters Emily, Roslyn Blanche, sons Robert and Clarence Jr.

BROWN — In loving memory of a dear husband, father, grandfather, Arthur R. Brown who passed away April 19, 1970. Sorrowfully remembered.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by wife Florence and family.

ANDOLSEK — In loving memory of a dear friend Mrs. Josephine Andolsek who passed away April 19, 1970.

More and more each day we miss her,
Friendly and kind she seemed to be,
But the little know the sorrow,
That lies deep in our hearts concealed.
—Sadly missed by Lawrence and Marilyn Foster.

Cow Delivers Six Calves

A whiteface hereford cow last night gave birth to six calves — three male and three female — on the farm of A. Kent Ford, Rollin. This was her first "litter" and none of the calves survived.

The cow was bred to a bull known for siring multiple births, but this was an all-time high. The calves were delivered about three weeks before term.

THE DRUG OF GREATEST ABUSE
For millions of people, use of a very common, readily available drug can mean going insane or can cause early death unless they completely and forever abstain from its use. The drug is alcohol and the disease is alcoholism. For most people it is a minor problem, but for these others their body cannot cope with it.
Alcohol can also react with many other common prescription drugs to produce very severe side effects. If you are cautioned by your doctor not to drink with a medicine, this could be the reason and you should not disregard this advice.
YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs.

The Air Cadet movement in Canada is 30 years old this week and 375 Air Cadet Squadrons will mark the anniversary as they observe National Air Cadet Week from April 18 to 24.

The main purpose of Air Cadet Week is to familiarize the public with the league's work in providing aviation and citizenship training for more than 30,000 cadets across Canada.

Spearfishermen Charged

Two Break-ins in County

PICTON (Staff) — The theft of two shotguns was reported following a weekend break-in at a Big Island cottage owned by Thomas Jennings, Finch Ave., Toronto.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said that the break-in was discovered Saturday morning by cottage caretaker Arthur Allison. Entry to the cottage was gained by forcing open a door on the south side of the building. A 12-gauge Browning - Belgium and a 20-gauge Belgium - American shotgun were reported missing.

A second break-in was reported Saturday morning at a Glenora Rd. barber shop operated by G. McKenna. The barber shop, located in the McKenna home was entered through a window broken by a person or persons who removed a money box sitting on a table inside. About $100 was taken. East-West Exchange Film taken during the visit of western table-tennis players to Communist China's emphasis on both academic training and manual labor work, in factories and in the fields.

Chinese culture may be different from that of the western world, but from what little we know and have seen on television the Chinese appear to be an extremely industrious and purposeful people. We are aware of course of the outstanding contribution which Chinese immigrants have made to our own society and if we are at odds with the political beliefs of their countrymen in the huge Asian land mass and with the ideologies advanced by the Peking government, we nevertheless have to admire their disciplined way of life, their national pride, their growing efficiency in a scientific and technological world and their personal and collective zeal.

However, there are something like 700 million people in China and it is inconceivable that such an enormous aggregation is devoid of social problems. It would be interesting, in these days of renewed links between China and the west, if newsmen could probe such matters.

The troubles of a few years ago, the rampage of the Red Guards and what might be termed the mini-revolution of that time, produced some ugly incidents. We recall the open hostility displayed toward British and Soviet embassy personnel, those humiliating scenes at airports as westerners, both men and women, and including Russians, were jostled, bruised, humiliated and in some instances molested. We recall too the detention of Reuters correspondent Anthony Gray. Such an image of China is in sharp contrast with our earlier assessment above. The Chinese then are nothing if not human, and does not our own society also afford ample evidence of the ambivalent character of human nature?

Now, however, there are these signs of an improvement in Chinese attitudes toward the West. But if they are a disciplined and industrious people, as we have suggested, do their sociological problems parallel our own? What about unemployment? And crime?

Or is there work for all, and an environment that does not encourage crime? What about wages and living conditions generally? On the political side, is there anything approaching political dissent — or is Chairman Mao unquestionably pre-eminent? What about labor camps, for political prisoners that is? These are the kind of questions that come to mind. Maybe in the days ahead some of them will be answered.

Prison Debacle

We hope prison and Government authorities will read, mark and inwardly digest the words of an unnamed Kingston penitentiary guard who blames "do-gooders . . . well-meaning reformers and civil rights people" for the current debacle in the institution. And pay attention also when he reminds us that "these guys are not girl scouts," but rather murderers, thieves, burglars and rapists. According to this guard, it has been an accepted thing, the guards knew it was coming, sooner or later, because it was common knowledge that the prison was to be closed, and "they wanted to tear the place down one way or other." It is not an encouraging thing to observe prison guards being held hostages while representatives of the inmates (those self-same murderers, thieves, burglars and rapists) bargain with the authorities, including Professor Desmond Morton of the University of Toronto law school, two Toronto lawyers and a newspaper columnist virtually summoned to Kingston by the prisoners. This sort of thing must not be allowed to happen again.

Imagination!

You know the tourist signs dotted around this area, that speak of the highlands and lowlings and land of lakes and all that, and you wonder at their placement, usually in some entirely inappropriate spot miles from anything approaching a highland or a lake. But there is one on Highway 2 near Desoronto which goes into the lake bit — and yes indeed the countryside all around is awash, not with any genuine lake, but with spring floods . . . !

He Lived

Parents of children living in high-rise apartment buildings should take warning from the mishap which recently befell a 21-month old youngster in Toronto. Gary O'Neill fell from an eighth-storey apartment window in Scarborough and suffered severe, internal injuries. Despite these he is reported making progress in the Sick Children's Hospital.

A Great River Breathes Again

UK's Successful Fight Against Thames Pollution

Hal Kirkland in the Almonte Gazette

Some months ago a news despatch from London, England, stated that they were experiencing pollution in the Thames river. This was startling news. Moreover, the writer suggested that they had the problem licked which seemed miraculous when you consider that ten years earlier the river literally stank.

Shortly after reading the news item this writer was in London and decided to do a little investigating on his own to see if all this was really true. So one day I took a walk along the Thames from the Monument up to Westminster Bridge a distance of two miles or more, with the idea of talking to anyone loitering or working at the piers and docks along the river.

On this day the river was choppy and the colour of pewter. To me it looked positively dirty. But the Thames is a tidal river and also a muddy river, so it never has been and never will be a clear sparkling stream. In fact, on that day the Thames was a tolerably clean river, cleaner than it had been for 60 years. There are seven million people living in Greater London and the Thames flows through the centre of the metropolis. So to clean up that river is a remarkable feat. There are 500 miles of main sewers and many thousand miles of smaller sewers in London.

What did the people at the docks and piers think of their river now? They were happy. They knew the river was cleaner now because it was common knowledge that the fish were again living all along the river. For a long time the history of the pollution of the Thames has been mirrored in the fish life of the river. There was the gentleman I spoke to near Cleopatra's Needle who gave me a lecture on the river. I had made the remark that the river looked dirty.

"Not really dirty," he replied. "You know the Thames is a muddy river. The river is in very good shape now and the Department of Public Health say it is getting better. But we have had trouble with pollution in this river before: more than 500 years ago Parliament passed on act prohibiting pollution of rivers, ditches and water - courses. Did you know that about 100 years ago the Thames was so bad that both Houses of Parliament had to be adjourned because of the stench. We got that cleaned up and it was good until the First War after which it got worse. Now we are bringing it back again, although it is costing a lot of money. But I read that the salmon were back in the river. That proves that a polluted river can be cleaned up."

One Pier Master was happy about the condition of the river and he could foresee that in a year's time the river would be alive with small pleasure craft every summer. He said they were already planning a grand regatta with races for all classes of boats. The river was again becoming a place for enjoyment and recreation. But the best news of all was that he had heard that a trout had been caught up at the Chelsea Bridge at Battersea. "A few years ago," he said, "the only fish that could live in the river was an eel."

At a dock near Charing Cross Pier an excursion boat was tied up. There was one man on the dock who happened to be the owner of the boat. He had nothing to do but talk to me.

"How's business?" I asked.

"It's too early to say. Ask me next month."

"How is the river this year?"

"Right now the river is very good. I make my living on the river, mostly trips down to the Tower of London and back. If the river smells it's certainly not good for my business. But I think it's going to be alright this summer. I was born on the river, farther up, and I've been on the river ever since. When I was a boy I fished in the river."

He took my arm. "I want to show you something," he said, and led me to another dock a few yards away. It was a small dock and there was an assortment of debris and driftwood floating on the water.

"You know," he continued, "only a year or two ago there were hundreds of dace floating on the surface in this dock, most of them dead, the others dying, gasping for air. They couldn't get oxygen in the river water. Now I never see any dead dace, so they are getting oxygen and can live. Isn't it great that the fish are back in the river. When I was a boy we fished every day in the summer and caught lots of dace."

There must be a moral or lesson here somewhere. Everybody ends up talking about fish.

It should not be difficult for us to pick up some valuable lessons from the remarkable improvement in the Thames. Following are excerpts from an article in the November, 1970, issue of Science Journal, 40 Bowling Green Lane, London, E.C.1.

"In 1957 a survey showed no proof of fish being caught below Richmond, a few far down as Gravesend. Now fishes have returned to the river in numbers.

"Today the lower Thames is markedly cleaner. Dissolved oxygen is present at all times of the year and there is no disgusting smell now.

"Considering that the Metropolitan Thames was virtually lifeless from 1850 onwards this improvement in the last dozen years is dramatic. The causes of this remarkable reversal can be summarized in the phrase pollution control.

"It shows that aquatic pollution can be overcome in a relatively short time. It seems that the two important factors in control of pollution are a large purse and, above all, the determination to improve conditions. In the recovery of the lower Thames we have surely a lodestar which could be followed by pollution control authorities the world over."

Will the aldermen of Belleville give their time to the public at the rate of $3 a meeting? It is known that some members of the city council have continued to meditate upon this question and are convinced that they should receive remuneration. They may have something up their sleeves for tonight's session, as some consideration was given the matter last Thursday. Two weeks ago, after a special caucus, the council would not favor the recommendation for a allowance of $3 per meeting, come before the council.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

April 19, 1971 . . .

Fire raged through downtown Toronto causing an estimated $15 million damage 67 years ago today—in 1904. The worst fire in the city's history broke out shortly after 8 p.m. on a windy spring night. At first it looked like an ordinary fire in a warehouse but the wind scattered burning brands and within three hours almost the entire wholesale area of the city was ablaze. When the wind suddenly changed direction the flames were brought under control.

German Researcher's Claim

Oxygen Intake from Jogging Discourages Cancer

German Features

BONN — Back in 1923 Nobel prize winner Otto Warburg suggested that lack of oxygen might cause healthy body cells to degenerate into cancerous cells. Now a west German sports doctor believes he has found evidence to support the theory.

Dr. Ernst van Aaken from Waldniel in west Germany says a copious supply of oxygen can prevent cancer in human beings, and that the habit of taking long, easy going jogs through the countryside can provide the oxygen needed.

To back up his theory, Dr. van Aaken tested two groups of persons: 454 members of a German jogging club between the ages of 40 and 50, and an equal number of non-jogging patients of a country medical practice.

During a period of six years only four cases of cancer cropped up in the jogging group (.89 per cent) while 17 people in the other group came down with cancer in the same period (3.4 per cent).

Of the 17 cancer sufferers in the latter group four died, while the four joggers who had been afflicted with the disease recovered and resumed their daily running.

On the basis of these results, Dr. van Aaken calculated that non-joggers are seven times more subject to cancer than their jogging counterparts in the same age group.

Dr. van Aaken stresses that the athletes were not selected for their healthy constitutions. On the contrary, before they started their training they were attacked by sickness just as frequently as the other test group.

The West German doctor believes that constant physical training such as long distance running, continuous swimming, rowing, bicycling and skiing guarantee optimal intake of oxygen.

He recommends life-long jogging into old age as an effective preventive measure against cancer. This means, he says, running 3 to 5 miles daily at an easy pace with a pulse rate of 130 at the highest.

Van Aaken strictly rejects strenuous "interval training" such as practised by many top athletes. He says that this kind of activity can result in the opposite effect desired: lack of oxygen for the body.

HEIDELBERG — Europe's largest medical research institute the German Cancer Research Centre is near completion. Basic construction is finished and scientists will begin occupying the centre's 25 separate institutes later this year.

The gigantic cancer centre, which encompasses 6.16 million cubic feet of interior space, will not only be a superlative in European terms: it will be among the world's largest scientific complexes. About 300 German and foreign cancer experts will work at the Heidelberg facility.

The centre will have its own big computer, a cyclotron, numerous irradiation instruments and 80,000 test animals, mostly rats, mice and rabbits.

Co-operation with other prominent worldwide cancer research institutes especially with its French counterpart in Lyon, is planned. Nominal work was begun by the Heidelberg centre six years ago and 350 scientists and other employees are already on the payroll.

KINGSTON (CP) — The thunderous echo of marching soldiers' boots appears to have sounded the death-knell for Kingston penitentiary as a major federal penal institution.

The bloody rebellion that gripped the prison for most of last week has destroyed its capacity to function as a receptacle for the worst of the nation's underworld.

In its day, Kingston was the roughest and toughest penitentiary west of Montreal's St. Vincent de Paul. It was the Canadian Alcatraz—tolerated by the solid citizen, hated and feared by the criminal.

The four-day revolt by 500 prisoners brought in 250 Canadian Forces troops. It left one convict dead and 11 injured—victims of the wrath of their cellmates. Stoolies, traitors and sex deviates—that's the rumble making the rounds today on the reason for the final acts of violence.

The main cellblock, which the prisoners held for four days by using captured guards as hostages, is a concrete catastrophe. Th convicts tore it apart, bar by bar, cell by cell, window by window.

Damage estimates run as high as $1 million.

The federal government had planned to close Kingston geuly during the next four months by moving its residents 17 miles down the road to Millhaven, a sophisticated new security institution.

The prisoners closed it in four days. It's doubtful the federal government will foot the bill for repairing a cellblock that will see only four months' use.

Millhaven has the facilities—it lacks only the trained staff. There's plenty of that at Kingston. And Millhaven is where they took 187 of the 294 inmates they cleared out of Kingston Sunday.

In a sense, Kingston is much more than a penal institution. It's a Canadian institution dating back 140 years with all the nation's faults, stupidities, genius and virtue built into it.

As architecture, it is monstrous, a concrete abomination squatting behind 25-foot-high battlesh-grey walls on some of the finest lakefront property in an otherwise-charming Ontario city.

It is gloomy, foreboding. The sight of it depresses and bores, but behind those walls some of the most imaginative concepts of penal reform the country has experienced were dreamed up by honest, dedicated men.

And also some of the most abysmal atrocities in the history of Canadian penology.

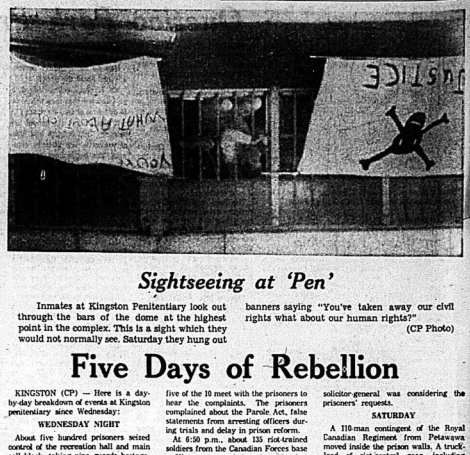
Assistant warden Ed Babcock writes in his history of Kingston penitentiary, harking back to the 1840s:

"The first cellblock contained about 150 cells, each of which measured eight feet, four inches in length and only 30 inches in width.

"The convicts' duties were abhorrent. They had to preserve unbroken silence. They were not allowed to exchange a 'word with one another, de look, laugh, wink, nod or gesticulate to each other.' Some were only eight years old.

The penalty: flogging.

This was mid-Victoria Canada and a humanitarian social concepts slowly progressed the society inside the walls followed suit, although always lagging.



In the 1840s, children were subject to the same rules and penalties as adults. Mr. Babcock notes.

"Convict Peter Charbonneau committed May 4, 1845, for seven years when he was ten years of age. Charbonneau's offences were of the most trifling nature—staring, winking and laughing.

"He was stripped of his shirt publicly and lashed 57 times in the presence of the whole convict population."

Mr. Babcock also records the case Alex LaFleur, 11, "who, on Christmas Eve, 1894, was given 12 strokes of rawhide for talking French."

The country grew up and so did Kingston, but whether the penitentiary kept step with the nation has been the subject of continuing debate since confederation.

Prisoners Cleared From Building

in shifts of 40 to 50 for perimeter guard duty inside the prison, were withdrawn although some remained available for duty "at the discretion of prison authorities."

The army rifles remained silent throughout. Two shots were fired by prison guards as warnings Thursday when prisoners tried to break through into a kitchen.

During the four days the prisoners were supplied with meals of soup or sandwiches and milk and coffee.

There was no indication what role in the surrender was played by a five-man citizens' group demanded by the prisoners which had been negotiating with them since Thursday. No member of the group was available for comment Sunday.

Immediately after the main cell block was cleared, guards moved past a barricade of broken furniture and shredded mattresses and through piles of rubbish to check the cells. Reporters were refused permission to tour the cell block or even go within the main walls.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson, who had been spending the weekend at his home here, spent about four hours within the walls as the prisoners were leaving the cell block.

"They simply came out in small groups and were checked —asked what they were carrying—and sent to another area."

Mr. Benson said the hostages, released one by one, "appeared fine."

Also present during the transfer of prisoners, which began at 7 a.m., was Mr. Goyer, flown to the prison by helicopter. He returned to Ottawa later without speaking to reporters.

It was generally accepted that the riot was caused by prisoners' fears they would be under electronic surveillance at a new prison to which they were to have been transferred gradually this year.

A group of about a dozen prisoners was transferred to the new Millhaven penitentiary, about 17 miles west of here early Wednesday, the day the rebellion erupted.

John Blackett, 24, released on parole Thursday, said in an interview Sunday night on the CBC television program Weekend that the riot began after a guard ordered a prisoner to work in his shirt.

The prisoner refused, the guard was grabbed and the rebellion was on.

Mr. Blackett said the underlying reason for the outbreak was tension among the convicts over the imminent move to Millhaven.

The prisoners feared they would be under constant surveillance at Millhaven and "wouldn't be able to go to the toilet" without cameras being held on them.

But prisoners' talks with the citizens' group also dealt with conditions at Kingston and the general issue of penal reform.

During the 92 hours the prisoners held the main cell block, no formal statement of their demands was made public. Their grievances were transmitted to Mr. Goyer by two members of the citizens' group who flew to Ottawa Friday.

On Saturday, the only major development was the arrival of troop reinforcements from Canadian Forces Base Petawawa, who took up stand-by duty at the Kingston base. At the same time, other troops of the Royal Canadian Regiment flown in Thursday entered the prison to take up perimeter guard duty.

A truckload of riot shields, three-foot oak batons, and coils of barbed wire accompanied the troops into the prison, but these were not unloaded.

Then, at 4:30 a.m., Sunday, assistant warden Edgar Babcock summoned reporters to tell them "hostages are out."

At 7 a.m., the first busload of the surrendered prisoners was on its way. The convicts, handcuffed in pairs and under heavy guard, were subdued and uncommunicative.

But a few raised their hands in a V-for-victory salute as the buses drove off.

Five Days of Rebellion

KINGSTON (CP) — Here is a day-by-day breakdown of events as Kingston penitentiary since Wednesday:

WEDNESDAY NIGHT

About five hundred prisoners seized control of the recreation hall and main cell block, taking nine guards hostage. During a wild, two-hour rampage which began at 10:30 p.m. convicts smashed windows, locks and furniture, causing damage that one prison official estimated could run as high as $1 million.

Guards fired two shots, one through a door and one in the air, as prisoners attempted to break into the prison's kitchen.

THURSDAY

Three guards taken hostage in the recreation hall were released unharmed at 1 a.m. Six guards remained in the prisoners' hands. The convicts demanded that all armed guards be "pulled back to the wall" and said if any more shots were fired, a finger would be cut from a hostage for each shot.

At 10:30 a.m., three convicts met prison officials and reporters. The convict committee demanded that a list of its complaints be presented to 10 prominent Canadians and that four or five of the 10 meet with the prisoners to hear the complaints. The prisoners complained about the Parole Act, false statements from arresting officers during trials and delay in prison reform.

At 6:30 p.m., about 125 riot-trained soldiers from the Canadian Forces base at Kingston entered the prison. Another 110 soldiers from the Canadian Forces base at Petawawa were brought by helicopter to Kingston.

Henry Camp, a CTV reporter, was permitted to enter the prison to talk with prisoners.

Prisoners were sent sandwiches and coffee at about 11 p.m.

FRIDAY

Two members of a citizens' committee negotiating with prisoners — Ron Haggart and Arthur Martin —flew to Ottawa to hold talks with Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer.

Terrence Wayne Decker, 27, one of the six hostages, was released unharmed in what prisoners described as "a sign of good faith".

The citizens' committee met with prisoners until 4 a.m. Mr. Haggart and Mr. Martin, who had returned from a 70-minute discussion with Mr. Goyer in Ottawa, told prisoners the solicitor-general was considering the prisoners' requests.

SATURDAY

A 110-man contingent of the Royal Canadian Regiment from Petawawa moved inside the prison walls. A truckload of riot-control gear, including shields and oak batons, entered with them.

SUNDAY

Busloads of prisoners were transferred from the besieged cell block to nearby Millhaven, Collins Bay and Joyceville prisons. Military ambulances removed injured prisoners.

Solicitor-General Goyer flew to the penitentiary by helicopter from Ottawa apparently after agreement was reached to end the rebellion.

An official of Mr. Goyer's department announced at 6:37 p.m. that the five remaining guard hostages had been released unharmed, one convict had been killed by another prisoner or prisoners and 11 others injured.

Just short of four days after the riot began, the official announced the situation is "stable" with prison authorities "in complete control."

The official said the agreement was reached without any concessions to prisoners.

'Tuck in Shirt' Order Started Riot

TORONTO (CP) — The rebellion at Kingston penitentiary started when a guard told a prisoner to tuck in his shirt, says a prisoner paroled after the uprising began, but an impending move to the new maximum-security Millhaven penitentiary was a root cause.

John Blackett, 24, released on parole Thursday, was interviewed Sunday night on the CBC television program Weekend.

Mr. Blackett, who witnessed the beginning of the riot at 10:30 p.m. Wednesday, said prisoners decided they were afraid security would be extremely tight and there would be no privacy.

Fifteen prisoners were transferred Wednesday afternoon to Millhaven, 12 miles west of Kingston. The federal government had planned to close Kingston penitentiary gradually, operating it as a reception centre and hospital by August or September.

"I knew Wednesday it was going to happen, or I had an idea anyhow," Mr. Blackett said.

The rebellion seemed to be highly organized.

"Everybody knew what he was supposed to do and they did it good," he said.

Mr. Blackett said he stayed in his cell and didn't go out for the recreation period Wednesday night because he thought the trouble likely would begin then. It broke out when about 325 prisoners were being escorted back to the central cell block after the recreation period.

He said he would have "joined" the rebellion, if he hadn't been due for parole the next day.

Mr. Blackett said the prisoners let him out Thursday when he told them he was due for parole. He left the prison through "the keeper's hall" and then authorities just "carried on" with his parole.

The rebellion started, he said, shortly after a guard told a prisoner to tuck in his shirt. The prisoner refused, the guard was grabbed and then all other guards in the immediate area were grabbed.

A lot of pretty nice girls drive Toyota Corollas. (One out of every three Corollas are bought by women.) We figure it's because women just naturally know a good bargain when they see it. They know how much a gallon of gas costs and how nice it is to go up to 35 miles on one. They know about the optional automatic and 4-speed all synchromesh transmissions. (Even if they don't know what all the synchromesh is about.)
They also know that along with every Corolla you get a lot of nice gadgets. Like fully reclining front bucket seats, an electric rear window defroster, Fresh-Flow ventilation, and front disc brakes.
But there's another reason why so many women buy the Corolla. They like the way it looks. And they naturally feel that one pretty face and nice figure deserves another.

Canada and U.S. Seen In Closer Partnership

KITCHENER (CP) — A closer partnership and a "more complicated" relationship between Canada and the United States will result from the development of the vast resources of Canada's north, a U.C. newspaper man said here Saturday.

Sydney Gruson, vice-president and assistant to the publisher of the New York Times, made the comments during a speech at the 17th annual Western Ontario Newspaper Awards.

"Surely the wildest Canadian dreamer can't imagine Canada with her 21 million people and her limited capital, developing the vast northland without outside help," he said.

"Would Canadians be happier to have some outsider other than the U.S. become her partner? I think not."

Mr. Gruson, who started his newspaper career with the Canadian Press in Toronto, said the relationship between the two countries can never recede.

Canada could not possibly buy back the billions of dollars of U.S. investment in the country and "isolate herself in a cocoon sound-proofed against U.S. TV, books and newspapers," he said.

Quetico Park Problem Not Simple to Solve

TORONTO (CP) — There are those who say Quetico park in northwestern Ontario is more than a beautiful and historic example of wilderness.

The Quetico park advisory committee has been listening to those people at public hearings for the last two weeks as it studied what to do with the 1,750-square-mile park.

Thirty per cent of Quetico now is open to logging and the committee's major task is to recommend to the Ontario government whether the operations should continue.

The issue has stirred up an environmental consciousness in the public and the man in the middle is Syd Hancock, committee chairman and reeve of Atikokan, Ont.

If a decision had to be made on the strength of the briefs, logging would probably be banned.

The 250 briefs were heard at meetings in Fort Frances, Atikokan, Thunder Bay and Toronto, and more than 90 per cent favored a primitive park with no commercial logging.

However, nine of the 12 men on the committee are from northwestern Ontario and throughout the hearings some committee members were visibly annoyed at people who tried to tell northerners how to run their economy.

How do the members personally feel about the park?

Mr. Hancock acknowledged in an interview that they will have to do "a lot of soul searching."

It was evident throughout the hearings that loggers and conservationists see little in common. The battle lines are solid —either you want logging or you do not.

The Ontario government sets policy for the park and has the final decision whether to accept or reject the committee's report which Mr. Hancock hopes to present by fall.

Caught in the middle are the Ojibwa Indians of the Rainy River area. They want to log and they point out that the Indian has lived in harmony with nature before the white man stepped foot on the continent.

A strong case for the Indians came from Willie Wilson, 30, of the Manitou reserve near Fort Frances.

His brief, supported by 11 chiefs in the Rainy River district, said the white man was selfish and that the Indian, even in Quetico, was getting the "short end of the stick."

He said Indians should be allowed to continue logging operations in the park, if only on a salvage basis.

One thing is certain. The Indian is becoming a more and more powerful pressure group and, as Mr. Wilson said in Fort Frances and Toronto, "the Indian wants to start paddling his own canoe" because the federal department of Indian affairs "is not doing its job."

During the final day of the Toronto hearings, 77-year-old Grace Malkin of Toronto released a letter from the office of the department's minister, Jean Chretien.

The letter said the federal government was interested in turning Quetico into a national park.

That prompted Andy Jourdain of the Lac la Croix reserve, near the park, and only Indian member of the committee to say:

"I'd like to see that letter. I want to get that guy over a barrel."

Other points expressed in briefs were:

—The department of lands and forests should open more canoe routes because major routes had become "well-beaten trails." Lou Ringham, the department's northwestern Ontario director, said most canoeists will not pack a canoe across a 1,000-foot portage in order to reach a lake that is rarely seen.

—Domtar Ltd. should negotiate with the provincial government to arrange alternate cutting. Domtar said its lumber mill at Sapawe, Ont., just north of the park, could be operated economically if an alternate source of wood was found outside the park.

—All motorized transportation — trucks, motor boats and snowmobiles — should be banned within the park.

—Logging is an asset because it creates browsing areas for deer and moose. Rebuttals were that logging chased away the squirrels, owls and wolverines.

Another argument was that there were 213,000 square miles of land in northwestern Ontario and that wilderness could be found easily outside the park.

Davis Says Trudeau Is Behind by Five

BRAMLEA, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis admitted Saturday that Prime Minister Trudeau is ahead of him in the girl-kissing department but wasn't conceding anything in other fields of activity.

"I happen to be five ahead of him in other respects," said the Ontario leader, referring to his five children.

The comments came after Mr. Davis kissed 18-year-old Brenda Davison at a public reception in his honor attended by 3,000 persons.

The reception, complete with bands, dancing groups and balloons for the kids, was staged by the Peel North Progressive Conservative Association at a cost of $2,100. Mr. Davis represents Peel North in the legislature.

"We knew him as a member, and now we wanted everybody to know and meet him as the premier," said Harry Chadwick, association president.

The premier introduced his parents to the crowd with the remark "one's family keeps one very humble."

Former Pot Smoker Disclaims Benefits

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a graduate student who has spent the last five years with pot and non-pot smoking friends, I would like to respond to the student who thought grass brought out the best in him. He recommended it for those who have a hard time "opening up to others."

ANN LANDERS

I tried pot when I was a freshman at the University of Illinois. I swore off after four pot parties. Every time I smoked I became involved in ridiculous discussions about inane subjects. I ended up depressed and remorseful.

I do not sit in judgment of those who smoke. I take no position on the legality or the morality of pot smoking. All I know is that it was no good for me and I will never smoke again. But because I am not a smoker, and I often find myself in the company of those who are, I am in a position to make some fairly objective observations — and I have done so. They are as follows: Heavy smokers, be they law students, med students, architect students or philosophy majors, are much more pleasant, more alert, and they communicate better when they are not smoking. The notion that pot brings out hidden talent or brilliance is a myth. What pot does is remove the inhibitions, cloud the judgment, make blabbermouths out of some people and tie the tongues of others. — BEEN THERE.

DEAR BEEN: Your letter supports the theories I have heard expressed by the best experts in the field — others who have also "Been There. Thanks for writing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A very attractive, intelligent, soft-spoken woman just left my home. She is my lover's wife. It was our first meeting and I am still in a state of shock. His description of her was a far cry from the real thing.

For the past two years he has been describing his wife as a hopeless neurotic, a semi-invalid, unreasonable, hyper-critical, violently jealous, etc. I was astonished to see a woman who is in excellent health, cultured, and refined. She had come to tell me I could have her husband if I wanted him. Imagine my surprise, after he had told me she would fight a divorce to her dying day, and that our only hope was to wait until he could afford to have her institutionalized.

I learned she was his third wife (news to me), that he had had numerous affairs, but his wife was willing to keep the marriage together in the hope that eventually he would outgrow the chasing around. He is a wonderful father to their three children which she said made up for a great many other things.

I thanked her for coming, and when I closed the door behind her I also closed the door on him. As I sit here I wonder how I could have been such a fool. I feel used and unclean. How many single women who are cheating with married men are buying the same line I bought? If anyone else is in my shoes, for God's sake wake up before it's too late to pick up the pieces and make a decent life for yourself. — COMES THE DAWN.

DEAR DAWN: I can add nothing to your letter except my thanks for having written it. I'm happy for you — and sad for the heel's next victim whom he probably has already selected.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A woman who works with us is a chronic complainer. From the time she clocks in until she clocks out, she complains about the traffic, the rudeness of people, the management, the temperature in the office, the food in the cafeteria, the quality of paper we have to use, the hours, the salary. Every time she opens her mouth it's a complaint.

Any suggestions on what we can do about it? — GARDEN CITY GROUP

DEAR GROUP: If there's anything I hate it's people who complain. Now what was it that you were complaining about?

* * *

Confidential to STUCK WITH A BUCKET OF BOLTS: Yes, there is a solution. Make it a point to take both cars (his and yours) for regular checkups. Don't wait until something goes klickety-pong. Experience has proved that you are the one who will be inconvenienced, not him.

Walking Is One of the Best Exercises

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I play golf. I tell my friends it keeps me fit and they laugh at me, saying that a person has to get more violent exercise than that. What do you think? — Sixty-Odd

Dear Sixty-Odd: Fiddlesticks. Walking is one of the best exercises you can get, and golf gives you lots of that.

Doctors warn us against strenuous activity, especially if we suddenly begin it past middle age. A lot depends on physical stamina, habits and interest.

Golf is tops with me. Don't forget to stand still sometimes. And look around at lovely meadows or trees or rolling landscape — whatever there is to look at. All part of what keeps you feeling fit.

Dear Doris: My mother and father will be celebrating their sixtieth wedding anniversary this year. "God willing"! I would appreciate any ideas you could suggest for such a celebration.

They have four girls and one boy, all married with children, and children's children . . . 54 in all.

Neither mother nor dad is in the best of health, but we feel it is too big an occasion to let pass unnoticed.—Young-est Girl

Dear Youngest: Congratulations to all of you! The sixtieth is a milestone worth celebrating.

Did you know that you can get greetings from the Queen? You write to her through the Secretary of State in Ottawa, giving dealis of the marriage.

I'd suggest an Open House as being easier on your parents than a big dinner. Someone can greet guests as they enter and be taken to where Mother and Dad are seated.

Get signatures in the guest book; prime daughters and in-laws to circulate, keep people introduced and serve food.

I am sending you my leaflet on 50th wedding anniversaries. The main difference is that this is the diamond jubilee.

* * *

Dear Doris: I have dated two girls in the past four years. Asked one about marriage and last her after six months. The second time, we were engaged to be married for five months and then had it broken off, which leaves a person emotionally upset and broken-hearted.

At 33 years of age I am finding it more difficult each time I meet any single girls near my age. I don't know why these things happen as I always behave in a proper manner, polite and give them gifts. Maybe it's because I haven't found the right person or one who is compatible to me.

Dear Left Out: That has to be it — that compatible business. But don't give up!

Better do what I tell the girls to do — be a joiner. Find a club which likes what you like — sports, music or photography. Or bird watching. Go through the motions of joining, getting to know people, being helpful.

Sometimes this takes courage — especially if you are females as a race start like boys may who are raised without sisters.

If there is an older woman in your life, like an aunt, take her into your confidence, ask her to consider your plight and suggest ways in which you might improve socially.

Steamed Pudding with Molasses

By MARY MOORE

My daughter-in-law, Margaret, never knows when she is going to be a help to me. This time the message came by way of Marianne who with Gary and Davey was at their home for dinner. She said, "Mum, Margaret had a wonderful steamed pudding with a thin lemon sauce that I think you should taste."

So with Margaret's recipe in hand I made and steamed an apple molasses pudding that was light textured and when served with the lemon sauce turned out to be a memorable dessert. This has no suet in it and is just the ticket for steamed pudding lovers.

APPLE MOLASSES PUDDING (steamed)
¼ cup margarine
½ cup light brown sugar (packed)
1 egg
½ cup molasses
Grated rind 1 med. orange
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. baking soda
2 tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. ginger
1 tsp. cinnamon
½ cup sour milk (see below)
1 cup pared, chopped apples (packed — I used Spys)

NOTE: IF you do not have any sour or buttermilk measure 1 tbsp. vinegar into measuring cup and fill to ½ cup line with sweet milk and let stand.

Cream margarine and brown sugar together in beater bowl. Beat in egg, molasses and orange rind. Add all remaining ingredients except apples and beat until smooth. Remove beaters and stir in apples. Turn into buttered 6-7 cup mould or pudding bowl. If desired for easy removal line bowl with two crossed, 3" wide strips buttered wax paper. Lower into large kettle containing enough hot water to come halfway up sides. Cover and steam 1½ hrs. Turn out on preheated serving dish and serve with Translucent Lemon Sauce made by mixing in top of double boiler 1-3 cup granulated sugar and 1 tbsp. corn starch. Over boiling water stir in 1 cup boiling water until thick. Remove from heat and add 2 tbsps. margarine, grated rind 1 lemon, 1½ tbsps. fresh lemon juice, ¼ tsp. salt. Keep warm until serving time in double boiler. This lemon sauce is a good all-purpose sauce for steamed puddings.

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH D. WEDDEL

Weddel – Burn

Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was the setting for the wedding ceremony on Saturday, April 10, 1971, when Judy Anne Burn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Burn, Belleville was united in marriage to Kenneth David R. Weddel, son of Mr. and Mrs. David R. Weddel of Queensville. Rev. J. Arthur Shiell officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by William Conner, who also accompanied the soloist Mrs. Ruth Gazley.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length empire styled gown with the bodice featuring a wedding band collar and full bishop sleeves. To add a touch of spring, embroidered miniature daisies adorned the bodice and the slightly A-line skirt. A chapel length train of matching material and trim highlighted the back of the gown. The bridal headdress was a cluster of tiny rosebuds centred with stamins with tiny rhinestones and silver beau de soie leaves caught to a four-tier silk illusion shoulder length veil. She carried a crescent bouquet of yellow roses.

Mrs. Sharon Elliot of Don Mills, cousin of the bride was matron of honor wearing a semi-fitted floor length gown of imported guipure lace in a floral design with puffed sleeves and trimmed with white lace. She wore a picture hat of yellow mohair and carried sheafs of white 'mums. Bridesmaids Miss Janice Burn, sister of the bride and Mrs. Heather Walker sister of the bridegroom from Belgrave were attired identically to the matron of honor.

At the reception in the church hall, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a lilac coat and dress ensemble with a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. Assisting the bridegroom's mother chose a soft pink sleeveless coat and dress ensemble with a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Weddel will reside at 1268 Fenland Rd., Apt. 503, Oshawa.

Board of Education Secretaries' Meeting

The Secretaries Association of the Hastings County Board of Education held an informal meeting in the Lounge Room of the Centre Hastings Secondary School last Wednesday evening, with approximately 31 members in attendance.

Mrs. Evelyn McIlquham was chairman for the meeting and Mrs. Mabel Graham, secretary.

Individual amateur talent within the group was apparent as the evening program got underway. Mrs. Betty Dawson composed and read an amusing poem giving the audience an interesting lesson in phonics. An original skit, portraying Lily Tomlin of TV's "Laugh-In", was cleverly presented by Mrs. Linda Lovelace and Mrs. Helen Brown.

At different times throughout the evening a gong or a bell indicated a change in seating arrangements, so that all members could become better acquainted with the one sitting next to her.

A report on the National Secretaries' Seminar held at Centennial Secondary School on April 3 was presented by Mrs. Susan Lattimer and Mrs. Lois Edgy. This presentation, in the form of a telephone conversation between friends, gave an interesting and informative report of the program at the seminar. There were 22 members from this association in attendance and the general feeling from those present felt that it was a highly successful and worthwhile day.

Mrs. Dorothy Aitchison gave the final report of the liaison committee which has now served its purpose and is no longer in power. All separated into small buzz sessions to discuss the pros and cons within the association.

It was unanimously decided to hold two meetings per year, once in the spring and again in the fall; the meetings to take the form of a business and social event. It was the general feeling that it was not necessary to appoint an executive for the association, but rather to appoint a small group of members to look after arrangements for each meeting.

Mrs. Ronny Meads volunteered to act as convener for the fall meeting with Mrs. Betty Dawson and Helen Brown on the committee. It was suggested that a circular letter be given to each member on professional development day on April 23 to find out the preference of the type of meeting the majority of members wish to have. A dinner meeting was suggested for the fall.

Mrs. Dorothy Aitchison led in a sing-song of familiar tunes with original and appropriate words for the association, aptly composed by herself assisted by other members.

Lunch was served in the cafeteria by the Centre Hastings Secondary School members who were hosts.

Napkins, even paper ones, are not to be shaken open all over the table. Simply unfold them in your lap.

Bruins Dumbfounded by Habs' Amazing Dryden

BOSTON (CP) — Rookie goaltenders usually suffer the frustrations of Stanley Cup playoffs. Today it has to be the top shoolers from Boston Bruins who are upset.

Ken Dryden, a 24-year-old rookie goalie, won his fourth Stanley Cup playoff victory Sunday afternoon as Montreal Canadiens whacked Boston's once-powerful Bruins 4-2 to win the best-of-seven quarter-final series 4-3 and eliminated last season's cup champs.

"I hope they weren't too frustrated," the soft-spoken Dryden said, while in another corner of the madhouse that substituted for a Montreal dressingroom, coach Al MacNeil was already worrying about his Canadiens' next series in the National Hockey League playoffs.

"We had to contain them and we did," said Dryden, who allowed only two goals although Bruins potshot the hard-skating Canadiens 43-34 in the game.

"It's going to be a tough series," MacNeil told reporters. "That Minnesota team isn't the same hockey club that we met earlier this year." During the regular season the Canadiens won three, tied two and lost one to the North Stars.

MacNeil was already worrying his club will suffer a letdown from their all-out effort against the Bruins.

Dryden made clear he isn't worried about who he faces next and describes everything as "relative."

"It has been a totally new experience for me," Dryden said of his playoff appearances. He appeared previously in only its late-season NHL games for the Canadiens and won them all. He had been a standout goalie with Cornell University and played with Canada's national team just before it was disbanded.

For a time it appeared the experts, who had picked the Bruins to knock aside the Montreal challenge, had chosen correctly.

Boston right winger Ken Hodge opened the scoring at 8:50 of the first period when he blasted an unassisted goal over Dryden's left shoulder after intercepting an errant pass by defenceman Jacques Laperriere deep in Montreal territory.

Frank Mahovlich got the equalizer for Montreal eight minutes later on a mid-air tip-in past Boston goalie Gerry Cheevers off a Jacques Lemaire pass.

Rejean Houle put the Canadiens ahead 2-1 at 10:17 of the first period with his first goal of the series and defenceman J. C. Tremblay gave Mont-

Stars Like Rating

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Coach Jack Gordon doesn't seem to mind that his Minnesota North Stars will be decisive underdogs Tuesday night when they open their Stanley Cup semi-final of the National Hockey League against Montreal Canadiens.

"That's fine with me if people think that," said Gordon.

"I hope they come out strong like that. It's good fuel for me. They'll be plastering it all over the place and we'll use it."

The North Stars won one game, tied two and lost three in the regular season against the Canadiens, who upset Boston Bruins in the quarter-finals.

Minnesota stunned St. Louis Blues in six games to reach the semi-final.

The North Stars scheduled a morning flight in Montreal today for the first two games in the best-of-seven series. The teams move to Minnesota Saturday night.

Minnesota will be trying to become the first expansion team to win a Stanley Cup game against the established East after 16 straight losses.

Too Bad Rangers Not Paid for Overtime

CHICAGO (CP) — Emile Francis, general manager-coach of New York Rangers, summed up his team's feelings toward overtime games in Sunday's Cup play on a slightly mercenary note.

"You don't get paid any extra for overtime," Francis said after Rangers came from behind to beat Chicago Black Hawks 2-1 in overtime Sunday night in the first game of their best-of-seven National Hockey League semi-final series. "I'd much rather win in regulation time."

It was the second straight overtime win for the Rangers who sewed up their quarter-final series against Toronto Maple Leafs four games to two with a 2-1 overtime victory.

However, Francis said the Rangers would settle for overtime anytime—if they always won.

The Hawks, who controlled play for 2½ periods, saw a 1-0 lead melt away with less than four minutes remaining in regulation play when Jean Ratelle got the equalizer from a scramble in front of Hawk goaltender Tony Esposito.

At 1:37 of the first sudden-death overtime period, Pete Stemkowski beat Esposito with a quick, partly screened shot from about 15 feet out to give Rangers the win.

Francis said it was a "big game for the Rangers."

"The key was the goaltending and the sound defensive work," he added. "Giacomin's save on Koroll in the third period gave us a chance to win."

Koroll, who was credited with Chicago's only goal when a point shot by Hawk defenceman Pat Stapleton hit him and bounced past Giacomin, could count on both hands the number of times he and teammate Jim Pappin were robbed by the New York goalie.

Giacomin had the crowd of more than 19,000 shaking their heads before the game was two minutes old when he made a brilliant save on Pit Martin's breakaway.

Martin's first period shot set the pattern . . . and gave me a lift," Giacomin said later in the dressing room.

With the second period about seven minutes old, Giacomin made one of many saves on Chicago superstar Bobby Hull. But during the play Hull collided with Giacomin and the Hawk left winger's skate cut the New York goalie's left hand—his glove hand.

"I didn't want to come out because it was just a little cut on the hand," Giacomin said. "It'll be OK if it doesn't swell."

Neither Francis nor Giacomin would say if the injury would keep the veteran goalie out of the second game of the series here Tuesday night.

The gash was closed with five stitches between the second and third periods.

"Esposito had the puck partially in his glove but it slipped out and Ratelle knocked it in," he said.

Hawk centre Stan Mikita refused to use as an excuse that the Black Hawks hadn't played since last Sunday after knocking out Philadelphia Flyers in four straight games.

"It was a helluva game," Mikita said. "It (the layoff) had nothing to do with it."

Esposito had few words after the game.

"It was a bad day," he said. "It was just a bad day."

Asked about Stemkowski's winning goal, last year's Vezina Trophy winner simply said: "You saw it." then walked away.

Hornets Win In Four Games

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Galt Hornets downed Thunder Bay Twins 8-1 before about 700 fans Sunday to win their Eastern Allan Cup senior hockey semi-final in four games.

The Twins staved off elimination in the best-of-five series Saturday night with a 7-2 win, but the Hornets came back Sunday for their third series victory.

Bruce Reier, an Ontario Hockey Association all-star right winger, and John Beechey had two goals each. The other Hornet goals were by Fern Belanger, Ronald Smith, Cecil Hockstra and Tom McCarthy, a pickup from Orillia.

Bern Campigotto scored for Thunder Bay.

The Hornets, who held 2-0 and 3-1 early period leads Sunday, now advance to a best-of-five Eastern Canada final against the Grand Falls, Nfld., Cataracts.

The Hornets fired five third-period goals past backup Kurt Demmler, who took over goaltending when Bob Kilgour drew a game misconduct for participating in a fight near the end of the second period.

For Galt, who led 1-0 at the end of the first period and were tied 2-2 at the end of the second, the scorers were Pete Panagabko and John Nickerson.

The Twins dominated play Saturday night, firing 45 shots at Ken Broderick, while Kilgour and Bill White had only 21 to handle in the Thunder Bay nets.

The roles were reversed Sunday when Galt outshot the Twins 38-29, giving Hornets goalie Harold Hurley a relatively easy time.

Hawks Caught

A power-play goal by Montreal defenceman Ian Turnbull at 19:03 of the final period gave the Junior Canadiens a 3-3 tie against St. Catharines, after the Black Hawks had been penalized for having too many men on the ice.

The result left St. Catharines with two wins, a loss and a tie in the best-of-seven, semi-final series, which resumes tonight in St. Catharines.

Winner of the series will advance to the finals against Toronto Marlboros, who crushed Ottawa 6's 6-2 Sunday to sweep their semi-final in four games.

Referee Tom Brown caught the Black Hawks with heading 3-2, with an extra man on the ice at 17:46 of the final period at Montreal. Turnbull scored on a shot from just inside the blueline, with less than a minute remaining and the Montreal power-play in full force.

Bruins Were Out-coached

By Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

Hopefully, there will not be an excessive number of typographical errors in this space today. You see, it's extremely difficult to type with egg on one's eyelashes.

Which brings us to the Montreal Canadiens, who forgot they were a third-place hockey team and reminded Boston Bruins that even elephants can trip.

When such upsets occur, it's easy to overlook the men most likely responsible — the coaches. And if Al MacNeil doesn't win somebody's coach-of-the-year award, there's no justice.

The game-by-game record of Montreal's seven-game playoff triumph is a chronicle of MacNeil strategies: shifting Henri Richard from centre to wing, putting his faith in a 20-year-old goalkeeper with six games of NHL experience under his belt; knowing when to spell inspirational Jean Beliveau so as to get the most out of his 39-year-old pair of legs; using Mahovlich — whom no-one had ever given much thought to defensively — as penalty-killers; and having the courage to send rookie defencemen Guy Lapointe and Pierre Bouchard out in crucial situations.

MacNeil's Job Easy

Put yourself in Johnson's shoes. You're a rookie coach with the defending Stanley Cup champions. You can't tell them to do anything different than they did last year because whatever the Bruins did last year worked. Moreover, they established themselves this past season as the mightiest offensive machine in hockey history, piling up 33 records while steamrolling to the eastern division pennant.

So you are Tom Johnson coaching the Boston Bruins in the Stanley Cup playoffs. What do you do? You buy a good book and pick a comfortable spot with good lighting behind the bench, looking up between chapters to change lines.

Nothing to Lose

Now you are Al MacNeil. You have nothing to lose because everyone west of Suez, and quite a few east, say your hockey team has as much chance of beating the Boston Bruins as George Chuvalo does of getting a PhD. from Yale.

Instructions are few but explicit: "check them, and when you're done doing that, check them some more. And when you're done doing that, . . . well you get the idea.

Montreal was playing one of the greatest hockey teams ever assembled, a team that beat them five of six regular season times, a team that had seven players who scored as many goals as the entire Canadiens roster, a team that some bookies wouldn't take bets on.

Bring on Beans

Their quarter-final win now makes Canadiens odds-on-favorites to wir their 15th Stanley Cup since 1930; we still think New York will make up the odds-on-file final series . . . Don't feel too sorry for playoff absentees Vancouver and Buffalo: The Sabres have already sold over 10,000 season's tickets for the 1971-72 season, with only 2,000-odd to go . . . The Canucks' management enjoyed a net income of $495,500 for their first six months' operation; average attendance at their first 17 home games represented about 97 per cent of the 15,570 maximum seating capacity . . . Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau won three lobsters and a can of Boston beans on the Bruin series from Boston chief magistrate Kevin Wight. Mayor Drapeau had wagered a gallon of maple syrup and a pound of cheese.

Chamberlain Wins Battle, But Lakers Lose War

Wilt Chamberlain captured the battle of the seven-footers, but Greg Smith powered Milwaukee Bucks to the Western Conference title Sunday in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The Bucks, 115-98 winners over Los Angeles Lakers, now will take on the Eastern Conference champions Wednesday night in the opening game of the best-of-seven championship series.

In the only American Basketball Association game schedule, Utah Stars had three players scoring 20 or more points while defeating Indiana Pacers 121-103 Saturday to take a 2-1 series lead in their best-of-seven semi-final.

WILT CHAMBERLAIN

Smith, the Bucks' six-foot-five forward considered long on defence but short on offence, paced the Bucks with 22 points, leading Milwaukee's well-balanced scoring attack.

While seven-foot-two Lew Alcindor and 7-1 Chamberlain battled, Smith sneaked in time and again for crucial rebounds or vital points.

With Chamberlain dominating play at both ends of the court, Los Angeles hung close until the half, when the Lakers trailed by only six points, 55-49.

Then, as has been their custom, the Bucks exploded in the final two periods to post their fourth victory of the series easily.

The Bullets struck for a 20-point lead early in the third quarter to square their series with the defending champions from New York.

Goals by Kaiser (Boy-Boy) Motaung and Freddie Mwilda guided Atlanta Chiefs to a 2-0 victory over Montreal Olympics Saturday at Atlanta.

LONDON (CP) — A soccer linesman was felled by a stone and police arrested 23 struggling fans in Leeds on Saturday after a disputed goal that could cost Leeds United the English League title.

Leeds, after heading the First Division standings all season, slipped 1-2 at home to West Bromwich.

Arsenal edged Newcastle 1-0 and went to the top of the standings on goal average. Arsenal and Leeds have 58 points each, but Arsenal still has five games to play and Leeds only three.

The Leeds-West Bromwich game was held up for five minutes after the dispute over West Bromwich's second goal. Angry fans swarmed on to the field and police and players struggled to protect referee Ray Tinkler.

Littler Wins in Stretch

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Gene Littler Sunday survived a stretch battle with lanky George Archer and won the $30,000 first prize in the Monsanto open golf tournament.

Littler, a 40-year-old from La Jolla, Calif., had a final-round four-under-par 67 for a 276 total and a three-stroke margin over Archer, who faded back to a tie for second with Pete Brown at 279.

Archer finished with a 70 and Brown had a 67. Bob Murphy, with four consecutive 70s, and Larry Wood, who had a closing 71, were next at 280. Johnny Pott, Ron Cerrudo and Mason Rudolph followed at 281 and Al Gieberger limped in with a 74 for 282.

Ben Kern of Toronto had a 75 Sunday. His 291 total was worth $222.

The victory, the 23rd of his 18-year career on the pro tour, probably was worth much more than $30,000 to Littler.

For one thing, it put him in this week's rich Tournament of Champions, which he won a record three consecutive times, placed him in the match play championship later this season and marked an end to one of his longest victory droughts.

Ten-pinners Qualify for Road Game

The two city keglers were the pick of 34 qualifiers Saturday in winning the local roll-off of the annual Brunswick "Bowl Your Way to Europe" contest.

Ron Swatuk, manager of the Plaza Brunswick lanes, said the two city entries will now advance to the National Tournament finals scheduled for Washington, D.C. May 28-30.

In addition to receiving handsome electric clocks from the local house, the winning twosome will be flown to the Washington roll-off on an expense - paid basis by Brunswick.

To qualify for Saturday's competition, ten-pinners had to record the highest city score for one month. Three games are rolled by contestants, with the winning pair being those who record a single score the highest above their average.

"I only bowl three ten-pin games a week," he said, "and just made it down here in time for this tournament." Begley, who is among the top ten city five-pinners, currently sporting a 248 average, was in Toronto earlier Saturday competing in the provincial Legion veterans tourney. He finished third, 12 pins behind the winner, then bamped in his car and headed back for the Belleville ten-pin event. It was the third time he had competed.

Trudy Sands gives ten-pin bowling her undivided attention , and was competing in her fourth "Bowl Your Way to Europe" event.

"If at first you don't succeed. . ." she quipped after taking top women's honors with a 201 game, 38 pins over her 163 average.

Made Ends Meet

Trudy Sands and Jim Begley got their ten-pin games together Sunday and won the first leg of bowling trips to Europe. Trudy topped 17 other women with a 201 single, and Jim's 229 was best score of 16 male entries in the "Bowl Your Way to Europe" roll-off at Belleville's Brunswick Bowl. House proprietor Ron Swatuk presented the winners with electric clocks.

Belleville minor lacrosse president Roy Payne expressed disappointment at the fact that only one of the 12 Belleville residents present were from the Belleville minor hockey referees group.

A players' clinic will be conducted some time before the minor lacrosse regular season gets under way.

Expos Riding High

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos are on top of the East Division in the National League.

Incredible as it may seem, the third-year baseball club holds a .042 lead on Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals following a weekend sweep of a three-game series with Cincinnati Reds, highlighted by back-to-back wins in a doubleheader at Jarry Park Sunday afternoon.

"It's too early to even worry about first place," said Expos manager Gene Mauch. "I'm just happy with the way they are going about their business.

"They are playing excellent baseball and that's what counts most."

"The Expos have quite a man leading them in Mauch," said Reds' manager Sparky Anderson, whose club suffered 3-2 and 5-3 defeats Sunday before 21,049 fans at Jarry Park." Montreal's going to give a lot of clubs trouble.

The Expos were behind early in both ends of the split. Reds grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first inning of the opener taking advantage of three walks by Montreal starting pitcher Steve Renko.

The Expos scored a run in the fifth inning on Ron Hunt's single and then took the lead in the top of the seventh on a pinch-hit bases-loaded single by Clyde Mashore driving in Ron Brand and Rusty Staub.

Staub, the National League's leading hitter, with a .448 average, drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a double and scored what proved to be the winning run on a single in the fifth inning by Ron Fairly.

Stoneman overcame a shaky start and ended up with seven strikeouts while allowing the Reds six hits.

The Reds grabbed a quick 2-0 lead in the first, but the Expos came back to tie the score on Staub's homer in the bottom of the inning.

"Once I got used to the mound again, everything fell right back into place," Stoneman said.

The Expos have now won four games in a row and will have a day off today to prepare for the visit of Philadelphia Phillies Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday evening.

The Wednesday game will be televised nationally over the CBC starting at 6:05 p.m.

Big 'M' Throws Merritt

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Mouton, the colorful public address announcer for Montreal Expos of baseball's National League, did double duty at Sunday's doubleheader with Cincinnati Reds.

Mouton has the distinction of holding the same job with the National Hockey League Canadiens, and, while the hockey team was winning its game in Boston with the Bruins, Mouton was announcing the scores to 21,049 delirious baseball fans at Jary Park.

Mouton did not get the jump on the crowd, however, as many were taking in the doubleheader with transistor radios tuned into the play-by-play description from Boston.

The sudden outburst almost knocked the left-hander off the mound.

Howie Reed, who picked up the win in the first game, said it was a little disconcerting for the pitchers.

"I was waiting for one of the pitchers to fall off the mound, after he started his motion," he said.

"Wish a man on third, that would have been a tough balk to call."

"We knew what was going on," said a 11-star fielder Rusty Staub.

"We just wanted to hear more yells. We wanted them (Canadiens) to clinch the game."

Yaz Just Needs One Chance

By THE ASSOCIATE PRESS

Carl Yastrzemski and Dean Chance have hit it off badly in their first 1971 American League baseball meeting.

Yastrzemski ruined a strong pitching effort by Chance with a fourth inning home run Sunday and Sonny Siebert made it stand up with a five-hitter as Boston Red Sox nipped Detroit Tigers 1-0.

But the Boston slugger wasn't any happier than Chance afterward—because of an inside pitch that almost hit him on his next trip to the plate following the decisive homer.

"He didn't come close to hitting anybody else the whole game," said Yastrzemski.

"Then he throws the ball at my feet. He has no damn guts."

"If I'm going to throw at a guy, I'll hit him," countered Chance.

Cleveland Indians' Steve Dunning topped both, however, with a 1-0 one-hit victory over Washington after the Senators took the double-header opener 4-0 behind Denny McLain's three-hitter.

Elsewhere Sunday, California Angels edged Minnesota Twins 5-4, Baltimore Orioles whipped New York Yankees 11-6, Oakland Athletics swept a doubleheader from Chicago White Sox 11-2 and 6-1, and Kansas City Royals split a pair with Milwaukee Brewers, winning 2-1 before bowing 3-2 in 13 innings.

In Saturday's action, Washington downed Cleveland 5-3, California nipped Minnesota 4-3, Kansas City defeated Milwaukee 5-3, Chicago blanked Oakland 4-0 and New York trimmed Baltimore 5-4.

Chance, acquired by Detroit from the Mets just before the start of the season, gave up two harmless singles until Yastrzemski led off the fourth with a blast into the lower right field seats for his second homer of the season.

Siebert, who has given up only one earned run thus far, was in command all the way, striking out five—including dangerous Willie Horton and Gates Brown to end the game.

Dunning, beginning his first full year with Cleveland, limited the Senators to a second-inning single by Tom McCraw and five walks in earning the Indians a split.

McLain mowed down the Indians in the opener on the way to his second victory against one loss while Washington capitalized on an error by Ken Harrelson and the wildness of Sam McDowell, 0-2, to score three runs in the fourth.

Alex Johnson drilled a two-run homer in the third inning and doubled to ignite a two-run ninth, leading the Angels past the Twins to their seventh straight victory.

Baltimore, off to a blazing start in defence of its East Division crown, scored six runs in the second inning and held off the Yanks. Don Buford homered for the Orioles, who have won eight of 10 starts.

Sal Bando hit a tie-breaking homer in the seventh and a two-run double in the eighth as the Athletics completed their sweep at Chicago after riddling the White Sox in the opener behind a 17-hit assault and the six-hit pitching of Vida Blue.

Paul Schaal's ninth-inning homer gave the Royals their first-game nod at Milwaukee but the Brewers bounced back to take the second game on Tommy Harper's bases-loaded single in the 13th.

Cepeda Goes From Famine to Feast

Hitting against Woody Fryman has been no picnic for Orlando Cepeda. But Sunday it was a feast.

The Atlanta first baseman fed on his long-time nemesis for five hits, including the game winning home run in the 10th inning that carried the Braves past Philadelphia Phillies 5-4.

"I never hit him so good," said Cepeda. "But it was one of those days where everything falls in and nobody gets you out."

The bundle of hits made it a whale of a three-game series at Veterans Stadium for Cepeda, who has been known to voice his displeasure while playing in Philadelphia.

Cepeda hit a triple in Friday night's opener and a single and home run Saturday.

San Francisco Giants continued its bomb Chicago Cubs, taking a doubleheader 5-1 and 8-1 to complete a sweep of their four-game series. In other National League games, Montreal Expos topped off a three-game sweep of Cincinnati Reds, defending champions, with a 3-2, 5-3 double triumph, Houston Astros tripped Los Angeles Dodgers 8-6, St. Louis Cardinals turned back San Diego Padres 4-2 and New York Mets and Pittsburgh Pirates split a pair, the Mets winning the first 2-1 and Pittsburgh the second, 2-1.

Saturday Pittsburgh blanked New York 2-0, Montreal downed Cincinnati 3-2, Atlanta drubbed Philadelphia 6-2, San Francisco took Chicago 5-3, St. Louis shut out San Diego 4-0 and Houston trimmed Los Angeles 5-3.

Joe Morgan slammed a three-run homer and drove in another run with a sacrifice fly for Houston. The Astros backed winning hurler Jack Billingham with a 15-hit attack.

Russia Launches Orbital Space Station

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The Soviet Union launched today an apparently unmanned orbital space station named Salyut. Tass news agency said it was functioning normally.

Although the space laboratory is believed to be unmanned, observers said it is possible that a manned spacecraft will be sent up to rendezvous with it.

(The Associated Press said the brief initial announcement of the space shot did not use the word "automatic," which the Soviet government usually uses to refer to unmanned launchings. The AP said this could be an indication that Salyut is the first manned Soviet spacecraft sent up in 10 months.)

Tass said the station, whose name means Salute or Salvo, is orbiting the earth once every 88.5 minutes at an altitude of between 125 and 138 miles.

The agency said the station was launched "to perfect elements of the design and onboard systems and for conducting scientific research and experiments in space."

It said the station is orbiting at an angle of 51.6 degrees to the Equator.

The launching followed several days of speculation that the Soviet Union was about to stage a space spectacular. Observers believe it is likely that two or more manned craft may be launched to link up with an orbiting space lab.

Tass announced Sunday the launching Saturday of a new meteorological satellite, the Meteor.

Salyut appeared to be an important stage toward the Soviet space aim of creating manned orbiting space laboratories with crews spending as much as a month in space before being relieved by other crews.

Academician Mstislav Keldysh, who heads the Soviet Academy of Sciences, predicted after the last Soviet manned mission last June that the first Soviet space station would be put into orbit "in the next few years."

Keldysh said the space stations also would be used as launching pads for interplanetary flight, but added that a station with that capability probably would not be created until the late 1970s or early 1980s.

He said two main problems remained to be solved—man's prolonged stay in space and the development of new more powerful rockets.

Another problem which may have to be solved is the provision of artificial gravity, which cosmonauts said after the Soyuz 9 flight last June might be needed for interplanetary flight.

Keldysh said earlier that "there is a whole lot of evidence that weightlessness does have harmful effects." The Soyuz 9 cosmonauts reported they took several days to readjust to gravity when they returned to earth.

Soyuz 9, launched June 1, carried cosmonauts Andrian Nikolayev and Vitaly Sevastyanov. They circled the earth for 17 days 76 hours 59 minutes to establish a world space endurance record.

The purpose of that flight, Soviet scientists said, was to test man's ability in an extended state of weightlessness and practise manual navigation techniques.

Ceylon Troops Execute Captives

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — Government troops attacking a forest full of rebels say they execute their captives as soon as they're convinced the prisoners are insurgents.

Ten have been shot and 12 more are being executed today, said a ranking officer who reported the rebel battle casualties in the hills around Xegalle totalled 200 last week.

"Once we are convinced prisoners are insurgents, we take them to the cemetery and dispose of them," he told reporters.

Another officer said the idea of a truce with the rebels had come up but his solution was total destruction of the leftist movement that tried to overthrow the government April 5.

Lt.-Col. Cyril Ranatunga said: "We have learned too many lessons from Vietnam and Malaysia...We must destroy them completely. We have no choice."

Ranatunga heads a force of troops and police battle casualties in the hills around Xegalle totalled 200 last week.

"Once we are convinced prisoners are insurgents, we take them to the cemetery and dispose of them," he told reporters.

Another officer said the idea of a truce with the rebels had come up but his solution was total destruction of the leftist movement that tried to overthrow the government April 5.

Lt.-Col. Cyril Ranatunga said: "We have learned too many lessons from Vietnam and Malaysia...We must destroy them completely. We have no choice."

Ranatunga heads a force of about 40 miles east of Colombo. He said this is the backbone of the rebel army.

Ranatunga said his forces had been raining mortar fire on the rebel strongholds, but "we cannot go in" because of rebel snipers, tree-trunk road blocks and sentries who warn insurgents to scatter and hide.

Inside the triangle are the rich graphite mines at Bogala, where rebels seized 12,000 sticks of dynamite, and large gasoline stores they are using to make firebombs.

Ranatunga said he doesn't like the idea of summary executions of rebels, but "otherwise they will go underground."

"The situation is much better, but by no means good," Ranatunga said.

Reliable estimates placed the number of insurgents at about 80,000. The rebels contended that the government of Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike was not moving fast enough toward socialism.

NDP Resolutions Committee Rejects Two Key Motions by Waffle Backers

OTTAWA (CP) — A committee preparing for the New Democratic Party convention this week has rejected two key resolutions sponsored by the NDP's nationalist Waffle group.

Melville Watkins, University of Toronto economist and member of the Waffle, said Sunday a subcommittee of the convention resolutions committee turned down resolutions that would have committed the NDP to the immediate nationalization of resource industries and financial institutions.

"Somewhat less strong" proposals were substituted, Mr. Watkins said.

Mr. Watkins is a member of the subcommittee that defeated the resolutions, which he supported.

The compromise resolution must be approved by the full resolutions committee before the convention opens Wednesday. The committee could also write its own resolution.

The resolutions committee is boiling down more than 400 resolutions submitted by constituency groups, unions and youth clubs for presentation to the convention.

The defeated resolutions would also have committed the NDP—"as its long-term goal" —to the public ownership of all major corporations "in the manufacturing, resources, financial, transportation and commodity distribution sectors of the economy."

Mr. Watkins said convention delegates still have a chance to pass the Waffle proposals.

They could vote at the convention to refer the compromise back to committee, and could recommend that the committee pass the Waffle resolutions.

"You certainly can't rule out the possibility that the Waffle resolutions will be passed."

The Waffle resolutions were submitted by constituency groups from Kingston and Don Valley, both in Ontario.

Mr. Watkins said the resolutions committee is "not necessarily representative" of the delegates.

It was dominated by party "elites," particularly union executives.

The party's union groups are considered generally opposed to the strong nationalism of the Waffle.

Waffle-backed resolutions on women and Quebec will also be ruled on by the resolutions committee.

One would have the NDP promote publicly-funded day-care, birth control and abortion clinics, remove abortion from the Criminal Code and tax exemptions for the cost of child care for working mothers.

The Quebec resolution includes "the right of the people of Quebec to national self-determination up to and including the right to form an independent Quebec state."

The resolution also calls on the NDP "to build a relationship" between socialists in Quebec and English Canada."

East Pakistan War Cost Heavy

RAWALPINDI, West Pakistan (AP) — The Pakistani army's crackdown in East Pakistan has cost the country at least $200 million in delayed aid and lost exports, Diplomats and foreign economists believe bankruptcy is near.

Foreign exchange reserves dropped to about $82 million this month and are melting at the rate of about $20 million a month, threatening sharp curtailment in imports. This would starve factories dependent on imported raw materials, especially in West Pakistan, which is more industrially advanced than the East.

The United States has held up signing the annual commodity loan agreement which in the 1969-70 fiscal year amounted to about $30 million. Britain is holding about $45 million in aid and Japan has suspended $40 million in economic assistance, including 10 million for reconstruction in the area of East Pakistan devastated by last November's cyclone which killed at least 300,000 persons.

Aid experts believe the country's development program, especially in heavily populated East Pakistan, has been set back at least a year. The military struck in the midst of the construction season in the East where the monsoons starting in June bring projects to a virtual halt for three months.

Foreign economists estimate that the virtual halt of exports from East Pakistan will mean a drop of about 10 per cent in export earnings for the fiscal year ending in June. This would be a loss of about 555 million.

With exports at a virtual standstill for two years and imports rising, Pakistan already was facing one of its deepest balance-of-payments deficits.

The deficit in the third quarter of 1970 amounted to $90 million, compared with $40 million in the second quarter and about $200,000 in the same period of 1969.

Informed sources say efforts to get standby assistance from the International Bank have met with a "cold response." World Bank sources said that response probably would continue as long as "politics is given consideration over economics" and defence is given priority over development needs.

The sources said the government spends between $100 million and $200 million annually on military imports, including fuel, and plans to double the amount in the new year.

Defence took more than $600 million in the last year's budget, about 55 per cent of the total expenditure.

Model Changes Create Monopoly Says Nader

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader said Sunday the American auto industry's annual model changes create a monopoly costing buyers as much as $600 per car.

He said he and members of the Yale Law School Journal are urging the Federal Trade Commission to break up the industry or at least declare a moratorium on the annual style changes.

"The automobile industry's annual style change has had its intended effect: All competitors but four have been exited from the American industry, while the inoperatably high cost barriers created by frequent restyling have excluded lasting entrants for almost 50 years," said Nader in a letter to FTC Chairman Miles W. Kirkpatrick.

The style changes also permit the industry to avoid pollution improvements or safety improvements and give the automakers a stranglehold on the replacement parts market, said Nader and the Yale students.

River Race Competitor Is Drowned

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An afternoon of frivolity turned into tragedy Sunday for the sponsors of the Beaver River "River Rat Race" at Thornbury, Ont. when a Barrie man drowned.

The victim was one of a crew of four that got into trouble during the race of home-made boats and costumed paddlers which officials say is run each year when the Beaver River waters are fastest, highest and coldest.

Kerry Hodge, 22, was one of at least 34 persons to die accidentally across Canada during the weekend, as shown by a Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday night, local times.

Of the total, 27 died in traffic accidents, four drowned, one died in a fire and two in miscellaneous mishaps.

The weekend death toll brought to 43 the number of persons killed on the highways during the last week. At least 681 persons have died in traffic accidents since Jan. 1.

Quebec led the weekend fatality count with 15 deaths, 13 in traffic accidents, one fire victim and one drowning victim.

There were 11 weekend accidental deaths reported in Ontario, including eight in traffic, two drownings and a man struck by a train. The highway deaths included two double fatalities near Midland and Woodstock.

British Columbia reported four accidental deaths, three in traffic and one in a fall, and Alberta had one road death and one drowning.

Manitoba and Newfoundland each reported one highway death, while Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan reported fatality-free weekends.

The survey does not include industrial accidents, known suicides or slayings.

Smokers of Pot May Be Damaged Psychologically

CHICAGO (AP) — Two psychiatrists say they have found that young people who smoke marijuana in moderate to heavy amounts may develop serious psychological problems.

But two other leading psychiatrists expressed doubts about their report, published in the April 19 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"I think they and the AMA should be put in jail," said one critic, Dr. Solomon H. Snyder, professor of psychiatry and pharmacology at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore.

He and Dr. Richard C. Pillard, associate professor of psychology at Boston University, questioned whether the study presented sufficient evidence to prove a direct connection between marijuana smoking and mental illness.

The authors of the report, Dr. Harold Kolansky and Dr. William T. Moore of the Philadelphia Association for Psychoanalysis, presented their observations of 38 young patients who used marijuana and who, they say, psychologically had shown no signs of mental illness.

Kolansky and Moore reported on 20 males and 18 females, ages 13 to 24. Most smoked marijuana two or more times a week and smoked two or more marijuana cigarettes each time.

"These patients consistently showed very poor social judgment, poor attention span, poor concentration, confusion, anxiety, depression, apathy, passivity, indifference, and often, slow and slurred speech," they reported.

"Sexual promiscuity was frequent, and the incidence of unwanted pregnancies among female patients was high, as was the incidence of veneral disease."

The psychiatrists said they concluded that their study "demonstrates the possibility that moderate-to-heavy use of marijuana" in the young without predisposition to serious mental illness may lead to mild to severe mental disturbances.

New Features In Visual Arts Display

By SUSAN KORAB
Staff Reporter

The visual arts display, one of the four events connected with Artsfest '71 will be distinguished by a number of innovations this year. For the first time in the five-year history of the festival, the display will include a special junior section, featuring the work of student artists under the conversanship of Fred Hiemersma, head of the art department at Centennial Secondary School. This section will exhibit the work of students from nursery school level to the post-secondary stage.

Discussing the visual arts display which is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. on April 21 at the Ben Bleecker auditorium, designer Paul Bernard was enthusiastic about this feature and pointed out that it will be a fantastic opportunity for the younger generation, brought up on television, movies and photographs, to see an original work of art by their contemporaries. He also stated that the Hastings county board of education has given its blessing to the project. Some schools in neighboring communities have agreed to bus school children to the show.

Also, for the first time this year, the show is being coordinated by more than one designer. Paul Bernard, who is in over-all charge of designing the exhibition, will be assisted by Oscar Benin and Linda Mustard. Roy Higgins will be the lighting designer.

A third first is the fact that it is being held in Ben Bleecker auditorium. This is because the display will represent the combined efforts of a greater number of participating groups than before and consequently will be bigger than in previous years. These groups include the Belleville Art Association, the Belleville Camera Club, the communications department of Loyalist College and the Hastings County Historical Society.

The Belleville Art Association will hold a juried show of oil, water color and acrylic paintings. These works were juried by Fred Schonberger, a Kingston artist and recipient of several awards, whose works are exhibited in nine Canadian galleries. The crafts section will feature pottery, sculpture, leather work, weaving, hand-hooked rugs and pieces of fabric art such as batik and tie-dyeing.

The communications department of Loyalist College, in connection with the Belleville Camera Club will contribute a number of mounted photographs, slides and movies. This is the freshman year for Loyalist College to be actively involved in the visual arts display. A number of mobiles, arranged to form a maze with slides projected on each will form a spectacular entrance to the whole show. Students of Loyalist College are involved in this project and are preparing the slides for this. From this entrance, the whole exhibition will be broken up into various sections with a different background for each.

The Hastings County Historical society is also participating in the show because of the close connection between history and art. Their contributions will include a number of antique pieces of pottery, furniture and silver. The idea is to show historical and contemporary works of art side by side.

Each year, the visual arts display features a guest artist who has attained professional status. This year's guest is Audrey Davies, a versatile artist whose works include ceramics, pottery, fabric art and paintings in acrylic and water colors.

A "swinging" refreshment area will be operated by the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority.—

Dagner Paul Bernard has high praise for the calibre of all the works that will be exhibited at the display.

He is confident that the quality of the whole display will be equal to that of similar shows in Toronto and Montreal. He feels that it is the responsibility of the Quinte Arts Council sponsor of the show, to show the residents of this area that there is much talent here and that one need not necessarily travel long distances to see works of art of a high standard.

Mr. Bernard also emphasized that the Quinte Arts Council is making a special effort to reach out to neighboring communities such as Trenton and Picton and to stimulate their interest in exhibiting their works in Belleville. He pointed out that the Quinte Arts Council exists for the benefit of the whole Quinte district and is by no means confined to Belleville alone. He stated that one of the dreams for the future is to hold a travelling exhibition which will tour all the centres in the area.

Trenton PUC Seeks Land

TRENTON (Staff) — The Public Utilities Commission is interested in the purchase of property in northwest Trenton for construction of a new electrical substation and auxiliary water tower.

At Friday's commission meeting, decision was made to approach Marathon Realty, the real estate division of CP Rail, concerning possible acquisition of a tract of railway land just below the CP tracks to the west of Fourth Avenue.

The 150-by-270-foot lot is largely a ravine but rises to a considerable height in one portion. Commissioners feel the land is unsuitable for the building of domestic housing units.

Commissioner Charles Hilton suggested even more land be sought to cater for the northwest quarter of Trenton could be stored underground rather than in a water tower. However, cost estimates of this appeared prohibitive.

Provision made in the 1971 capital works budget for a new electrical substation in the west end of Trenton called estimates for the next five-year period include construction of the tower.

Trucks Said Fouling Water

TRENTON (Staff) — Public Utilities Commissioner Charles Hilton contended at Friday's PUC session here that spillage from trucks passing the large recharge pond at Tremur Lake Reservoir is helping to foul up the town's water supply.

Recently the PUC paid $4,000 to have filters adjacent to the pond cleaned out — they were being clogged with sand.

"It did not all come off the road," said Mr. Hilton. Some, he added, had come from trucks on the road past the pond as a shortcut from a gravel pit in the area. "It is all right to be good people but we should not have to pay for it," he concluded.

Consultants from International Water Supply Company and Gore and Storrie coming to town Monday will be asked for suggestions. The road may be closed to the trucks.

A Critical Eye

Fred Schonberger, the Kingston artist who was chosen to jury (select for exhibition) all works of art submitted for the visual arts display scheduled to open at Ben Bleecker Auditorium on Wednesday, examines an unusual collage made of pieces of brightly colored carpet. The display is one of the four events connected with Artsfest '71 sponsored by the Quinte Arts Council.

Deviates Attacked

Surrender Followed Screams of Anguish

Debris May Be Boobytrapped

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The signs of violence remain in Kingston penitentiary, a back-ground to reports of prisoner atrocities and the suspicion that bellious prisoners set electrical boobytraps before rendering.

Prison authorities refused today night either to confirm ntiary reports from other ph sources that some of the Prisoners injured during the today rebellion which ended Sunday had been sexually as- saulted and brutally mutilated.

Ed Babcock, assistant ward, also refused to confirm a rept that 20 convicts, de- scribed as hard-core prisoners, were ken in leg irons and handcu ts to nearby Millhaven maximu m-security prison Mon- day nig. Several busloads had been tak en to Millhaven since Sunday, but none of the convicts transferred earlier were leg irons.

Other officials said the hard- core convicts would be segrega- ted at the new prison until po- lice complete their investigation of the slaying and assaults at Kingston.

Meantime, city police check- ing the wreckage in the main cell block for clues to the death of convict Brian Ensor, 25, were forced to use portable lights be- cause of fears that electrical wires had been attached to metal objects.

The five guards held hostage from 10:30 p.m. Wednesday until the surrender of the 200 prisoners Sunday remained in seclusion with their families at undisclosed locations.

Only one of the five, Joseph Adelard Vallier, 47, of Napanee, Ont. was available for an inter- view Monday.

He said he and his fellow hos- tages were convinced they would never get out of Kingston alive, although they were never mistreated.

Rumors that as many as four more bodies had been found in the darkened debris-strewn cell block were denied officially after a head count of prisoners and those convicts transferred Sunday to other federal prisons in Ontario.

A total of 338 of the original complement of 641 prisoners re- mained in secure areas of the prison not taken over by the rebels.

City detectives under Insp. Wilfrid Kealey used flashlights and portable spotlights late into the evening in a search for clues to the death of Ensor, whose body was found stuffed into an air duct.

John Mahoney, regional direc- tor of federal penitentiaries, said power had been shut off in the cell blocks because "we strongly suspect they've wired railings and broken bars and pipes as boobytraps."

Beer Strike Appears Unlikely

"Things are progressing very well," a mediator spokesman said at 8 a.m.

The mediation talks between representatives of the Ontario government, brewery employ- ees and the major brewing com- panies were designed to halt a strike by 3,000 provincial brew- ery workers.

Mediators are W. H. Dickie, director of conciliation and me- diation services for the Ontario labor department, and John Hooper.

Haggart Tells Of Revolt's End

TORONTO (CP) — Columnist Ron Haggart of the Telegram, who spent nearly three days inside Kingston penitentiary negotiating with 500 rampaging prisoners, told today of the methodical murder of convict Brian Ensor of Hamilton.

It happened early Sunday morning when a group of pris- oners herded the undesirables among them—child rapists, sexual deviates and a man who had fried his own child to death—into the main floor of the cellblock.

Haggart wrote:

"They paraded the undesir- ables to the main floor of the dome, tied them to chairs, then chained their out- stretched arms into a circle of men, pulling the circle tight like a gruesome boy scout campfire.

"Then throwing blankets over the heads of the men in the circle, a group of inmates took clubs, perhaps the steel bars from their cell steel door, and began methodically to beat the undesirables to death."

Haggart wrote that he was in the hospital wing while the beatings were going on and he could hear the screams of an- guish down a long corridor and through a solid steel door.

Ensor, 26, was killed on the spot, Haggart said. Ensor had been in prison since he was 18 when he was sentenced to an indefinite term of preventive detention as a dangerous sex- ual offender after conviction of indecently assaulting two young girls, aged eight and 10.

Haggart's account of his time inside the prison begins when the negotiating "citi- zens' committee" was called in Thursday night, about 24 hours after the riot started and the convicts took over the recreation hall and main cell- block of Canada's largest prison.

When the screams were heard before dawn Sunday morning, Haggart said the prisoner's committee negotiat- ing with the citizens ran back inside the cellblock. They then returned and told of the car- nage.

Haggart said the moving force on the negotiating team was convict Barry MacKenzie who "fought to regain control and leadership."

"At 10 minutes to five Sun- day morning he telephoned me from the dome to the hos- pital and asked for me. He asked me how much time they had to make a decision (about relinquishing the prison to authorities).

"I told him 5:15 and then I looked across the hall way and saw G. Arthur Martin (another member of the com- mittee). His lips were saying 'earlier.'

"I told MacKenzie a decision had to be reached by 5 a.m. He called again and I told

Convicts Staged Sadistic Show

KINGSTON (CP) — Ontario Chief Coroner Dr. H. B. Cotnam says he was told by injured con- victs that their torture by fellow prisoners during the rebellion at Kingston penitentiary was staged like a "Roman circus."

Dr. Cotnam, who interviewed six victims Monday in their beds at a nearby military hospi- tal, said it was a wonder only one man was killed.

The coroner said he was told that 11 sexual offenders and several others were taken to the centre of the main cellblock late Saturday night.

"Hundreds of inmates were leaning over the rail at each of the four levels," Mr. Cotnam said.

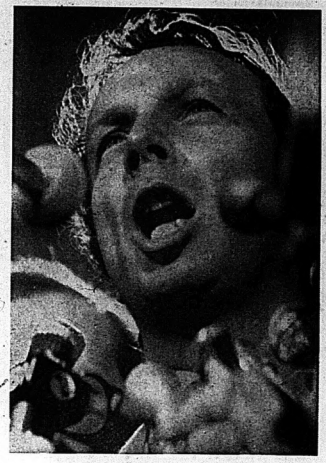
After midnight "the show began."

Mr. Cotnam said he was told that as each man was led into the "arena" he was punched then given a karate chop across the nose. Most had their noses broken, the coroner said.

Then each victim was led to one of the chairs and draped in a white altar cloth originally be- longing to the prison chapel, while mock charges were read against him.

While the mob screamed ap- proval, he was beaten across the knees with a steel bar until he doubled over in agony. Then he was clubbed across the face and finally on top of the head.

The beatings went on all night, the coroner said he was told.



"All those I interviewed were sure that they would be killed."

The body of Brian Ensor, 26, of Hamilton, was found stuffed in an air duct.

Pakistani Refugees Pouring Into India

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — The exodus of refugees from East Pakistan continued to mammoth proportions today with about 100,000 reported to have crossed into India's West Bengal state alone during the last 72 hours.

The latest influx brought to 200,000 the number of refugees in the state since fighting broke out in East Pakistan be- tween West Pakistani forces and East Bengali secessionists almost a month ago, said B. B. Mondal, West Bengal commissioner for refugee relief and re- habilitation.

The increased flow of people seeking refuge in India comes amidst a major drive by West Pakistani troops, appar- ently intended to close East Pakistani's borders and cut off escape routes.

Mondal told reporters that most of the refugees were Moslems. About 60 per cent were women and children and the remainder largely old or sick people.

Meanwhile, the Press Trust of India news agency reported more gains by secessionist forces of Bangla Desh (Bengali nation) after heavy fighting in widely scattered areas of East Pakistan.

Radio Pakistan said the Pakistan government had made a strong protest to India over what it called an unpro- voked attack by armed Indians three miles inside Pakistan territory.

The radio charged that Indian artill- lery had supported the raid which took place Friday on a border post not far from Quasba.

Agnew Worried by Ping-pongers' Trip

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew has expressed concern privately over the American table tennis team's visit to China—and about possible ad- verse effects U.S. overtures to- ward Peking might have on the Nationalist government on Tai- wan.

Agnew Monday told Republi- can governors here for a confer- ence he is concerned by over- emphasis on the Chinese tour by the 15 American athletes, and about the way their journey was reported in the United States.

"Basically, he was saying some of the things that were praised in China were things that could be criticized here," one Republican governor said.

Agnew also was quoted as ex- pressing doubts about some as- pects of current U.S. efforts at improved relations with China during a Sunday night conversa- tion with a small group of Re- publicans. One man who was there said the vice-president emphasized then that the United States still has commitments to the Nationalist government.

There seemed in Agnew's re- ported comments evidence of differences with President Nix- on's China policy. But at the same time, one Republican said Agnew also had declared his ap- proval of administration efforts to improve U.S. trade relations with Peking.

At a Monday luncheon, Agnew questioned the emphasis put on the table tennis tour and at the reactions of the U.S. travellers. He noted one of the Americans had described a 15-square-foot room as the apartment of a Chinese family, implying ap- proval when the same quarters in the United States would have been criticized as evidence of poverty.

Decision at Dawn

him they had two minutes to make a decision. Time passed and at 3:07 MacKenzie called again.

Haggart said he told MacKenzie it was dawn "and the army always attacks at dawn."

MacKenzie then told Haggart, the men were being called to a meeting and quashing of the rebellion hinged on getting 60 prisoners to agree to come out immediately.

If the prison meeting refused, MacKenzie said, "there's no alternative, that's the final thing."

MacKenzie and the citizens' committee worked out a plan to transfer the prisoners and release the five guard hostages as the men were transferred.

The final proposal presented to the prisoners was:

"Three hundred inmates will be transferred by Monday. The hostages will be released from time to time as it becomes safe to do so. In the inmates' view, this will mean one hostage will emerge at the conclusion of the transfer of each group of 60 inmates with the last hostages to emerge with the last group."

The promise in return, Haggart said, was that there would be no armed invasion.

MacKenzie presented the plan to the prisoners and then returned to the committee, telling it he could not get a decision from the men. Some were holding out for amnesty, many refused to believe the promises of no invasion.

MacKenzie asked for another half hour and Haggart told him:

"Barry, I can give you no guarantee of what will happen in the next half hour. . . . I suggest in the next two minutes you get some decision."

Haggart said he then could hear someone in the background telling the men: "You have two minutes."

MacKenzie and Haggart were hooked up by telephone to Doug Chinnery, deputy warden who had another telephone connection to John Mooney, regional director of penitentiaries.

"And so, through the chain of communication through Chinnery through the equally sensible John Mooney, I was able to pass the message: They want to get out 60 men at a time and they understand how that operates with the hostages.

"And then back to MacKenzie again: 'Can you assure me this is the unanimous, or almost unanimous decision so there'll be no fights when this starts?'

"And then back to Chinnery: 'MacKenzie assures me a hostage comes out with each 60 men.' I heard him talking and his voice could be heard clearly, there was no noise in the background."

"MacKenzie says there will be no fights as the inmates leave, that's his opinion.

"Then Chinnery wanted to know if the men were prepared to be moved to any location and I offered him my opinion—how could I possibly know, I could only judge from MacKenzie's mood on the other end of the line—that the men were prepared to go any place and fights would not break out on that issue."

Then another major crisis erupted.

Haggart said about 200 men crowded down the corridor from the dome to the protest steel door leading to the hospital wing, the first free territory in their line of flight.

"The door was sprung open, inwards into the prison, and into the melee Prof. Desmond Morton (another member of the committee) was knocked to the ground.

"The guards got the door closed, stuck their guns through the small square window which had been there a long ago and fired (I think it was) three shots toward the ceiling of the cell block.

"I could hear the shots resounding in the hallway and I could hear them as I spoke to the telephone over MacKenzie's end. Over the phone, I heard someone say 'they're firing blanks.'

"I asked a guard about this afterwards and he said they carry only live ammunition."

Haggart said MacKenzie went down the corridor back to the block to keep the prisoners under control. He said he told MacKenzie that unless the hostages are released and the men started to leave the cellblock "the deal's off."

The men have started to filter out and the hostages were released one by one. Penitentiary officials announced the rebellion was over at 6:37 p.m. Sunday night.

Trenton Faces Dump Decision

TRENTON (Staff) — Facing a deadline for closing down the hayshore garbage dump here, clerk O. W. Larry told council Monday he recommends entering a contract with an established commercial dump located between Trenton and Belleville.

Cost for using this site would be about $25,000 a year for a minimum five-year period, he said.

"It is unlikely we could get anything of our own under way in less than six months, and we recommend acceptance of this," he added.

Arthur Campbell, the town engineer, said it may take considerably longer for Trenton to find an alternative.

The Department of Energy and Resources Management has given the town instructions to shut down its present sanitary landfill in Centennial Park by June 1. Here leagons are filled with refuse to claim land from the Bay of Quinte.

Mr. Campbell told council a representative of the department is coming to Trenton to discuss the town's garbage disposal needs.

In the meantime the town faces considerable problems with the present site in the park. Councillor Ted Parker said he had driven his car through the park Saturday and noticed a pile of uncovered garbage on the dump and papers blowing out of the area.

Mr. Parker suggested "people must be informed they must cover the garbage as it cannot blow. We have got to find a way to keep this from happening again."

REAL ESTATE
CAN A REALTOR SAVE YOU MONEY?

ED McKINNEY
J. E. McKINNEY
Realty Ltd.

There are many ways experienced Realtors guide their clients to make substantial savings and avoid costly mistakes.

One vital point is the appraisal of the property. Unless the valuation is close to the true market value, the sale may become extensively dragged out and could eventually mean the seller will have to take a lower-than-market price to effect a sale if the property acquires an image of being undesirable to buyers.

A buyer without a current knowledge of property values in a locality must rely on the knowledge and integrity of a reputable Realtor for guidance to avoid paying too much.

But frequently, the most valuable part of a Realtor's service to his clients is his knowledge of development trends in his community.

Is a particular area now zoned for single family dwellings on the brink of being rezoned? The knowledge could have a drastic effect on the eventual value of the property. Is a particular section being by-passed as the community develops? Or going downhill?

One-way Street Debate Continu

PICTON (Staff) — Bumper - to - bumper traffic on Picton's Main Street indicates that people are "stopping and shopping" according to Bernard Hepburn, president of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Hepburn recalled that during his period of employment with a downtown hotel he was always encouraged by a heavy traffic flow.

Picton reeve Albert Pirsch told chamber directors Monday that he is now studying a report outlining possible solutions to Picton's traffic problems but as yet has made no report to town council concerning Main Street street. He said that the 1967 report included four schemes, the last of which is termed the cheapest and most beneficial solution to the town's traffic congestion. This plan does not call for a one-way street but does advocate parking bans in certain areas of Main Street. Off-street parking lots are recommended to compensate for limited Main Street parking.

Picton merchant Jesse Mason, present during yesterday's meeting called the idea of a one way street in Picton "ridiculous." He said that the streets adjacent to Main Street are "not up to the extra flow of traffic."

Mr. Mason also observed that a questionnaire published in the local paper seeking public opinion of a one - way street was problematic. He noted that it was not stated whether the proposed one way street would run up, down or crosswise. Response to this questionnaire and among the 81 persons who answered it, 42 opt one - way street while ored the plan.

Mayor Calls for Radical Reforms for Police

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Changes in rank, uniforms, arbitration and negotiation policies and training for police officers should be reached by the end of this year, Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott, president of the Municipal Police Governing Authorities, told a dinner meeting of city, provincial and railway police last night.

"I hope, before the end of this year, regardless of who is there (following a possible provincial election), that we will have change," said Dr. Scott.

He told local policemen that their role in society was undergoing change, and this change was for the good. The officer is being returned to a position where the public can have a "sense of identity with the policeman on the beat." In larger centres, we're "getting back to a unit basis . . . the officer is going to be there for most of his police days, with the exception of promotion. The public will identify with him and get to know the man."

Coupled with this changing face of law enforcement, is a standard for the highly skilled officer. Mayor Scott said a "fier reassessment. the policeman's position didn't "look just right.

"Are we putting him in an adverse position; should we have him on the four corners directing traffic and bawling people out?" The Mayor answered his own question: "No, I don't think we need that . . . the policeman is a professional.

"It will come in our day that a person will be placed on traffic duty not as a trained policeman," trained simply to fulfill a traffic officer's function. Mayor Scott also forecast the possible establishment of special officers to deliver summonses. "This would retain the image of respect for police forces in a professional capacity."

Mayor Scott said another matter under consideration was the method of arbitration. Negotiations "must be done in an adequate way," he advised.

"We may arrive at a method similar to the civil service, convenient for everyone concerned. Police are far too important to allow withholding of their services," such as recently occurred in Montreal. Upgraded forces are an ever-increasing concern for the Municipal Police Governing Authority and the Ontario Police Commission, said the MPGA's president. "We asked the Ontario Police Commission for a new police code in Ontario," he told representatives of city police, local OPP and CNR railway police forces.

The Ontario Police Commission advised the MPGA of lack of funds. Mayor Scott said, "all it will take will be the cost of two schools in any county. The holdup seems to be a problem of where the money is coming from . . . the attorney general or the Ontario department of education."

Local plans for upgrading of forces will start at Loyalist College. Belleville's mayor said courses on a pre-enlistment basis and courses for policemen are being arranged. "You learned it on the job, but there is so much professional work, they must have pre-job training . . . this is why there should be a great improvement in the police college.

"We don't care where the new college is . . . we're not involved in the political aspect of it," he said.

"We feel, in Belleville, that these professional people should have some education before hiring them. Police today are professionals and we want them to get professional pay but for this they should be trained. There is no other profession where he can get $7,000 to $8,000 and then get trained. There should be a decided course."

Other changes that might be made include changing rules for municipal representatives on police commissions. "There is a feeling that the federal judge should be a judge from another county jurisdiction; his being completely away from us may be better for police forces."

The mayor expressed concern for the policeman's changing role in society. He said the commissions and authorities wish to bring the officer closer to the people. "You are heading up a silent majority and sometimes people are too silent about what is going on, they sit back as a group. We read about people walking right by a policeman in trouble.

"The police are there to protect us and are helping us and we must help and work with them."

"We've got a crackerjack police force . . . one of the best. I get more congratulations on the police force than any other department in the city and it isn't without warrant.

Mr. Buckley, who was chairman of the banquet, said the Knights of Columbus, at their convention in Texas last year, asked their councils to initiate a program of recognition for enforcers of the law in their vicinities.

"We hope these thoughts we sponsor are being shared in the community."

Fair Winner

Jane Douglas, a Grade 13 student at Centennial Secondary School, took first grand prize at the 11th Annual Rotary Club Science Fair and Hobby Show last weekend. Her exhibit of plant viruses was developed on tomato plants to demonstrate the effects of tobacco mosaic virus and its effect on future agriculture development. Miss Douglas, Danny Dodge of Quinte Secondary and Michael Barrett, BCIVS; will receive an all-expense paid trip to compete in the Canada-wide Science Fair at the University of Alberta, Edmonton, in May.

Warkworth Programs Described to Rotary

Less than 30 per cent of Canada's jail population of 7,100 is held in institutions like Kingston penitentiary. The remainder are in medium and minimum security establishments and release centres and the emphasis in the latter is on educational and sociological training aimed at helping prisoners take their place in society again, Warden W. Westlake of Warkworth penal institution told Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

Mr. Westlake said the primary responsibility was the protection of society and he noted that even amid the trouble at Kingston, "external" security was maintained outside the penitentiary. At the same time he was critical of press reporting of prison life generally, with overemphasis on the shortcomings of prison operations.

The warden said that with new programs being tried out, there were bound to be some failures. For instance, he told of an article in a Toronto newspaper mentioning the complaint of an inmate that he had not received a university education while in prison. He had neglected to tell the newspaper that he had only received a Grade 4 education at school. The comprehensive programs being pioneered at Warkworth, however, could be adopted in similar institutions across the country. Inmates have their own rooms, common rooms, recreational facilities and so on. The custodial staff remains the same throughout training so that inmates may benefit from this degree of social contact and supervision.

Prisoners are eligible for parole after a year and this was one of the most criticized departments of the prison service. "We have a lot of experienced people — but none of them are working for us. We get a lot of well-meaning advice . . ."

Regarding education programs, Warden Westlake said that generally speaking it was possible from the Warkworth staff of 203, and outside people they can call upon, to bring inmates up to Grade 13 standard.

Receives Award

A Belleville man, George Pugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ernest Pugh of 111 Palmer Road, is one of 30 young Canadians to be awarded fellowships for post graduate study in transportation at Canadian universities.

The fellowships, awarded by the Canadian Transport Commission, are to increase the number of trained professionals entering the transportation field and to help persons with practical experience in the industry who would find it difficult to return to university.

Mr. Pugh is one of 24 receiving $3,600 annually for study at the master's degree level.

There is an occupational training program and, during the past year, 34 out of 30 inmates graduated from a course in communications. Another dozen left for a bench assembly training program at a Toronto aircraft plant and six of them have obtained jobs in this field. Some courses are also available to prisoners through Trent University, and Loyalist College in Belleville may also be involved in this way in future. A further dozen inmates are taking a course at Queen's University.

Temporary absence privileges of up to three days are also afforded inmates in the medium security penitentiary. More than 900 such absences were granted last year with a 99.2 success rate. They represented nearly 2,000 free days for inmates.

Unemployment To Continue-Pitman

TRENTON (Special) — Unemployment problems will be with us as long as technology continues to eliminate jobs for the working force, Walter Pitman, MPP for Peterborough told the Quinte district Labor Council here Saturday night.

The controversial NDP representative at Queen's Park was the guest speaker at the council's first anniversary observance since Belleville and Trenton councils amalgamated last year.

But there is a solution for bringing about more security in the end, Mr. Pitman stated.

He emphasized that trade union members and other citizens had a choice to replace the welfare society, "the kind we have now", with what he called "a learning society" so there would be some work for all.

The transition, he said, could mean early retirements and holidays with pay, he referred to as sabbaticals, for six months at a time. Away from the job the worker would indulge in self development and improvement as a way to make the traditional work pattern something to relish instead of looking at it as 20 years of hard labor. Mr. Pitman stressed the different society should be developed without violence.

The bright spot for job opportunities was tremendous number of services that required the attention of human needs, Mr. Pitman pointed out. And medical services were among leaders responsible for creating new opportunities, he added.

On the other hand, communications where you'd certainly think more people could expect employment are cutting back due to the technological change. Bell Canada for example, had maintained a 10.7 per cent annual increase in job opportunities but now has dropped back to four per cent. Other companies straining to reduce labor costs are following suit.

SOS Flight To No Avail

PICTON (Staff) — Morley Norton, 55, a lighthouse keeper at False Ducks Island, was pronounced dead on arrival at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital yesterday after a helicopter mercy flight brought him to the mainland.

Coroner Dr. C. R. Richmond pronounced Mr. Norton dead when he was taken to the hospital from the Canadian Coast Guard helicopter that landed in the adjacent Proctor Lewyl plant parking lot.

A downer on the island radioed for help when Mr. Norton apparently suffered a heart seizure. The SOS was relayed to the Coast Guard through CFB Trenton's Search and Rescue Unit.

Mr. Norton is survived by his wife, the former Marjorie Harvey, by a daughter, Mrs. Ian (Donna) MacLean, Germany and by three sons, Harvey of Zephyr, Ontario, and Robert and Chris, Picton.

Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday from the Hicks Funeral Home, Picton with Rev. R. F. Sherwin officiating. Interment will be in Cherry Valley Cemetery.

Teachers Now Represented

The Civil Service Association of Ontario is now certified as the official bargaining agent for community college teachers in Ontario.

College teachers until now have had no bargaining agent to represent them in negotiations with the College of Regents in Toronto. With the certification of CSAO, a master contract can be drawn up, covering all community college teachers in the province. However, some items will be negotiated locally.

Back Yard Lake A Problem

A stream that is "usually nothing more than a trickle" has now turned into a miniature lake, claims Jay Ross of 572 Sidney St. "I have an average of three feet of water in my back yard," he said this morning.

Mr. Ross claimed that in past years, drainage had been adequate and no problem of this kind had been present. He contended also that the small stream behind his home had been blocked off since a new subdivision had been built.

Contractors for the new subdivision say they have fulfilled their engineering obligation and that the water problem is "completely in the hands" of Mr. Ross.

The first occurrence of flooding was last fall, said Mr. Ross, and at that time the city official was approached.

This spring when his back yard became a pond, Mr. Ross once again went to council to see if there was anything that could be done to relieve the nuisance.

Wilbur Purcell, city engineer, said today any person is permitted to raise his land to a sufficient level to stop the flow of water onto his property.

Mr. Purcell said a natural waterway cannot be blocked but that the creek running behind the property belonging to Mr. Ross was "definitely not a natural waterway."

Mr. Purcell said that the city was not liable for the drainage problem.

Barely Noticed

Quebec Premier Bourassa is reported to have been given a heavy security guard for his visit to Paris, presumably because of the possibility of FLQ terrorism or of similar initiatives by French sympathizers. In Britain, however, it was different. According to Montreal Gazette writer Gordon Pape, as far as the press and public there were concerned Mr. Bourassa might as well have been on the planet Jupiter. In this era we recall a recent complaint of Senator Gratton O'Leary that Canada gets little play in UK newspapers. For instance, he cited the fact there had been no mention of provincial election results in Nova Scotia.

Well maybe we shall just have to get accustomed to the fact that while we are prominent enough in the Commonwealth we are not exactly a world power, and that while we are done to sound off mostly about other people's affairs (South Africa comes to mind), we really should be concentrating more on putting our own house in order. Oh yes, we occupy the world's second largest land mass, but we have only 20 million or so people and do not have fingers on bombs which can decide the fate of the world one way or another.

When the FLQ thing faded from world headlines, Quebec — and Canada to a large extent — lapsed back into the international shadows. Let us blow our own trumpet by all means, but let us also know our place.

Spring Warmth

Well, how about these warm Spring days. Any complaints? No, of course not. But we have always been puzzled in a way about the sun as an energizer. We know it is that, if for no other reason than that it makes everything and everyone look good. But when it gets really hot one feels lifeless, played out, and one thinks back to those exhilarating below zero days of January.

But enough of such heresy! Visually, the countryside these days is very acceptable. So too are the girls in their colorful Spring outfits. And you know how it is when the sun shines in their hair and it is blown by the wind. There was this girl by the post office and her hair was auburn, and it made us think of some words of one Margaret Prescott Montague in Twenty Minutes of Reality in which she describes the sensation of returning health. "I saw no new thing but I saw all the usual things in a miraculous new light . . . A nurse was waiting past; the wind caught a strand of her hair and blew it out in a momentary gleam of sunshine, and never in my life had I seen how beautiful beyond all belief is a woman's hair. . ."

Science Fair

Another Science Fair and Hobby show is over and it is good to reflect once again on these constructive initiatives of our young people and the adult community too.

For skill in the technical field, as well as the presentation of their exhibits, the students are to be highly commended. We think of the artistry of the Douglas exhibit, as well as its contents, and the wealth of knowledge and interest reflected in this and the other exhibits.

A young man from Prince Edward Collegiate in Prescott, incidentally, was busily engaged in breaking a sound film of the proceedings of the Douglas, a former Mayor of the Week from Centennial secondary school, and one of three winners who will go on to the National Science Fair in Edmonton, was one of his subjects.

For the Rotary Club, which sponsors the fair, it has been another successful communication opening.

Boredom

Families relaxing in a picnic atmosphere . . . a youngster with a pair of binoculars. That was the scene in the vicinity of Kingston penitentiary at the weekend.

You see the same sort of thing at accident scenes and at fires. People, with nothing in particular to do, and with little initiative, are drawn to these like flies.

Nothing to do, then along comes a happening such as this and there is instant rapport with a bored society.

It is a sad commentary on our affluent era when it can offer no more challenge to people than a place in the stands on a sunny Spring day outside a penitentiary.

As we noted in our two-part editorial on Communications, last Saturday: "Culturally, we are limited, the range of our thoughts, ideals and aspirations in a materialist environment often narrow. . ."

Sedition . . . Revolutionary Talk

How Much More Will Ottawa and the Public Tolerate?

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — You hear it so often, from so many people — not excluding a couple of federal Cabinet ministers — that it is perilously close to becoming a cliche.

What you hear, of course, is that something has gone terribly out of whack in Ottawa these days.

There is a change in the political atmosphere.

Possibly, at least from the small "c" viewpoint among all but a few of the Progressive Conservatives, most Creditistes and not surprisingly a considerable number of the Liberals, it could be seen as pollution of the political air.

One is the official indifference — in some Ottawa quarters actual accommodation — to militant self-confessed revolutionaries cruising at will across Canada preaching the doctrine of the violent overthrow of government from the student pulpits of the university campuses.

Though the Public Order Act continues in force — but only until the end of the month unless Parliament extends it or replaces it with new measures for control of violence — the country has been slipping back into a state of "who cares" mind.

Permissiveness is on the increase and militant partisans of the terrorist Quebec Liberation Front, who last October were either in jail or cowering in hiding, are taking to the campus platforms and the CBC television studios to boast of their extremism.

The Public Order Act, attacked in Parliament by such political oddballs as Prince Edward Island MP David Macdonald, many of whose Conservative colleagues publicly regard him as a New Democrat in transparent Tory disguise, has been allowed to slide quietly into disuse.

The real militant rip-off came recently when Jacques Larue-Langlois, a former CBC announcer from separatist - ridden Radio Canada in Montreal and a highly vocal advocate of what he himself calls violent revolution, was given some 20 inflammatory minutes of free — for him, but not the taxpayer — time on the same CBC's Ottawa television network station.

Picture it, Jacques Larue - Langlois, who had been charged anew with seditious conspiracy only a day or so before, sitting there before a CBC camera and microphone in full television viewing of the members of the federal Cabinet who had written the Public Order Act and persuaded Parliament to invoke it to smash the FLQ.

Last October, the CBC would not have dared to do it, and there are not many outrages against public taste and morality that it will not attempt, but surely this had to be one of them.

But October, the kidnapping of British diplomat James Cross and the kidnap-murder of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte was six months ago.

And although the FLQ terror had been undermining Quebec law and order, not to mention investment and employment through eight years of bombings, including the dynamiting of National Defence Headquarters in Ottawa, CBC calculated it could take the risk of televising Jacques Larue-Langlois's defiant call to revolutionary arms.

The CBC guessed correctly. In Cabinet nobody as much as raised an eyebrow. Not in public nor Parliament.

The CBC, wise in the ways of knowing how far to go — and a good bit further — understood instinctively, that since October times had changed.

But the law had not. And that is what should have counted.

Having done his revolutionary thing on CBC, Jacques Larue-Langlois, who was caught up in the sweep of FLQ arrests and still faces a charge, went out to Ottawa's Carleton University over which former Bilingualism and Biculturalism co-chairman Davidson Dunton presides, and carried on with the cause of, as he himself put it, "working at spreading the revolution throughout Canada."

And that, he told the Carleton undergrads, "is why I am here."

Was he a member of the FLQ? asked the student, suggesting he would not want an answer because, while officially seemed to disapprove of it, membership in the Quebec Terror was still unlawful.

Well, he was asked during his Ottawa appearances, what was his attitude towards the kidnap murder of Pierre Laporte?

"I haven't killed any cabinet minister," he said, adding "not yet."

Some of the students were almost ecstatic in their applause.

Some hissed him and insisted on an answer.

He got around that by explaining that as counter - force against what he called the massive violence of unemployment and oppression by society, the strangling of Pierre Laporte with his own tie-cord "was not bad, tactically."

Now how about that, John Turner?

Don't just stand there — slay something!"

Another Look at Population Problem

Quebec Le Soleil: A recent statement by the Governor-General of Canada on the necessity for mankind to limit population growth to ensure survival is perplexing. It recalls an old theory, which was popular in the last century, and which is in the process of regaining its vitality.

The theory of "Malthusianism," the doctrine of the Anglican pastor Malthus, according to which war, famine and all the other ills of mankind were caused primarily by excessive population growth and could be avoided only by strictly limiting births. . .

In the wake of fantastic developments of science and technology, the necessity of preventing the earth's population from growing too quickly has become a favored theme, and often-violent discussions have resulted as economic necessities and moral and philosophic dogmas clashed.

One cannot escape the fact that the figures are impressive. Throughout the world, improvements in living conditions and progress in medical sciences have led to a population increase which staggers the imagination. . . .

On the surface, the argument of the neo-Malthusians appears to contain some truth. If the number of consumers increases much more quickly than consumables, it is obvious that some day everyone will see his share reduced, perhaps to less than sufficient.

But this is only the appearance of truth.

The argument would hold only if the earth were like a strictly - limited field whose production was determined for all time. We know full well that much of the earth is not exploited or is insufficiently exploited. And we know very well also that that is not true of all countries.

Some regions, China and India, for example, indeed seem, under present conditions of production, to have reached the limits of their production. On the other hand, how many others are far from this situation. Latin America, which now has a population of 180 million, could sustain at least 600 million, according to calculations. It is the same in the United States and Canada, to speak only of them.

Youth, Sex and Drugs

Sherbrooke La Tribune: For several years . . . drugs have been talked about more and more, as the principal problem involving young people from 15 to 21 years old.

But it may well be that this problem has been dramatized. . . .

Curiosity should not be confused with problems among young people.

If youths between the ages of 15 and 21 are more interested than before in questions of drugs and sex, that does not mean in itself that these subjects represent problems as far as they are concerned.

Government Reorganization Bill's Tortuous Passage

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Many Liberals themselves say that the government mishandled the government reorganization legislation by making it an omnibus bill.

The opposition likes some features of the bill and objects to others. But because all features comprise a single package it has been forced, so far, to reject the entire bill.

The legislation creates new ministries of state and consequently more cabinet posts. It has been before the Commons for weeks but passage should ease when the House reconvenes Monday after the Easter break.

The government has agreed to place before the Commons for debate establishment of each new ministry of state to provide some check on their proliferation.

Some Liberal MPs blame Privy Council President Allan MacEachen, government House Leader, for the parliamentary delay over the bill. Others blame the cabinet. Others blame the civil servants who drafted it.

One prominent Liberal said the government could have gained wide and favorable publicity if it had split the bill into at least three separate pieces of legislation creating a ministry of the environment, another for urban affairs and housing and another for science.

There would have been opposition and public cheers for all three, he said. Lengthy nit-picking over the details in the omnibus bill—such as early retirement for some senior civil servants—would have been avoided.

Another leading Liberal agreed privately with Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and other Conservatives that the bill will result in considerable empire-building.

He estimated that creation of the new ministries will cost tens of millions of dollars.

If the Liberals have internal troubles with the reorganization bill, Mr. Stanfield is having more than enough political troubles with two of his Quebec MPs.

Roch LaSalle, Joliette, and Martial Asselin, Charlevoix, favor a deux-nations policy by the Conservatives. Mr. Stanfield does not.

Mr. LaSalle has even baited former prime minister John Diefenbaker in the Commons.

On April 2, Mr. Diefenbaker asked whether the oath of allegiance to the Queen has been changed for armed forces recruits.

Defence Minister Donald Macdonald said no.

A few minutes later, Mr. LaSalle said: "Since changes have taken place in the mentality of Canadians in the last few years, is it the minister's intention to introduce a change in the oath of allegiance to make it easier for soldiers to commit themselves only for and on behalf of the Canadian people?"

Mr. Macdonald did not reply.

Murray McBride, Liberal MP for Lanark-Renfrew-Carleton, says Prime Minister Trudeau has told the Liberal caucus that a key part of the Beaupre report has been discarded.

T. N. Beaupre of Montreal, president of Dominar Ltd., headed a special committee which recommended pay increases for MPs. But he also recommended an end to MPs' tax-free expense allowances.

The allowance increase with a third of an MP's $18,000 annual pay.

Mr. Trudeau has apparently decided to retain the tax-free feature.

A pay increase for MPs is still in the works but does not appear imminent. Some informants say the increase when it comes will be to $24,000 a year, including an increase in the tax-free portion to $6,000.

But other sources say the only increase will be for MPs' expenses.

Pupils Visit Science Centre In Toronto

Grade VI pupils of Marmora elementary schools paid a visit to the Science Centre in Toronto on Thursday, April 15.

This was arranged as an education project by the Marmora Chapter IODE, the respective school boards and principals.

The trip started shortly after 7 a.m. with approximately 85 students, three teachers, two members of the IODE and three other chaperones aboard the two buses. The Centre was reached at 10:15 after a short stop along the way to stretch legs and a chance to buy drinks for thirsty throats.

Busloads of children from all over Ontario seemed to arrive at the same time, but the capable staff at the Centre kept everything under control. As many as 15,000 people have visited the Centre on a single day.

The pupils saw and explored as many exhibits as was possible in their four-hour visit. They turned knobs to make things work, pushed buttons, peered through microscopes, listened in on recordings, saw themselves on TV, made a simulated landing on the moon in a LEM and had a wonderful time doing it.

The children particularly enjoyed a lecture by one of the staff members on the special clothing which had to be individually designed for each astronaut to wear in space. Each child received a sample of space food to take home with him.

The Science Centre was a Centennial project of the Province of Ontario and was intended as a gift that would teach people what the world is all about.

There is no admission charge made for groups of school children if reservations have been made; otherwise the price of admission to the Centre is $1. for adults, 50c for students and 25c for children and it's felt to be worth ten times that in educational value.

The women of the IODE work hard during the year to make this trip possible for the children. All they ask in return is that the children come home with a better understanding of the marvels of science.

Home And School News

QUEEN ELIZABETH SCHOOL

Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association held a meeting Tuesday. The featured speaker was Wayne Brooks, consultant for Outdoor Activities for Hastings County.

Mr. Brooks used slides to complement his speech. He said that "children learn best what they experience" and stressed the importance of stimulating interest in the world of nature beyond the limitations of books and classrooms.

He outlined some of the outdoor activities of the county; such as nature hikes, snowmobiling, trips to the sugarbush, Vanderwater Park, Upper Canada Village, the Royal Ontario Museum, and the Science Centre. These all help, he said in "the integration of man and his environment". A child who has seen oil erosion can better comprehend the necessity for conservation.

Outdoor activities stimulate communication and help society. There is so much to see and experience outdoors, that interest is stimulated and conversation is spontaneous.

Mr. Brooks urged that to study outdoor education further this summer, he said he was hopeful that the funds would be available to expand the present program of outdoor activities in the county.

George Botting, president, presented Mr. Taylor, on his retirement gift, a token of the Association's appreciation of unstinted encouragement and support as principal of Queen Elizabeth School.

Should Be High

An Eye for Detail

Audrey Davies, guest artist at this year's visual arts display which will open on Wednesday at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium, displays some of her creations, a few ornate bottles in stone, and fibreglass and clay. Mrs. Davies has also done paintings, collages, batik scarves and other ceramic creations, which will be shown at the exhibition.

Unique Exhibit by Guest Artist Adds to Visual Arts Display

A wide variety of objects d'art are currently being assembled at Ben Bleecker auditorium to please art lovers of the area who visit the visual arts display starting on Wednesday. Among these will be the works of Mrs. Audrey Davies, this year's versatile guest artist whose range of media includes earthenware, stoneware, fibre glass and clay. She also channels her creative impulses into batik work, tie dyeing and painting in acrylics and water colors.

A unique exhibit of hers will be a clay wall plaque with a textured background with clusters of miniature pots in different shapes standing out in relief. Mrs. Davies says she enjoys textures and loves pots because to her they are almost like people, each with its own character and physical features — fat pots, lean pots, happy pots, sad ones and so on.

Another interesting exhibit will represent a new experiment by Mrs. Davies — a number of bottles in a combination of clay and fibre glass. Ornate stoneware bottles, porcelain vases, some pieces of batik work and an unusual collage in leather will also be displayed as well as a number of paintings.

Mrs. Davies explains her love of clay as a medium by pointing out that it is such a natural, earthy medium which enables one to see things in three dimensions. She loves working with forms and textures and finds that the only restricting aspect of clay is that in her opinion, it does not lend itself to coloring. Although this is being done by some modern potters, she feels that painting clay would detract from its natural, earthy beauty. Clay, she commented is also the most permanent of all artistic media and much of mankind's history has been recorded in clay objects.

However, she revels in bright colors too and she expressed her fascination with them in her paintings, collages (which remind her of her grandmother's patchwork quilts), batik work and the dyed pieces. "It's great to be able to channel one's feeling for both color and texture" she says.

Mrs. Davies' interest in ceramics began 13 years ago when she attended classes organized by the Belleville Recreation Department. She enjoyed them so much, she taught pottery to adults, children and blind people and worked as a pottery instructor in school programs in Trenton and at BCIVS, Belleville. A professional potter obviously impressed with her work, advised her to go to summer school and perfect her technique. During the last eight summers she has studied under leading potters in Canada, the USA and Denmark.

Her first public showing was in Montreal in 1967 and since then her works have been shown many times in national exhibitions. Her work can be seen at the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto in Ceramics '71, a show that will tour Canada.

A member of the Canadian guild of potters, the East Central Art Association and the Belleville Art Association, she has won awards for pottery and painting.

Wedding Music Banned

VATICAN CITY (Reuter) — The Vatican has recommended that the traditional wedding marches of Mendelssohn and Wagner should no longer be used during Roman Catholic marriage services — on grounds they are out of date.

The recommendation was made by the Sacred Congregation for the Divine Worship, the Vatican body responsible for the liturgy.

Aside from the two wedding marches, it also mentioned Handel's Largo, Gounod's and Schubert's Ave Marias and Stradella's Aria Di Chiesa as being unsuitable.

NSA Enjoys Informal Event

The general meeting of Bay of Quinte Chapter, National Secretaries Association (Int.) was held April 13, at the home of Mrs. Eileen Gilbert, RR No. 1, Carrying Place.

An informal potluck dinner was served in the family room overlooking the rear patio and the Bay of Quinte and was thoroughly enjoyed by all in attendance.

Gabrielle Watkins, president, conducted the business session and with the aid of organizational charts pointed out to all members the importance of attending district and international conferences in order that the members may exercise their views on policy-making throughout the organization.

Helen Worrell, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the nominated slate of Officers for the coming year with elections to be held in May.

Iris Downing, chairman of the Education Committee, gave her report on the Seminar "Business Girls Care" held on April 3, 1971 at Centennial Secondary School and her report indicates a keen interest shown by business girls as well as management.

Marlene Phillips, chairman of Secretaries Week committee, gave an outline of planned activities for Secretaries Week with special emphasis on executive night to be held at the Four Seasons Hotel Wednesday, April 21.

A question and answer period was conducted by Gabrielle Watkins on qualifications needed and benefits received from serving on the executive and committees in the Chapter.

A sincere thank-you was extended to Eileen Gilbert, the hostess and to Barbara Miller who donated a cake beautifully decorated in N.S.A. colors of red and gold with a large NSA emblem centred on the top.

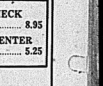
Show Devoted to Leather Fashions

FLORENCE, Italy (Reuter) — Florence has a centuries-old tradition of leather crafting, so it was only appropriate that much of the third and final day of showing of next winter's Italian ready-to-wear was devoted to fashions in leather.

There were ratskins, wolf's throat, dyed baby lambs horse hide, ferret, goatskin, elephant hide, lizard with vicuna, crocodile teamed with various furs, mouton shorn and dyed to look like beaver, coney painted in look like jaguar, and of course, suede in all the colors of the rainbow.

Roberto Cavalli stitched together striped and calico-printed suede squares into casual patchwork ensembles such as shorts and cowboy shirt, or green "denim" jeans and blazer.

Le Gardian took supple deer hide, dyed russet, and inserted crocheted horizontal stripes or patches in contrasting colors for slender redingotes or bulky catchmen's coats, always with the hem just below the knee.



Shorts by Studio M.H. were in shiny black patent under a matching jacket that zipped up the front with something of the effect of a body-hugging scuba diving suit.

WE'VE GOT ALL THE ANSWERS If Your Problem Is

CRABGRASS

Apply a pre-emergent chemical herbicide; a weed killer that acts on seeds as they germinate in the soil. Crabgrass is a summer annual weed, germinating in June, establishing as a mature plant in July, extremely productive in August, then dying out completely with the cool moist temperatures of September. Crabgrass fits its life cycle to the dormant cycle of all desirable lawn grasses.

The problem is that this particular weed can produce viable seeds in as few as 8 days from sprouting of the original plant. These seeds fall on the ground and despite cutting and raking, they lie dormant over the winter only to sprout and grow new plants in the first drought of the next season. Killing the mature plants in July or August is no good because the seeds are still planted ready for the next year's infestation.

The only way to control crabgrass is through the use of pre-emergent chemicals . . . thoroughly proven in farm use . . . which are applied as a protective barrier on the soil's surface during April and left undisturbed until the crabgrass seeds start to sprout in May and June. Apply as evenly as possible after the grass has been raked and cut once so that this barrier need not be disturbed again. Most popular crabgrass preventers' are from 90 to 99% effective.

We recommend an application of regular turf fertilizer now, then a treatment of crabgrass preventer (it comes mixed with fertilizer for ease of spreading) as a follow-up application any time in April or up to May 15th.

Prescription Prices Cut 8 Per Cent

TORONTO (CP) — The average cost of drug prescriptions at pharmacies participating in the Ontario government's Parcost plan has dropped eight per cent, Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence said Monday.

He made the statement in a news release that accompanied the second comparative price index of drugs listed under the Parcost (prescriptions at reasonable cost) plan.

The index, held up by delays in printing since early this month, compares prescription drugs by trade name and price.

Neither the new index nor the old contained any mention of amphetamines. Mr. Lawrence said general medical opinion in 1971 is that amphetamines are of "no use" in such areas as weight reducing, for which they were once popular.

In the first index 65 companies were considered and 48 listed; in the second, 68 were considered and 49 listed.

Because a company was dropped might not mean it was producing a drug of a lesser quality, he said.

Doctors using the index have found that some little-known brand of a certain drug may cost one-tenth as much as a well-known brand name drug.

If a doctor doesn't wish to use the index, he can prescribe a drug by its brand name and add the words "or CDI substitute" which will allow a pharmacy using the plan to substitute a cheaper brand.

About 70 per cent of the pharmacies in Ontario are Parcost members.

The new index revises prices listed in the first index in October, 1970. The next review of prices is scheduled for October.

The latest edition has been expanded to include 500 drugs—154 more than the first index—and covers drug categories representing 75 per cent of the cost of prescriptions written.

Mr. Lawrence said that since Parcost was introduced, the average cost of a prescription at a pharmacy participating in the plan has dropped to $3.71 from $4.03.

In other business Monday:

—Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP —Toronto High Park) asked Attorney-General Allan Lawrence to introduce a government policy a bill to compensate persons falsely charged with crime.

—The government will be in touch with Quebec over Ontario's controversial "chicken and egg" legislation which a Quebec minister has charged is "economic separatism."

—George Kerr, minister of energy and resources, said the government will "essentially" have power to veto new facilities planned by a United States company at International Falls, Minn., if power is provided by Ontario Hydro.

—Dentists who agree to practise in remote areas of the province should be able to rent equipped dental offices from the municipality or province, says William Ferrier (NDP—Cochrane South).

—Highways Minister Charles MacNaughton said his department is waiting for a report before deciding if a final ban on studded tires will become effective in Ontario April 30.

—Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence said he will study the use of hospital clinical facilities year-round as a means of training more doctors.

The government may not lower the age of majority to as low as 18 from 21, Attorney-General Allan Lawrence hints.

—Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests, said a new wilderness park area will be established near Sudbury "in the very near future."

The budget speech, scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday April 26, has been delayed to 8 p.m. Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough announced.

Davis Denies Rate Increases For Hydro Power Are Certain

TORONTO (CP) — R. M. Dillon, dean of engineering science at the University of Western Ontario in London, has been named executive director of a committee that will spend a year reviewing the financing, operations, structure and objectives of Ontario Hydro, Premier William Davis announced Monday.

The study was mentioned briefly in the speech from the throne last month.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon asked in the legislature whether the committee would advise the government on whether rate increases should be approved by the legislature.

Mr. Davis said the committee's mandate will be broad enough to include an examination of rates. But in answer to Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) he said he could give no assurances that increases would not be set during the year the committee is active.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, asked how Mr. Davis could reconcile his assurance in a letter to the United Electrical Workers of Hamilton that there have been no long-range commitments to increases while Hydro Chairman George Gathercole predicted them for the next three years and the chairman of Kingston Public Utilities Commission foresaw seven-per-cent increases annually until 1978.

"There's no indication there will be any increases," Mr. Davis said.

The committee will include the staff of the committee on government productivity which is studying functions of government agencies, representatives of Ontario Hydro and the Ontario Municipal Electric Association and businessmen.

It will be led by a five-man steering committee: chairman J. Dean Muncaster, president of Canadian Tire Corp.; Hugh A. Crothers, president of Crothers Ltd.; Robert B. Taylor, vice-president of Steel Co. of Canada Ltd.; Andrew Frame, president of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association, and Douglas J. Gordon, general manager of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Infant Survives

Sharla Johnson, 7 months, has survived hours of exposure in temperatures 50 degrees below zero and is responding well to therapy, although she has lost two fingers on her left hand. She was abandoned by her mother, Wilma, Jan. 13 near her Fairbanks, Alaska, home. Mrs. Johnson died that day of the same exposure. Now Sharla, being held here by Mrs. Robert Oligney, who has cared for her since her release from a hospital, is home with her father, Joseph, a sister and three brothers.

'Outsider' May Be Appointed To Board Reviewing 'Pen' Riot

OTTAWA (CP) — An "outsider" may be appointed to an official board of inquiry to review the riot at Kingston penitentiary and assess responsibility, Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer said Monday.

One prisoner was killed during the four days inmates controlled the institution and others were injured.

Asked whether charges would be placed, Mr. Goyer said he would await the report of the board of inquiry. If charges were warranted, they would be placed.

He absolved prison guards and troops of blame for the death and the injuries. Mr. Goyer, who personally ordered and supervised an operation Sunday in which control of the prison was regained, said there was "no use of force at any time" by guards or troops.

He ordered the operation early Sunday, after there were "visible signs that internal control among the 500 inmates was deteriorating rapidly. There apparently was some sporadic fighting among these inmates."

When prisoners took over the central control area and the two cell blocks late Wednesday, six guards were taken hostage. One was released Friday. None was harmed.

Mr. Goyer didn't reply directly to a question about "sexual atrocities" being perpetrated by prisoners.

"My impression was that the climate inside was worsening," he said. Many prisoners evidently were relieved to get out, he added.

He denied having advance warning that trouble was brewing at Kingston. A reporter interjected that guards had said officials were warned of storm signals.

"If they knew, they should have informed me," Mr. Goyer said, asking the guards to make themselves and their views known. "This is quite serious."

In a Commons statement, he said grievances by the prisoners "dealt in general terms with the whole area of police, judicial and correctional systems."

"Only in three minor areas were complaints made against the Canadian penitentiary service," Mr. Goyer, terming these complaints minor told New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas they were:

—That a prisoner had been beaten. Mr. Goyer said a knife was taken from the prisoner by force and his injuries were not serious.

—The assistant director had detained 15 days' remission of sentence granted to one prisoner. Mr. Goyer said this complaint was unfounded.

—Letters to members of Parliament were opened by prison officials and remarks added by the penitentiary director.

Mr. Goyer said he has been looking into this question since MPs themselves complained about the practice at a meeting of the Commons justice committee last month.

A committee representing the prisoners said last week that constant ringing of bells at Kingston and a work program that kept prisoners busy for no more than 90 minutes a day were among their complaints.

Mr. Goyer said vocational training wasn't among the grievances carried to him by a citizens' committee to which complaints had been put.

He noted he had recently established an inquiry into industrial training programs in maximum-security penitentiaries.

Perry Ryan (PC—Toronto Spadina) asked whether the new maximum security prison at Millhaven, to which many prisoners from Kingston have been transferred, contains electronic spying systems.

Mr. Goyer categorically denied this.

A major cause of the riot was said to be fears among prisoners that Millhaven would end the privacy they enjoyed at Kingston, an old prison full of odd corners.

Barry Mather (PC—Halifax-East Hants) said the board of inquiry should look into this question. Some prisoners could have been shown Millhaven in advance and allowed to report back to the others.

Either the fear of Millhaven was justified or there was abysmal lack of communications between prisoners and staff at Kingston.

Millhaven was supposed to replace Kingston by September as home for maximum-security prisoners in the Ontario region. However, the riot has pushed up the date.

Hostages Felt Certain They Would Be Killed

KINGSTON (CP) — Joseph Valiler, a prison guard for only six months, said Monday he and his fellow hostages were convinced they would never get out of Kingston penitentiary alive.

One of the last five hostages to be released, the 47-year-old father of five said the guards were never mistreated during the four-day insurrection which took the life of one convict, with 11 injured and the main cell block of the 120-year-old institution reduced to a shambles.

"They called us boss, sir and mister and never laid a hand on us," he said. "We got two sandwiches to their one and two cups of coffee for every one they had."

But on three separate occasions the guards were convinced that they were going to be killed.

The first, he said, was when they were seized by the convicts when the insurrection started Wednesday night.

"They grabbed my watch, ring, wallet and everything else but they didn't harm me."

Dressed in prisoners' clothing and kept in separate cells, the guards watched the prisoners tear the penitentiary apart.

The second time they feared they would be killed was when troops moved inside the prison walls. By that time, three of the hostages had been released and the others were kept together in a single cell, guarded by 15 convicts.

"We kept talking to them and talking to them, trying to calm them down and assuring them the troops wouldn't storm them."

The last time was Saturday night when troops moved in machine-guns and the prisoners were given a two-hour ultimatum to surrender.

"When they saw the machine-guns they went berserk and some of them dragged 14 child-molesters.

"They tied all 14 around a bell on the first floor and then walked around them in a circle and started beating them with clubs. The prisoners were sure all 14 were dead."

Mr. Valiler said the guards were told repeatedly that if the troops stormed the cells the hostages would be thrown over the railings of the fourth floor where they were kept.

"After the molesters were beaten up they came running upstairs and said, 'You're next.'

"We thought it was the end but we talked them out of killing us."

Goyer Accepted Some Demands

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto lawyer Arthur Martin, who along with Toronto Telegram columnist Ron Haggart presented a list of demands from rebellious Kingston penitentiary prisoners to Solicitor - General Jean - Pierre Goyer last Friday, said Monday that several of the prisoners' demands were agreed to by the solicitor - general.

The prisoners had asked that "they be permitted to state their grievances before an appropriate board and that they have assistance of counsel" in presenting their complaints.

"They also asked that they be allowed to come out of their cells and be transferred to other institutions under the observation of the citizens' committee." Mr. Goyer agreed to both of these requests, said Mr. Martin.

The lawyer, a member of the citizens' committee, said the prisoners had demanded that they be assured no charges will be laid as a result of the insurrection, but the solicitor - general would not agree to this.

However, Mr. Goyer promised that "legal aid would be provided in the event of proceedings," said Mr. Martin.

The solicitor - general's reply to the prisoners' demands was given Friday — through Mr. Martin and Mr. Haggart — but the 500 convicts involved in the insurrection did not surrender their six hostages or accept the offer until early Sunday.

NDP Wants Daycare Centres

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democratic Party convention committees have endorsed resolutions promoting publicly-funded daycare and birth control centres.

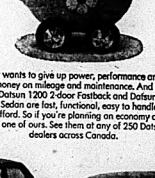
Also passed Monday was an amendment to the NDP constitution guaranteeing the presence of women on the party's federal council.

The resolutions on daycare and birth control centres was passed by the resolutions committee, and will be sent to the convention for debate by delegate. The convention starts Wednesday.

The resolutions also include proposals for elimination of abortion from the Criminal Code, publicly-funded abortion centres and tax exemptions for child-care for working parents.

The constitution committee passed an amendment raising the number of elected council members to 24 from 20, and making 12 of them women.

The remainder of the 115 on the council come from provincial associations, the Commons caucus, the New Democratic Youth, the federal women's committee and organizations affiliated to the NDP, largely unions, as well as the federal executive officers.



The amendment will also be submitted for approval at the convention.

The resolutions committee dropped a preamble to the resolution that called oppression of women essential to the used smooth functioning of capitalism. The preamble had been included in the Waffle recommendation.

The constitution committee defeated Waffle proposals calling for numerical equality for women on all party committees.

Lauds Columnist For Sensible Letters

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am glad to see you are printing some decent information on homosexuality. I am pleased too, that you are publishing sensible letters from homosexuals. As a lesbian I can tell you there are plenty of books in our segment of society, as in others. Whenever you separate people into groups you are bound to get some nuts. This goes for lawyers, doctors, teachers, homosexuals, creeps, poets, Women's Lib. — yes, even newspaper columnists.

The principal desire of lesbians is to be accepted as human beings, to be allowed to hold jobs, to be paid commensurate with their abilities, and to be left alone by straight people who view them as freaks. You can't believe some of the questions I have been asked by supposedly intelligent people. For example, a man I work with (he knows about my relationship with another woman who is employed by our firm recently asked, "Which one of you is the guy?" Such misconceptions make my blood boil.

You are doing a great deal to lift the veil of ignorance, Ann, and I hope you will continue to do so. — THE LADDER.

DEAR LADDER: I'll continue to try. Thank you for writing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Gerry and I have been married less than four months. We moved into an efficiency apartment when we returned from our honeymoon. The landlady promised us the first one-bedroom apartment which became available last month. I work and Gerry is in graduate school. We are both tired at night, so many things don't get done. I was hoping last weekend that Gerry would place the furniture and hang the pictures. Unfortunately, he had to leave town to attend to business for his mother who was widowed recently. So I asked my dad to hang the pictures and place the furniture.

When Gerry returned he was furious because dad had done "his" job. He found fault with everything — said the pictures were hung too high and they were poorly spaced. He didn't like the way the furniture was placed. We got into a big hassle.

Was I wrong to ask my dad to help? Is Gerry over-reacting? What is your opinion? — COMMUNIQUE FROM THE WAR ZONE.

DEAR COMM: Gerry is competitive with your father and resents having been displaced by him. You should have foreseen the trouble and not have asked your dad to do your husband's chores.

Encourage Gerry to re-hang the pictures and rearrange the furniture to suit himself. And in the future don't use your father as a husband-substitute.

Crisp Dill Pickles Add to A Party

By MARY MOORE

In an effort to serve imaginative salads at four consecutive guest meals I found I was running out of ideas.

Then I remembered Margaret's (my daughter-in-law) dilled cucumbers which she had served at a birthday dinner party late in February. She had them in a beautiful cut glass bowl and their crisp zestiness was so popular we emptied it.

I am hoping that our hostesses will clip this recipe because it has plenty of pluses — advance preparation, flavor and popularity being a few.

DILLED CUCUMBERS
(a salad dish for 10-12 people)

NOTE: Margaret says these are also known as Swedish cucumbers.

4 large cucumbers (or 1 long English cucumber)
4 tsps. salt
1½ tsps. sugar
1-3 cup spirit (white) vinegar
1-3 cup water
½ tsp. white pepper
1 tsp. dill seeds

Wash and pare cucumbers and slice thinly. Arrange slices in glass or porcelain bowl sprinkling with all of the salt as you layer them. Weight down with plate slightly smaller than top of bowl and refrigerate overnight.

Drain off the brine that forms and wash and drain cucumbers well. Mix together the sugar, vinegar, water, pepper and dill seeds until sugar is dissolved. Pour over drained cucumbers and gently mix marinade all through them. Cover and chill at least 1 hr. but preferably several hours. Serve refrigator cold.

This salad recipe should be filed in both your summer and winter salad folders.

Poem Describes April as Uncertain Month

By DORIS CLARK

Uncertain April
So you've heard the first chirp of a robin?
And spied a bluejay's wing?
You've noted both birds revelling
In Spring's arrival? But wait:
Let crop begin to flow, red buds burst out,
Transparent leaves fill out the trees;
Let forsythea golden the garden;
Pastel crocuses dot the lawn,
Then see Winter lift his weakened arm
In a malicious - like swipe at Spring.
By throwing a chill cover of snow
Over the unsuspecting grass
But his ill-will vanishes when April-only smiles.
Bowing low, he withdraws
April's charm, irresistible!
— Mabel Jenkin

Dear Doris: What are the requirements for adoption? Does the child have to have a room for himself? We have three children. The boy is five, and we would like a boy around the same age. The boys would share a room.

We are on a farm where we'll probably never get rich but will never starve with vegetables in the garden and meat on the hoof.

If we are able to adopt, where is the agency closest to us? How long would it take if we are accepted? Hopeful

Dear Hopeful: Requirements for adoption vary, but social workers look more at the quality of family living than at the size of the home, and the amount of income.

Mostly it is better if a child has his own room — but why not ask? Your adoption agency is: The Family and Children's Services of Hastings Belleville.

Babies for adoption are scarcer right now than they have been. Social workers blame the Pill, abortions, and the fact that more unwed mothers are keeping their babies. You might have to be on the waiting list for a while.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 17 and a little shy. Just about every dance I go to I meet a boy and stay with him until the dance is over.

He seems to enjoy my company and they all say they will see me again but I never hear from them again. They know where I live and everything. — Not A Boy Chaser

Dear Not A: Perhaps it's the style to stay with one girl friend all evening. Do you pick-ups act like they feel attack with you?

If these are community dances, and well supervised, there must be ways of getting acquainted with more than one boy a night.

Be more self-supervised: A new hairdo, a new dress style, a careful application of clothes, will benefit the girls.

Come now thought to conversation: What books do you read? Do you give the front page of your local newspaper more than a quick glance? A lively interest in the world around you can open your lives being bored and boring other people.

That parting promise that they will see you again is just some kind way of saying "Goodnight". Don't build on it.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jerry, you forgot to feed your dog and he's hungry. You promised to take care of a pet if we let you have one."

Mother: "Jerry, put the dog's food in the little dish and give it to him. Give him some water, too. See how much he likes you because he knows you take care of him."

A child of six or seven may have to be reminded about caring for a pet. Eventually, it will become a happy and regular routine, but it's up to the mother to see the pet does not suffer while the child learns responsibility.

Industrious Canadians Won't Abuse Job Insurance: Mackasey

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said Monday the industriousness of the "great majority" of Canadians would prevent abuse of a more generous unemployment insurance system, but Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) was less optimistic.

Mr. Mackasey, who led off Commons debate on second reading of a government bill to amend the Unemployment Insurance Act, said some people argue that increased unemployment insurance benefits and shorter qualification requirements will breed laziness.

It had not been the minister's experience that people were inherently lazy, and that argument "should not be raised in this chamber," he said.

Mr. Alexander, the next speaker, rallied it, suggesting that there might be considerably more sloth around than Mr. Mackasey would admit.

Offering partial benefits to workers with only eight weeks qualifying employment invites abuse, he said. The majority of Canadian workers might rather work than live off unemployment benefits, but "not many of the minority" would rather let the government look after them.

The philosophical debate on the nature of man reflected a major controversy that has surrounded the concept of the bill since it was introduced in a white paper last June.

The bill, on which debate continues today, would increase the maximum unemployment benefits a worker could draw to two-thirds of his qualifying salary, with the maximum benefit of $100 a week going to an unemployed person who had been earning $150 or more. The maximum benefit now is $ 53 a week.

To qualify for full benefits a person would have to have worked 38 per cent of the previous year—30 weeks—rather than 25 per cent of the previous two years—30 weeks—which now is the case.

After contributing to the insurance fund for eight weeks, a worker would be eligible for partial benefits.

The duration of benefits would depend on how much an employee had contributed to the fund and the unemployment rate, both national and regional.

The system would cover an additional 1.2 million Canadians, because the current maximum salary of $7,800, beyond which employees do not now participate, would be dropped, and groups such as teachers, public servants and policemen who now are exempt would be included.

Mr. Mackasey said the bill's "cornerstone" universality principle would mean lower employee contributions to the insurance fund, currently $1.40 a week for a person earning $100.

Depending on statistics now being completed by his department, the rate would be dropped to between 80 and 92 cents a week for that person.

The lower figure would mean payments of $41.60 a year instead of $72.80, and payments would be tax deductible.

Mr. Mackasey said that in the past it has been difficult for persons first entering the work force to become identified as legitimate members.

The term required for benefits was being dropped to eight weeks to ease that situation, and to show that "we are interested in the future of the worker and not in his past history."

If workers could draw relatively large amounts after contributing only briefly, the insurance situation was the same as a man being paid for his house which had burned down a few days after he bought insurance.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) objected to a four-per-cent trigger mechanism that would bring the government into subsidization of the unemployment insurance fund.

If the national unemployment rate were less than four per cent, employers and employees alone would contribute to the fund.

But the government would pick up the cost of additional benefits necessitated by an unemployment rate of more than four per cent.

Mr. Knowles said lack of government participation below the four-per-cent level would give an air of respectability to that level of unemployment.

Mr. Mackasey called that triggering level reasonable—"the four per cent happens to be a convenient point at which the government's injection of money into the plan is triggered."

Mr. Knowles asked that the government not use unemployment insurance as a substitute for full-employment programs.

Mr. Alexander said unemployment is not unemployment when it is self-inflicted, and the government bill killed initiative and encouraged poor behavior.

He also said the government should not let bureaucracy stand in the way of devising a plan that could include self-employed persons.

Mr. Mackasey had said self-employed people have control over their business fate, and unemployment insurance should not be used to guard against bad business risks.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

Bourassa Impresses

PARIS (CP) — The French press has attached considerable importance to Premier Robert Bourassa's current visit here.

The Paris daily Le Monde published a long article called "Illusions to destroy" on the front page, in which it says Mr. Bourassa's visit will probably improve relations between Ottawa and Paris, which have been strained since Charles de Gaulle's "Vive le Quebec Libre" cry in July, 1967.

"Mr. Bourassa chooses to attack the problems of cultural and economical development within the framework of Confederation," Le Monde says.

Tough P.E.I. Act Attacked in Commons by PCs

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government found itself under fire Monday as a result of Prince Edward Island's tough new public order law and Premier Alex Campbell's statement that the RCMP has files on all cabinet ministers.

Conservatives urged Speaker Lucien Lamoureux to refer Premier Campbell's statement to a parliamentary committee. Premier prime minister John Diefenbaker said the issue deserves "the fullest investigation."

Conservative House Leader Gerald W. Baldwin (Peace River) indicated that his party intends to question the constitutionality of the P.E.I. law when the Commons discusses the Public Order (Temporary Measures), 1970, Act.

Justice Minister John Turner said the federal act, due to lapse April 30, will come before the House soon.

Mr. Turner was asked by Heath Macquarrie (PC-Hillsborough) whether the P.E.I. act will be referred by the federal government to the Supreme Court of Canada for a test of its validity.

"We would not initiate a reference to the Supreme Court on a matter affecting provincial legislation," Mr. Turner replied. "If that legislation is to be challenged in any way under constitutional grounds, the courts are open."

The P.E.I. legislature earlier this month adopted a public order bill that would allow the Island's attorney-general to "prohibit any public gathering which in his opinion may contribute to the disruption of public order, or where in his opinion there are insufficient medical service, fire and police protection, sleeping facilities, or other essential services."

The law was passed after island clergymen expressed fear that rock festivals would lead to drug abuse and immorality.

Terrence Murphy (L—Sault Ste. Marie) touched off the Commons questions when he asked whether Premier Campbell was correct in stating that RCMP dossiers are kept on all cabinet ministers.

Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer replied that where the RCMP is concerned, all citizens are treated as equals—university professors, company presidents or MPs.

Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) asked whether it is policy to compile dossiers on MPs as a result of complaints by constituents.

Mr. Goyer, answering a whole series of questions along this line, said there probably are dossiers on cabinet ministers who have held important government posts. Security screening is part of a top government job.

However, he said, he knew of no policy requiring dossiers on MPs and he hadn't seen such a file since becoming solicitor-general last December.

T. C. Douglas, the New Democrat Leader, asked whether the RCMP had recommended the public order law to the P.E.I. government and whether this had been done with Mr. Goyer's knowledge and consent.

Mr. Goyer replied that the 75-man RCMP force on P.E.I. is under contract to the provincial government. If such advice had been given, it had been given by police acting as provincial employees.

David MacDonald (PC—Egmont), one of the Prince Edward Island's four MPs and vigorous opponent of last fall's emergency federal legislation, asked whether it is RCMP practice to photograph and monitor public meetings attended by MPs and civic officials. He was referring to a meeting in Charlottetown to protest the new law.

"I don't know whether it is the practice or not," Mr. Goyer replied. Police action depended on the situation. There was certainly no systematic policy dicated against citizens.

Mr. MacDonald said Mr. Goyer's reply failed to clear up suggestions that the RCMP may have used surveillance, "and by way of implication some form of intimidation," on some MPs.

He asked Mr. Goyer to "clear up any possible danger that this kind of intimidation will become a consistent practice in this country."

Mr. Goyer said general accusations of this sort are irresponsible. If Mr. MacDonald had any specific facts to present, he should do so.

Mr. Baldwin said what he called Mr. Goyer's failure to answer adequately "has left a very bad situation" and amounted to a breach of parliamentary privilege.

He moved that Premier Campbell's statement be referred to a parliamentary committee.

Speaker Lamoureux took the motion, out of order at the time, as an indication that a firmer step will be taken. He said he will consider the issue in the meantime.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Speaker should give it the full-est investigation because it "contravenes every basic principle of Parliament."

'Go Home', Committee Told

QUEBEC (CP) — The special joint Senate-Commons committee on the constitution was told Monday night it is wasting Quebec taxpayers' money in trying to find out what they want in a new constitution.

Paul Bouchard, professor of social studies at Laval University here, told committee members the money spent on their work would be better used to create jobs for unemployed workers.

Mr. Daoust, who ran unsuccessfully for the separatist Parti Quebecois in last year's Quebec general election, suggested that the committee members "go home" to their "comfortable homes in Outremont," a posh suburb of Montreal.

"Your system doesn't work. Let us solve our own problems."

Mr. Daoust's remarks were cheered by most of the 150 persons present at the committee hearing in a church basement in the working-class St. Roch district.

"The time for talking about flags, languages, holidays and monuments is finished," he said, "it's time to talk of jobs."

He asked how much it costs Quebecers to pay for the commission and their 74 members of Parliament.

"How much does it cost to pay for all the RCMP agents who are here tonight? How much does it cost to pay for all your microphones and gadgets?"

Worldwide Anti-pollution Campaign Is Urged

VIENNA (CP) — The head of Canada's delegation called on an international gathering of top businessmen today to join with governments and scientists in a worldwide campaign against pollution.

John G. Crean of Toronto, president of the Canadian Council of the International Chamber of Commerce, said his delegation supports a move to tackle the problem of a deteriorating environment "on a worldwide basis . . . with the helpful participation of governments, scientists and industrialists."

Speaking to the 23rd congress of the International Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Crean decried the red tape which overlapping government jurisdictions cause in attempts to get pollution-control programs under way.

"In our most modern and rapidly-developing regions, industry is faced with an increasing patchwork of pollution controls," he said. "The problem of jurisdictional conflict is of fundamental importance to international business.

"To waver or postpone reasonable decisions in the hope that some political solution will turn up merely creates doubt and uncertainty."

Another Canadian speaker suggested that the flow of private money to underdeveloped countries could be increased if there was some form of insurance against political risks.

J. E. Toten, vice-president of planning and economics for the Bank of Montreal, said such a scheme should be sponsored on an international level.

A number of developed countries already provided international investment insurance on a national basis.

"But these are not, in our view, adequate substitutes for a truly international fund."

Mr. Toten said these plans limit the amount of insurance that may be placed; are open only to residents of the country operating the plan and generally link investment with national exports.

A draft agreement for an international insurance agency has been in existence since 1968 and most major capital-exporting countries have approved it.

"The main stumbling block to its inception appears to be the resistance of those countries which are the potential beneficiaries."

Some objected because of the cost involved, and others feared it would infringe on their sovereignty.

"The inception of an international plan would be in the best interest of the developing countries as its economic benefits in terms of larger and cheaper capital inflows and accelerated development would, by far, outweigh the costs," Mr. Toten said.

Speaking of the world monetary situation generally, Mr. Toten said all countries should help the United States in reducing its heavy balance-of-payments deficit gradually—"if necessary by re-valuing their own currencies rather than trying to force upon the U.S. a crash program which would have a severe deflationary impact on the world economy."

"It seems clear from past experience that countries should not cling to exchange rates long after it has become apparent that they are fundamentally out of line. This would minimize the element of crisis which has so frequently plagued the international monetary scene in the past."

The Canadian government last June allowed the dollar to float free, finding its own value on international money markets. Previously pegged within one per cent of 92.5 cents U.S., the Canadian dollar has been trading at near par since it was freed. There is no indication so far when it will be re-pegged, or at what level.

Smallwood Is Silent On Voting

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Only Premier Joseph Smallwood knows when a Newfoundland election will be held this year and he is unlikely to reveal the date until exactly three weeks before voting day.

Advance notice of an election beyond the statutory 21 days could harden muscles already being developed by the 70-year-old premier's chief opponents in the legislature.

Most observers expect the election in late June or early September. The government's five-year term expires Dec. 31.

Major issues are likely to be government spending and economic development.

It will be Mr. Smallwood's sixth election since he led Newfoundland into Confederation in 1949. All elections except his second—in 1956—were called before the statutory fifth year.

One of the most spectacular of his five victories was in the last election, in 1966, when the Liberals took 39 of the 42 seats, a gain of six from the 1962 election. In 1959, before redistribution increased the number of constituencies, the Liberals took 31 of 32.

Since the last election, defections—partly the result of a bitter 1969 leadership race won by the premier—death and retirements have cut government strength to 29 members.

There now are six Progressive Conservatives, three Independent Liberals, one independent and three vacancies.

Destinies Must Be Managed

Eric Runacres, director of education for Hastings county, receives an absorbed stare from Ron McNutt, Belleville Y's Men's Club convention chairman at the Eastern Ontario District Y's Men's conference, held at the Four Seasons Hotel last weekend. Mr. Runacres stressed that adults should not be buddies with their youngsters, but should use firmness in providing proper guidance. He said youth of today want guidance, they don't want their parents to "opt out of responsibility."

Commission to Check Hospital Department

The Ontario Hospital Services Commission will soon conduct an on-the-spot investigation of the new supply, preparation and delivery department at Belleville General Hospital.

The reason is OHSC's unfamiliarity with the setup of the department, designed to be a centre supply depot for the hospital.

The decision to review the SPD department came out of a meeting Friday with hospital officials and representatives of OHSC. In going over the hospital's projected budget for 1971, OHSC had suggested that the SPD staff be reduced by about 12 people.

Administrators here said it would be difficult to operate the new department if the budget allocation for SPD staff was not reinstated. Because this type of operation is new to the province, the OHSC is not well acquainted with its operation, and it is sending in its own representatives to study the situation.

Friday's meeting here between OHSC officials and BGH board members and administrators was the result of OHSC cutbacks in hospital operating expenses since 1968.

In 1968, OHSC disallowed $41,000 spent on medical-surgical supplies. These supplies were necessary, said administrators, because of the hospital's expansion and the need to stock up. A further $19,000 was cut in 1969. The 1970 expenditures are still not completely summarized.

As a result of the meeting here, the hospital will furnish OHSC with more data on the expenditures and officials are hoping the allowances will be restored.

The hospital's 1970 expenditures were about $7,000,000, with $4,500,000 of this going for staff salaries.

Dairy Princess To Be Busier

This year's Prince Edward Dairy Princess is likely to do more promotional work for dairy products than has been the case in the past.

Members of the county milk committee at their first meeting of the year decided that the county dairy princess will do more in-store promotion, consumer tour trips and speaking engagements.

An active year's program has been set up with committees being appointed for the various activities.

Carolle and Ken Wright were appointed to the public relations committee. Lewis Wight, Hank Wedzinga and Gary Fox were named to the Dairy Day — Dairy Princess Promotion Committee while Norm Denard and David Dick will be responsible for consumer tours.

These tours in the past have included tours to local farmers and processing plants for Grade 7 and 8 pupils and the committee this year plans to extend the promotion to include service clubs and other urban groups.

George Emlaw will work with the Holstein Association in planning their twilight meeting; the Picton Fair Committee includes Bob Carson, Ross Foster, Burton Kotchepaw and Tom Heath. Harry Evans will investigate the possibility of placing milk in schools.

A bus trip for county milk producers has been tentatively arranged for the OMMB offices in Toronto for a late August date.

Producers wishing to bring specific problems before the committee are asked to contact Chairman Corey Burris or Ken Wright to set up a date. Most producers' problems can be handled by the committee or by Agriculture Pikonley, OMMB fieldman.

Crawling Traffic Stymies Committee

How to speed up crawling downtown traffic during the busy late week shopping hours is a problem that has the city traffic committee stymied.

Possible solutions range all the way from provision of "stopping" bays to allow passengers to disembark, to a partial or complete parking ban along Front Street.

But these are suggestions only and traffic committee members admit they could not be carried out unless increased off-street parking was first provided.

City police inspector Ralph Blatchford told the committee that the slow traffic movement during busy hours was basically the result of motorists looking for streetside parking spaces.

"I don't know the solution," he said. "Possibly the answer is more off - street parking or more use of public transit."

He said that Belleville was a growing city and people coming in from the country on busy shopping days added to the traffic congestion

"But more people mean more business."

The discussion arose as the result of an inquiry by Alderman Gerald Joyce at the last council meeting when he asked if anything could be done to assist traffic in the downtown area during the latter part of the week.

Earl Brant Named Legion Commander

Former deputy district commander of the Royal Canadian Legion, Earl Brant of Deseronto, was named district commander at the annual convention held in Lindsay on Sunday.

Mr. Brant, a member and past president of the Deseronto Legion and past zone commander, succeeds Eric Hogg who had held the post for the past two years.

The Legion district takes in the Lake Ontario and Quinte region from Ajax on the west to Deseronto on the east, north to Haliburton and south to Picton. The district has a membership of 16,670 an increase of 445 over the previous year.

Aside from hearing reports on Legion activities by committees, the convention also heard a report on the Legion's participation in the Canada Games.

Eric Runacres:

'Don't Be A Buddy to Your Children'

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Director of education for Hastings county, Eric Runacres believes parents should not be a buddy to their youngsters, but rather a person to look up to for guidance provided with a strong will.

"Youth doesn't want permissiveness, they want accountability. Plan with them, accept their ideas and give them challenges.

"The only stability we have is the stability of motion," Mr. Runacres told delegates to the Eastern Ontario district conference of Y's Men Saturday night at the Four Seasons Hotel.

"There is accelerating change in life". . . personal values, relations; the future is viewed in discrete, fragmented space. The time vacuum is frightening."

However, Mr. Runacres said for a fulfilment of man's dreams, man "must manage change."

"In meeting the challenges of change, there is creative, positive, active control-lers of change," he said.

He backed up this statement with a quotation from Eric Frohm . . . "you should have living rather than life, prefer to see something new rather than the security of finding the old comfortable, love the adventure of living more than you do certainty . . ."

The director of education parabled the buffalo herd which came to a sudden stop because the leader had heard a discouraging word. He said the children of today stick with the traditional and formal structured life, unyielding in their approach to life "irrelevant, uncomfortable, shackles and blocks to progress." The dangers of the swinger, those tuned on in present, modern living, is a "band wagonism going hell bent for election down the road without knowing where they are going.

"We don't want such polarization, such chasms that we need is a Tarzan approach . . . we need to cling to swing.

"As we swing, we cling to our values . . . our Christian creed which is as valid today as ever before. The imperishable truths, honesty, integrity, unselfishness, concern for our brothers, and love for fellow man still exist," he said.

He told the gathering of Y's Men that today's problems of population, pollution, poverty, crime and material production form the basis for the steepest curves experienced by man and the "survival catastrophe is only decades away.

"More youth today are alienated from parents and society. They express this alienation in bizarre habits of dress, language, drugs, sex and alcohol," he said.

However, "youth are sensitive to human values . . . they are humanists. As Mama Cass' song says, 'there is a new world coming, coming in peace, coming in joy, coming in love'," . . . they are involved in a quest to live up to our values."

He termed the alienation of youth today a rebellion against hypocrisy.

"The generation gap is precisely this: the gap between our professed values and our day to day practices: If we are to bridge the gap, we will have to accentuate positive thinking. Build on successes, with teaching with adult leaders such as the Y's men, accept ideas and build on them.

"Above all, do not use sarcasm and don't undervalue them."

Mr. Runacres advised the 26 delegates from Ontario and Quebec to "care" for their youngsters. "Stand up and be counted, put steel into your relationship. Let them know they are and who are their friends.

"Youth don't want permissiveness, they want accountability. Hold them accountable. I'm not a stickler for my pupils and the boys I coach . . . they don't want a laissez faire approach. Establish your relations with youth with a large dose of serious humor . . . they tell us we're far too serious, uptight.

"As wise men, use your own common sense and intuition . . . practice what you preach and set your standards and enforce them.

The former Montreal Canadien farm team hockey player said young people should be given responsibility along a pattern of rules which include "Respect them and they'll respect you."

He said too often, people take the easy way out when a youngster asks for permission he do something. "You are not buddies, but you are both worthy and this means respecting the integrity of the individual, and this doesn't mean opting out."

Mr. Runacres used the advice of a famous Canadian, the late Stephen Leacock, a missioner to illustrate his point.

Instead of giving the usual catalogue of virtues to be cultivated Canon Stephen George McClellan of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police sharpened his lesson by listing the 10 things not to use so that a child will become an antisocial misfit:

(1) Do not have any rules for child behaviour or obedience in the home. This will ensure that the child has no clear concept of right or wrong.

(2) If you have any rules, enforce them intermittently. Ignore them when you are in good humor and knock the kid silly if he breaks the rules when you are tired and out of sorts. This will confuse him thoroughly. He won't know what is expected of him and will eventually resent all discipline.

(3) Air your domestic disputes right out in front of the children, preferably with a little name-calling. This will ensure that he has no respect for either of his parents.

(4) Never give a child any chores or regular duties around the house. This will convince him that you and the world owe him a living without effort on his part.

(5) If he is disciplined at school, always go to the school and tear a strip off the teacher or the principal in front of the child. This will create an excellent contempt for authority at any level.

(6) Later, when he has trouble with the police, which is most likely, bawl out the officer or, better still, the Chief, being always sure to refer to the 'dumb cop'. This procedure will earn the child a diploma in contempt for authority.

(7) When you are out driving with the family, exceed the local speed limit, but slow down when you see a police car. Be sure to speed up as soon as the police car is out of sight. This will show the child that the law is to be observed only if there is any danger of being caught.

(8) If you are stopped by the police for speeding, and you are speeding, always deny flatly that you were exceeding the speed limit. Make a big fuss over it. Your child will then know that cheating and lying are acceptable procedures.

(9) If you have managed to chisel a few dollars on your income tax, be sure and tell the family at the dinner table that night how smart you are. This should convince the youngsters that stealing is all right if you can get away with it.

(10) Never check up on where your youngsters are in the evening. Never mind what time they get home. Never, never, try to learn anything about their friends. This one is almost sure fire.

"All of this awesome challenge does not frighten me, it inspires me and I am sure it inspires men like yourself who have already risen to the challenge."

More than 50 representatives of Y's Men's Clubs from Kingston, P.Q., Montreal, Brockville, Ottawa, Kingston, London, Owen Sound, and Belleville, joined the Belleville host club this weekend.

Boston Finish Close

BOSTON (AP) — Alvaro Mejia, an unemployed metal worker from Colombia via Redwood City, Calif., was the proud owner of a diamond studded solid gold sunburst medal and a laurel wreath today after a dramatic victory in the 75th Boston A.A. Marathon Monday.

The 26-year-old Mejia, who finished 16th in the 10,000-metre run in the 1968 Olympics, registered his greatest triumph by out-kicking favored Pat McMahon in a stirring race to the wire at the end of the 26-mile, 385-yard, gutsy event. Hopkinton to Boston.

The Canadian Peach and Olympic entry sent a 10-man team to the marathon and the winner was Ron Wallingford of Sudbury, Ont., who finished ninth in time 19.

The only other Canadian in the 30 finishers was Robert [illegible] of the University of Saskatoon, who was 19th in [illegible].

[illegible] has edged McMahon [illegible] Colombian's first marathon in California earlier this year and the former Irish Olympian, now a school teacher in nearby Lovell, engaged "in one of the hottest duels in BAA history.

They ran abreast virtually all the way, often accidentally bumping elbows and even shaving water-soaked sponges handed to one or the other by spectators.

Then, with the finish line just around the corner, Mejia turned spriner and hit the wire about 20 yards ahead of his weary rival.

Crashes Party

An unidentified woman unofficially joins the 379 entrants of the 75th B.A.A. Marathon Monday in Hopkinton shortly after runners left the starting line. She is wearing sign calling attention to "March on Washington, D.C., April 24." Some other runners are: John Lesch (75), University of Chicago; Ron Wallingford of Sudbury, Ont. (7); Roger Price (66) of McGill and Lorne Buck (860) of Toronto Striders. (AP Wirephoto)

Giant Reliever Grows Old Waiting for Bullpen Escape

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There's a job for Ron Bryant in San Francisco Giants' starting rotation, but he may become eligible for unemployment compensation waiting for it.

The 23-year-old left-fander took over the ailing Frank Reberger with none out in the first inning Monday and went the rest of the way in a 9-2 National League triumph over St. Louis Cardinals. It was the Giants' ninth consecutive victory.

"He got stronger as he went along," said manager Charlie Fox, who added that Reberger would have his sore shoulder x-rayed and Bryant would replace him as a starter. Unfortunately for Bryant, his first start isn't just around the corner.

With Juan Marichal and Gaylord Perry slated to pitch tonight and Wednesday and offdays scheduled Thursday and next Monday, it will be late next week before Bryant gets his shot.

Elsewhere on a slim major league schedule, Los Angeles Dodgers defeated San Diego Padres' 3-2 in another National League game while Minnesota Twins outlasted Kansas City Royals 9-8 and Cleveland Indians nipped Boston Red Sox 5-4 in 11 innings in American League play.

Marichal and Perry, Fox said, "have got to pitch every four days, so we'll drop Bryant out of the rotation this weekend."

Bryant relieved Reberger with two runners on base and Jose Cardenal's double put the Cardinals in front 1-0. But the Giants quickly tied it up against Jerry Reuss on Willie Mays' double and a single by Dick Dietz and took the lead in the third on Chris Speier's single, a walk to Mays and another single by Dietz.

Bryant singled in the fifth and scored on a bases-loaded walk by Bobby Bonds crashed his fifth home run of the season for the final tally.

The Padres took a 2-0 lead off Don Sutton in the first inning on four singles and a walk, but the Dodgers bounced back with a run in the third on doubles by Willis Davis and Wes Parker. They won it in the eighth when Davis and Parker singled and, after a sacrifice and an intentional walk, Billy Grabarkewitz lashed a two-run double.

Harmon Killebrew drove in six runs as Minnesota built a 9-0 lead and then survived a Kansas City counter-attack, including Bob Oliver's grand slam homer.

Killebrew delivered a two-run single in the first, a run-scoring grounder in the second and his second homer of the season, a three-run shot, in the third. The Royals nicked Jim Kaat for a run in the fourth and chased him with a seven-run outburst in the fifth.

Roy Foster's two-run homer in the 12th inning lifted Cleveland past Boston in the Red Sox' annual Patriots Day game. The homer, off Bill Lee, followed a lead off walk to Graig Nettles. The Sox scored a run in their half of the inning before Ray Lamb picked up the final out with two runners aboard.

Former Red Sox slugger Ken Harrelson got the Indians in front with a three-run homer in the fourth but Boston tied it with two in the sixth and an unearned tally in the eighth.

Durocher Not Panicky About Cubs' Early Slump

CHICAGO (AP) — It's a long season, says manager Leo Durocher, and no time to worry about his Chicago Cubs' shaky start in the National League East race.

"I don't have a crystal ball," but I've been in this business too long to get depressed over a slump," said Durocher Monday.

Leo's puzzling Cubs, returning from a 3-8 road trip, today opened a 12-game home stand in a three-game set against Houston-Astros.

In losing a four-game series to the Giants at San Francisco last weekend, the Cubs dropped to fifth in the NL East standings with a 4-9 record.

"Against San Francisco, we ran into a hot ball club. Everything they did was right and everything we did was wrong.

"I can remember my New York Giants lost 11 straight in 1951 and then went on to win the pennant. We'll start putting it all together. Let's see what happens now that we're back home."

The Cubs embarked on their frustrating West Coast trip after splitting a home opener pair against St. Louis Cardinals. Fergy Jenkins, the Chatham, Ont., native gunning for his fifth straight 25-win season, bested Card ace Bob Gibson 2-1 on a three-hitter in the April 6 inaugural at Wrigley Field.

Since then everything has been downhill for the Cubs and their play was aptly described by San Francisco's Juan Marichal, who pitched a near no-hitter to start the Giants' four-game sweep.

"They are doing everything wrong. They are not alert. They seem to be down mentally. But they are too good a team to play like that."

The Cub slump has been marked by 14 errors in 14 games; 71 strikeouts in 13 games, and hitting into 16 double plays. As a result, the Cub pitching staff, pegged as one of the National League's best, stands: Jenkins and Bill Hands 1-2 each, and Ken Holtzman 0-3. Only winner among the club's big four is Milt Pappas with 2-1.

Carter Gets Jump on Knicks

NEW YORK (AP) — Fred Carter's decisive jump shot ended two years of frustration for Baltimore Bullets as they eliminated the defending champion New York Knicks from the National Basketball Association playoffs with a dramatic 93-91 victory Monday night.

Carter's basket with 1:06 to play put the Bullets ahead 93-89 and they clung desperately to the edge in the final seconds to win the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final series, four games to three.

The victory put the Bullets into the championship series against the Milwaukee Bucks, the Western winner, starting Wednesday night in Milwaukee in the first game of another best-of-seven affair.

Earl Monroe, whose seven points in the final quarter kept the Bullets ahead, except for one brief moment, finished with 26 points. Jack Marin added 20.

This is the first time the Bullets have made the NBA championship finals since 1948. New York eliminated them in the last two playoffs.

Student Grants May Ruin Status

MONTREAL (CP) — There is "a very real possibility" that Canadian student athletes competing in the Pan-American Games in Colombia this summer could lose their amateur status if they accept money under a federal grant program for student athletes, the secretary of the Canadian Olympic Association said Monday.

Richard Pound said it is difficult to say what could happen because no grants have yet been made.

The federal department of health and welfare has appropriated $1 million for what it calls educational grants to support students who will be unable to work this summer because they are competing in international competitions such as the Pan-American Games in Cali, Colombia.

Student athletes will be eligible to receive up to $2,000.

Mr. Pound says the COA fears the grants will be made available to the students practically upon request. Such grants then would not qualify as scholarships or payment of expenses and would render the student ineligible for international amateur competition.

In Ottawa, a health department spokesman said the governing body of any sport helps determine which athletes are picked for federal grants and thus would be able to determine whether the amateur status of any student would be endangered.

NDP Delegates Consider Nationalizing NHL Entries

OTTAWA (CP) — Delegates at the New Democratic Party national convention this week are being asked to nationalize Canada's three National Hockey League teams.

A resolution submitted by the Toronto Greenwood riding association says the league of the NHL is one of "mindless authoritarianism, anti-intellectualism and unnecessary violence."

It proposes that an NDP government bring under public ownership Le Club de Hockey Canadien Inc., Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd. and the Medicor Investment Corp., owner of Vancouver Canucks.

The government should then set up a non-profit professional hockey league, with teams in all major Canadian cities.

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Trent University will not enter hockey or basketball teams in the newly-formed Ontario Universities Athletic Association.

Paul Wilson, Trent's athletic director, reaffirmed Monday the university's stand against intercollegiate team sports. He said travelling expenses and high-calibre competition would be "too much for Trent to contend with."

The university will continue to compete in other inter-collegiate sports.

Toast of Montreal Was 'Monster' to Cornell Teammates

MONTREAL (CP) — At Cornell University, where he made all-America three times, Ken Dryden was known as "the monster."

The 22-year-old former Junior B goalie from Toronto, and hockey the toast of Montreal, is six-foot-three and 215 pounds. And he's one big reason why Montreal Canadiens are in the Stanley Cup semi-final and Boston Bruins are not.

"That . . . hand of his is something else," said Johnny McKenzie of the Bruins. "We've caught him out of position at least a dozen times and shot for three-quarters of an empty net. Zap—that big mitt comes out of thin air.

"Twice I've had my stick in the air and was breaking into my goal-scoring dance when he's done that."

The assessment of Dryden was made when the clubs were tied 2-2 in their best-of-seven quarter-final.

After the seventh game, McKenzie elaborated

"He doesn't intimidate you, he just covers a heck of a lot of net. He just stays cool all the time and never gets frustrated."

McKenzie and his mates were only emphasizing what people have been saying for years.

Ned Harkness, now general manager of Detroit Red Wings and Dryden's coach at Cornell said he was "the finest goalie I ever coached."

Dryden began the journey in big brother Dave's footsteps—Dave was with Chicago Black Hawks before moving to Buffalo Sabres—when he played with a Junior B club in the Toronto suburb of Etobicoke.

He was discovered by a portly Montreal Canadiens scout, Claude Ruel—whose brief tenure as Canadiens' head coach ended earlier this year.

Ruel's assessment of Ken Dryden led the Canadiens to part with $2,000 for the youngster's negotiation rights. That was in 1964 and none of the money went to Dryden.

Education came first and Dryden, whose first choice was Princeton, transferred to the soft-sell blandishments of Clinton Rossiter, author and professor of government at Cornell.

Dryden took a course from Rossiter before he decided to major in history instead of government. He got a B grade and maintained it throughout his school life.

Dryden wanted to go to Yale, Harvard, Toronto or McGill to study law. He chose McGill and the Canadiens.

"My arrangement with Canadiens was this," he said, "I attended McGill full time, practised once or twice a week and played one home game a week with Montreal Voyageurs in the American League.

"I figured I could handle that much hockey along with law studies. But at Christmas, after the first term, I felt I could accept a heavier hockey load. I joined Voyageurs full time and made the road tripe. It was all working out well."

But between Cornell and McGill there was a two game stint with the Canadian national team in the world hockey championships of 1969 in Stockholm. Dryden filled in for injured Steve Rex and stopped the U.S. 14-1 before bowing 4-2 to Sweden.

Dryden was happy with the Voyageurs and his studies. Then the Canadiens encountered problems.

Rogatien Vachon, playoff hero of 1967 and 1969, had a bad year, losing Bill Myre wasn't ready for the NHL.

Dryden was promoted to the big team March 7, the last date on which he could earn playoff eligibility.

He played six games before the regular season ended—and won them all. When the quarter-finals opened against Boston, Dryden got the nod.

The rest is history.

Greg Kelly gets a foot massage from Pavla Cervinka after competing in a run-a-thon held at Trenton High School yesterday. The competitions were held to raise funds for the Trenton Track Club which includes members from Belleville, Brighton and Picton as well as home town entries. A total of $1,300 was raised by the 50 participants to help cover travel expenses and entry fees.

Dryden Tested at Every Turn

MONTREAL (CP) — It's a testing time in more ways than one for goalie Ken Dryden of Montreal Canadiens.

Besides stopping pucks fired by the best shooters the National Hockey League has to offer, he faces examinations in his other career as a law student.

The Canadiens start their best-of-seven NHL semi-final against Minnesota North Stars tonight and Dryden has law examinations scheduled Friday, next Monday and the following Thursday.

And the star of Montreal's quarter-final upset of Boston Bruins admits he has found it "very difficult to study lately."

"I'd try to read, but I just couldn't concentrate. I'd read something, but then I would have to read it again. And even then sometimes I wouldn't understand it. It was really quite frustrating.

"I'm going to see if I can write some of the exams later."

Dryden was in goal for all seven games in the Boston Bruins-Canadiens quarter-final series and his netminding wizardry was a key factor in the Habs' upset triumph.

The former all-America goalie at Cornell University hopes he starts tonight's opening semi-final game against the North Stars simply because "it's sort of fun playing."

Dryden says he is not tired despite playing seven games in the space of 11 days.

"You are tired right after the game, but soon you look forward to playing again—especially after a victory like last night Sunday against Boston.

"I've never seen the North Stars play—not even on television. But Phil Myre and Roggie Vachon have told me about certain players."

Myre and Vachon were the Canadiens' goaltenders in the regular season.

How Many Edges Do Hawks Have Left?

CHICAGO (CP) — Chicago coach Billy Reay isn't panicking despite his team's 2-1 overtime loss to New York Rangers Sunday.

Fact is, he thinks the setback in the opening game of the National Hockey League's semi-final did the Black Hawks some good.

"We needed that kind of game to hone off the edges," Reay said Monday while some of his players went through an unsupervised practice.

Reay was referring to hints by some observers of Sunday's contest that the Black Hawks may have lost their touch in finishing off around their opposition's net during a week's layoff. The Hawks were idle after they eliminated Philadelphia Flyers in four straight games of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup quarter-final.

Although New York outshot the Hawks 34-32 Sunday, Chicago—controlled most of the game, missing numerous opportunities, but, led only 1-0 after two periods. The Rangers came back to tie the score with less than four minutes remaining in regulation time.

Chicago and New York meet in the second game here tonight, then travel to New York for games Thursday and Sunday.

Reay talked seriously of "what Canadiens' 42 win over Boston Sunday that eliminated the Bruins from further Cup play.

"Montreal was really high," Reay said, "They'll never get any higher.

"That's what we'll have to do, get up there".

The winner of the Chicago-New York series meets the winner of the Montreal-Minnesota North Stars series for the Stanley Cup.

"I think we'll come back stronger Tuesday with a game under our belts after the layoff," Reay added. "But I think we had enough chances to win the (Sunday's) game. If we hadn't, I would be disappointed."

But some Rangers feel the come-from-behind win Sunday may have decided the series.

"Four straight!" Emile Francis, New York general manager-coach pondered thoughtfully. "Sure, it's possible, but that one Sunday was so close—it could have gone either way.

"Let's just say we have great goaltending and a fine defensive effort and hope we get it again".

Run-a-Thon Raises $1,300

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

TRENTON — Quinte area athletes were employing the philosophy of "run now, ride later" in a run-a-thon held at Trenton High School Monday.

The $1300, raised in per-lap pledges will be used for transportation to various meets by the Trenton track club, as well as entry fees and other expenses.

"I'm really pleased with the results of the run-a-thon", noted Trenton coach Peter Howe. "It means that if someone qualifies for the nationals, we'll have transportation money, and it's a big help from the coaching angle if you don't have to worry about finances."

A total of 50 runners from Trenton, Centennial, Moira and Brighton high schools took part in the venture. About 20 of the athletes from Belleville, Brighton and Picton have been competing with the Trenton club this winter.

The team has already participated in ten meets this season and have almost a dozen more scheduled for the spring and summer months.

Jim Thompson of Centennial was one of the contestants to reach the 30 lap maximum on the computer distance covering the 7½-mile distance in 46.32 minutes.

Barton Bourassa of Trenton was the top earner collecting $106 for his efforts, while teammate Bernie Lowry raised $30 towards the project. Prizes of a track suit and shoes will be awarded after all the money has been collected.

Trenton's next meet will be Saturday when they travel to Central Tech in Toronto to compete against a number of the top teams from the metro area.

The Bay of Quinte meet will be held Wednesday, May 14 this year at Centennial Secondary School.

Baby Habs On Ropes

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — St. Catharines Black Hawks trounced Montreal Junior Canadiens 8-2 Monday night to take a commanding lead in their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A semi-final series.

The victory, watched by 3,320, gave the Black Hawks a 3-1 edge in games in the best-of-seven series. One game was tied.

St. Catharines needs just one more point to oust the Canadiens, Canadian junior champions for the past two seasons, and advance into the finals against Toronto Marlboros.

The series resumes in Montreal Wednesday night with the seventh game, if necessary, scheduled here Thursday.

Clyde Simon led the Black Hawks with three goals. Marcel Dionne had two goals and three assists to bring his playoff total for nine games to 17 goals and 17 assists.

Four Teams Ante

Four teams have anted up for the 1971 Commercial Softball season and the only league is hoping for further entry action.

Holdouts from the Belleville Minor Baseball Association will get a last chance to ink their contracts Saturday when the organization will hold its final registration at the recreation centre.

A total of 250 boys have already registered and this year's figure could exceed the 300 who took part last season.

A meeting for registered peewee house league players will be held Saturday at 1 p.m. on the Parkdale diamond.

The final registration will take place between 9 a.m. and noon.

Olympics Stir Up Enthusiasm

The Olympic Soccer Club kicked up some enthusiasm last night with a total of 50 people turning out for the meeting including a dozen new faces to the soccer scene.

Richard Edwards, Adrianus Wolvers and Bill Hockley explained the club system of minor soccer to the new participants.

The meeting was held at Moira Secondary School.

Store Hours Survey 'Ridiculous'

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Picton clothing merchant Jesse Mason yesterday criticized the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce for its recent consumer survey regarding store closing hours and the desirability of making Main Street a one way traffic flow.

"To me, it was absolutely ridiculous to do this without consulting the merchants," stated Mr. Mason at a directors' meeting of the chamber conducted at Prince Edward Yacht Club.

The consumer survey took the form of a brief questionnaire inserted in the local paper. Although about 1,000 copies of the newspaper were circulated in Picton, a total of only 81 replies was received. It was reported that 41 persons favored rescinding present store hours while 15 supported existing business hours.

"Your replies are useless," commented Mr. Mason. "Forty-one persons want it? It's pitiful — you can't take that to council," he said ridiculing the small number of replies.

Directors of the Prince Edward chamber of commerce agreed to the questionnaire after forwarding a motion to town council asking that existing bylaws governing store closing hours be rescinded. Town council did not take action when the motion was received because time was needed to examine the bylaws in question.

Mr. Mason charged that there will be "chaos in the community" if each store is allowed to remain open without restrictions. He added that a merchant canvas would would show that the majority of businessmen remain in favor of present store hours.

President of the chamber Bernard Hepburn asserted during the meeting that his prime concern is for the consumer and for the strong possibility that a shopping mall will be built outside Picton. He emphasized the undesirable effect of a mall on the economy of downtown stores.

"There isn't a hope in hell that you'll get a shopping centre in Prince Edward," scoffed Mr. Mason. He argued that the county lacks the 250,000 persons needed to support such a venture. The merchant also felt that consumers who now shop out-of-town will continue to do so no matter what changes are effected in store hours. He termed it "human nature" to browse in neighboring stores. The thing is not to be competitive, have variety and give customers reasonable hours, in which to shop," he urged.

Mr. Mason said that Picton merchants offer shoppers prices which compare favorably with those of Belleville stores and also provide a wide variety of stock.

He noted that a merchant survey has been conducted and it shows the majority in favor of retaining the existing store hours. When questioned about this survey Mr. Mason told chamber directors that some stores were not contacted since they would have been definitely in opposition. Several directors did not feel the survey therefore reflected the opinions of all merchants, but Mr. Mason reminded that it is a majority signature that is required to show general feelings.

It was decided by chamber directors to conduct a second merchant survey through the business and professional committee of the chamber. Director Howard Mallett agreed to organize this survey with the provision that he will be given full information concerning existing restrictions and bylaws. The object of this canvass is to determine the number of merchants who wish present store closing hours rescinded. Bloomfield and Wellington merchants will not be included since no Tyne govern their closing hours.

Mr. Mason suggested that the chamber should also consider urging the community to schedule public events such as school fun fairs, on Saturday nights. He observed that Picton stores which remain open Friday nights often are not patronized because residents are attending other activities.

Choral Society Adds New Works for Concert

The Belleville choral society which will be held on Wednesday night at 8:15 at Centennial Secondary School will include some latest additions to the group's repertoire. These are two well known selections from two operas, the Soldiers' Chorus from Faust and Hail, Bright Abode from Tannhauser.

The concert, which is the society's contribution to Artafest '71, sponsored by the Quinte Arts Council, will also include a medley of songs from the popular musical, The Sound of Music.

True to the society's policy of including music by Canadian composers in its concerts, this year's program will feature three folk songs arranged by Leslie Bell and The Dark Hills, a poem set to music by the Canadian composer Keith Bissell.

The choir will also sing Father Gander Rhymes, a medley of songs written specially for the choral society by its accompanist, S. Alec Gordon.

Kerry Stratton, violin i s l. will be making his third appearance with the Belleville choral society. A native of Belleville, he is a student at McGill University where he is assistant concert master with the McGill Symphony.

Other young instrumentalists who will accompany the choir are John Bunner (percussion), Brenda Gunter (string bass) and Nancy Bickel (flute).

Soloists are Anne Boyd, Pauline Swain, Carol Farmer, Lee Riedel and Shirley Wiegand.

Before the program, the city of Belleville cultural award will be presented to artist Philippa Faulkner by Mayor Russell Scott and Lee Jourard.

Entertainment Roundup

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Patricia Nixon says she once worked as a Hollywood extra in such movies as Ben Hur and The Great Ziegfeld and had a crush on actor Robert Taylor.

In an interview in the current issue of McCall's magazine, the 58-year-old wife of the president described how she worked at movies to pay her way through college during the 1930s.

"I really eyed him," she says. "When we went back to California (in 1961), I told him this, and we had a good laugh."

The article says Mrs. Nixon was offered several tempting film contracts, but "I wanted to finish my education; this meant more to me than quick money; I didn't think I could go very far.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Actor Rory Calhoun, divorced last year after 22 years of marriage, was married again Monday in a Las Vegas Strip-wed ding chapel.

Calhoun, 48, married Susan K. Langely, 29, of Los Angeles. His ninth wife was divorced last month.

Calhoun and former actress Lita Baron filed cross complaints charging adultery in the divorce that ended what had been called one of Hollywood's most stable marriages. She was awarded custody of their three children.

Davey Makes Five Suggestions To Daily Newspaper Publishers

TORONTO (CP) — Senator Keith Davey, chairman of the special senate committee on mass media, urged Monday that the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association, meeting here next week, include on its agenda five points aimed at improving the quality of journalism in Canada.

Speaking at a Canadian Club luncheon, Senator Davey said publishers and newspapers are "humanly fallible" and therefore should take steps to provide checks on their own function in society.

Reiterating recommendations in the Senate committee report on mass media, Senator Davey said the CDNPA should consider at its annual meeting the formation of a press ownership review board to examine all transactions that would increase ownership of papers by any group or chain of newspapers.

The second point the CDNPA should consider, he said, was the inclusion in each paper's masthead of the names of the newspaper's owners.

Senator Davey also urged that publishers provide more funds to The Canadian Press to enable the news agency to assign more reporters to foreign countries.

"This is essential for Canadian understanding."

Senator Davey's fourth suggestion was that the CDNPA should become more concerned with editorial quality and ethics.

He proposed that the CDNPA establish university scholarships for journalists.

His final recommendation was that the CDNPA work toward the establishment of a national press council. Such a council, he said, would bring journalists, publishers and newspaper readers together to discuss ethics, quality and other "readers-digest problems" concerning the editorial operation of newspapers.

The senator emphasized that there should be "absolutely no government involvement" in such a council.

Senator Davey criticized the CDNPA for deciding to hold its annual meeting in private.

"It is a closed meeting," he said. "The publishers who quite properly demand access to every other kind of meeting across Canada close the doors tightly in the very people they purport to serve."

Although the publishers' association "touches the lives" of almost all Canadians, he said, "there will not be one, not one single outraged newspaper editorial" criticizing the closed meeting.

Brewers Talk to Workers

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of six major Ontario brewing companies and 2,000 workers met into the night Monday, trying to find a formula to avert a threatened province-wide beer strike.

William Dickie, chief conciliator for the Ontario labor department, said he could give no indication when the current session of negotiations would wind up. Nor would he say whether any signs of agreement were near.

The company and union negotiators held meetings throughout the weekend with Mr. Dickie at a downtown hotel. The union has had the power to call a legal strike since midnight Sunday night.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Why don't you stick to medical advice? What right have you to say that riding a motorcycle is more dangerous than driving a car? Some of you doctors are always trying to take the fun out of life for teen-agers. Don't be a square like the rest of them. — J.

• • •

COMMENT: It has been some time since I have cautioned youngsters about the dangers of motorcycling. However, whenever I do, I am bound to receive similar letters — but most are more intemperate and vituperative than the one above.

Stick to medical advice? I wonder whether or not those who protest have ever seen the victim of a motorcycle accident stretched out fighting for his or her life in the emergency room of a hospital. Is it a medical problem? Surely as much so as that of the heart attack patient receiving emergency treatment.

Call me square if you will, but I feel myself a shudder of apprehension every time I see a kid drive recklessly on a motorbike, even more so than when he is reckless at the wheel of a car.

If all lines of communication haven't been cut, I hopefully offer some tips and facts about motorcycles to those of you youngsters who will just listen — and leave off damning me until later.

Your argument that it's just as dangerous to drive a car is not true. For example, during 1968, the death rate per 100 million vehicle miles for motorcycle riders was about four times higher. This is especially important to know because registration for two-wheel motor vehicles has jumped from about one-half million in 1960 to an estimated 2¼ million in 1969.

You can see why more adequate knowledge on how to handle a motorbike becomes essential. Possibly half of motorcycle and motorbike riders are still in their teens. Inexperience contributes greatly to accidents. According to a research study of accidents, County Council recently studies have shown that as many as 80 to 90 per cent of all accidents involving motorcycles result in death or injury for the cyclist. The most serious type of injury are those involving the head.

Is there a remedy? Of course proper protective apparel is helpful: goggles, boots, gloves, jackets, and helmets. But what is most important is that all states should implement effective motorcycle safety programs.

Meanwhile, as you scoot by, please keep remembering that a motorcycle is not a toy or simply an emblem of surging power — it's just another way of getting somewhere — safely, I hope.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: A recent examination shows I am a healthy woman of 35. I'm not overweight. Ate about every six months, for a day or two, I have an intense craving for sweets. I put away a box of candy in addition to eating sweet desserts. Then it passes as quickly as it came. Are these cravings serious? Is it necessary for me to take a blood sugar tests? — Mrs. O.

COMMENT: As your physical was satisfactory, I doubt that your occasional "sweet tooth," which many of us have occasionally, is reason enough for blood sugar tolerance tests.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am now 80. When I was 75, I had a massive coronary attack. I have felt fine during the past five years because I've been in habit of taking a table-spoonful of bourbon at night, which helps my sleep. Lately I've been hearing that alcohol destroys the brain cells. Now what shall I do? — Mr. L.

COMMENT: I think your own doctor will agree that with your heart condition a good night's sleep is more important to your health than the (theoretical) loss of relatively few of the billions of brain cells.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Psychological Factors Vital

Of all the corny old proverbs, the one I happen to prefer most is the ancient British jingle that begins, "For want of a nail, a shoe was lost . . ." and so on, to the loss of a kingdom. It reminds us how tragic endings have their origin in tiny beginnings, and how strong the personal an contingent elements are in what we call "history".

The emphasis of Marx and other "determinists" on economic and political factors in shaping the course of nations has always seemed to me to slight the psychological and moral attitudes that are just as important. If Hitler had been a successful painter, for instance, instead of a failure, he might still be daubing away in Munich.

E. H. Harrod makes something of a similar point, in his biography of John Maynard Keynes, which I happened to be reading at the moment. In 1906 Keynes took his Civil Service examination, and came in second. The first man on the list chose the Treasury Department, and Keynes was left with the India office.

Harrod then speculates on the possibilities if Keynes had come in first and gone to the British Treasury Department instead. It is not at all unlikely that the whole course of modern European history might have been altered by this one examination.

At the Treasury, Keynes would doubtless have risen to the top, as he did elsewhere. Had he risen to the top he would have had much more influence in the Peace Treaty terminating World War I, and in the German Reparations Bill, which he bitterly opposed to no effect.

This would have been his first chance to change history: if Germany had not been so stupidly and wickedly treated after World War I, it would not have provided the fertile soil for the cancer of nazism. It was the Treaty of Versailles that gave Hitler his first handle.

Even later, if Keynes had been Winston Churchill's chief economic adviser when Churchill was Chancellor of the Exchequer in the crucial 1920s it is possible that the great Depression of 1929 might have been averted by Great Britain and the U.S. in this case, another powerful factor that swept Hitler into office would have been lacking, and World War II might have been avoided.

None of this is too fanciful — Harrod, who suggests it, is a sober and responsible economist, not a flighty literary man — and the whole course of the last 50 years of Western history may very well have hinged on Keynes' obtaining a first instead of a second in an examination he neither took very seriously nor worked very hard on. Certainly his subsequent influence on Franklin Roosevelt and the New Deal indicates that his ideas could change the tide of nations.

Blaze at Albert Guts Dormitory

Roy Peacock

Fire Damages Albert College Dormitory

Fire, smoke and water damage amounting to an estimated $200,000 resulted yesterday when fire swept through Graham Hall at Albert College. Here firemen fight the fire as smoke curls out through attic dormer windows along entire north side of the four storey building.

Loss $200,000 In College Fire

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

An overturned electric reading lamp is blamed for touching off a general alarm blaze which Tuesday afternoon swept through one of the men's dormitory wings at Albert College causing damage estimated at close to $200,000.

The fire, which started in a student's room on the second floor, ate its way up through the third and fourth floors and eventually out through the slate-covered roof before it was brought completely under control.

All students were in classes when the alarm was turned in at 2.40 p.m., but Fire Chief Culhane said the fire must have been burning for at least an hour before it was discovered.

Firemen quickly brought the initial blaze under control but the flames had already eaten their way up behind partitions and into the attic where it burned a 25-foot hole in the roof before being extinguished.

The fire chief said the metal shade of the overturned reading lamp apparently sealed in the heat until temperature rose sufficiently to cause combustion.

Firemen found the dormitory door closed and locked and said it was possible the blaze may have been smoldering for several hours before being noticed.

Two firemen were injured in fighting the fire.

Fireman Bob Davenport suffered a gash under his eye when struck by the business end of a pike pole and was taken to hospital for treatment.

Also, fireman Archie Hill, soon to retire from the department, had a wrist cut by falling glass.

Bengal Flight Heavy

NEW DELHI (Reuter)—The India - Pakistan diplomatic war was on the boil today as the number of refugees fleeing to India from East Pakistan was reported to have topped the 40,000 mark.

An official report issued in Calcutta, capital of India's West Bengal state bordering East Pakistan, said more than 300,000 persons had sought refuge in Bengal state alone since the central Pakistan government cracked down on secessionist moves in East Pakistan March 25.

No official figures were available for the number of East Pakistanis entering other Indian states and territories bordering East Pakistan on its eastern side but observers estimated it must be around 100,000.

The Press Trust of India news agency reported heavy fighting in the Sylhet region in the northeast, which it said was almost entirely under secessionist control.

"It's a trick, I tell you!"

Veterans To Ignore Camp Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vietnam veterans demonstrating against the war have vowed to stay at their camp grounds on the Mall despite an order by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger banning their use of the grounds.

Burger issued the order without comment Tuesday after the battle-dressed veterans staged mock search-and-destroy missions on the Capitol steps, lobbied with congressmen and placed two wreaths in Arlington National Cemetery in memory of Vietnam war victims.

News of Burger's ruling was carried to the 1,000 veterans at their campsite Tuesday night by one of their lawyers, former attorney-general Ramsey Clark.

"We won't go," the veterans shouted as Clark cautioned disobeying the evacuation order would bring arrest. The justice department says enforcement of the order will begin late this afternoon.

Teachers Oppose Uniform Ceilings

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation told the legislature's committee on human resources today it thinks individual boards should be allowed to exceed the uniform ceiling on education spending if necessary.

Representatives of the 33,000-member federation told the committee it is not opposed to restraints on education spending, but believes the uniform ceiling across the province has been harmful to some areas.

The federation presented the committee with a 17-page brief showing how it believes some boards have been hurt because their individual needs were not Federation President Geoff Wilkinson said areas hit particularly hard by the uniform ceiling include Carleton County, Ontario County, Metropolitan Toronto, Lincoln County and Niagara South.

"We wish to see a mechanism taken into consideration.

by which local school boards, those most accountable to their own electors, may make the deliberate decision to offer a level of service above the provincial average," the federation said.

A text of the brief was released in advance of presentation.

Separate School Monies Used for Catholic College

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board has provided sums totaling $28,900 to the private sector of Nicholson Catholic College over at least a two-year period, it was revealed last night in an auditor's statement.

The advancing of funds by the board, without expectation of repayment, would be in contravention of its powers," said Wilfrid J. Wilkinson of the Trenton firm of Wilkinson and Company, in the notes appended to his financial statement for the board up to Dec. 31, 1970.

The audit shows that "accumulated advances" from the board to the college amount to $28,900 as of Dec. 31, 1970. The college has paid back $15,094 of this amount in 1971.

"No provision has been made in the accounts to reflect the possible uncollectable portion of this receivable," says the auditor's notes. "The $28,900 receivable from Nicholson Catholic College . . . has not been supported by proper documentation and is doubtful of collection unless the college disposes of its assets or obtains new sources of revenue."

However, since the report, dated March 16, 1971, was received, steps have been taken by the college's board of governors to obtain extra funds.

At a meeting called Sunday night at the college, the chairman of its board, Richard E. Barrett, told about 200 parents of NCC students that it would be necessary to charge tuition fees if the college were to pay off its debts and continue in operation.

Mr. Wilkinson said from Trenton today that the NCC debt to the separate school board arose because "each rendered services one for the other, in the case of teachers, for instance."

Gatineau Water Sold For Export

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ottawa firm doesn't plan to wait for a national energy policy to start exporting Canadian water to the United States.

Negotiations are under way with two American firms to export bottled spring-fed water from the nearby Gatineau Hills.

Norman Mirsky, president of Pure Springs (Canada) Ltd. said today that if agreement is reached the water will be shipped in plastic containers, possibly in quart, half-gallon and gallon containers.

He said Pure Springs already has three springs capable of supplying mineral water, and is looking for further sources.

Radex International Corp., a Maryland-based firm, is one of the companies with which Mr. Mirsky's firm is currently negotiating.

Pentagon Reports 'Fragging' Doubles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fragging incidents among United States troops in Vietnam doubled in 1970 over the previous year, the Pentagon disclosed Tuesday.

The Pentagon released figures on the number of fragging incidents after Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told the Senate about the murder of a young West Point graduate in his sleep by an enlisted man who tossed a grenade into an officer's billet.

Fragging is a term describing incidents involving the hurling of a fragmentation grenade by one American serviceman against a fellow soldier.

Pentagon confirmed Mansfield's report of 209 fragging incidents in Vietnam last year and said this compared with 96 in 1969. There are no records for previous years.

The Pentagon said 34 men were killed last year in fraggings and 39 in 1969.

Poverty Researchers Plan Own Report

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four researchers who recently resigned from the Senate poverty committee say they will publish and distribute pamphlets across Canada offering their views on why this country has poverty and what can be done about it.

Peter Penz, who resigned as an economist with the committee along with three others, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa Tuesday night the pamphlets will cost less than $1 so the poor can afford them.

Mr. Penz, who quit along with fellow economist Brian Hull and writers Ian Adams and William Ment with the committee chairman Cameron following a disagreement, Senator David Croll, said they expect to have the pamphlets out before July and a full report will be published in the fall.

He said he could not reveal yet what solutions the four will suggest because the issue is so complex and different proposals are interwoven.

"We will be suggesting new approaches that have not seriously been looked at in connection with poverty," said Mr. Penz.

He said the basic proposal for reform of the taxation system, will be included in the economic philosophy of the maverick group.

Its report will include labor supply policy and the structure of job opportunities, investment and proposals for modernization assistance. Underlying it will be an analysis of wealth.

In Ottawa Tuesday, Senator Croll warned that information gathered for the poverty committee belongs to the committee.

He rose on a point of privilege in the Senate to say it would be a grave misuse of privileged and confidential documents for anyone else to make the information public.

He noted that the four committee employees who resigned had signed contracts in which they agreed to treat as confidential any information coming to them through their work.

Lagoons Retain Arsenic

Queen 45 Today

Official celebration of the Queen's birthday comes this year June 12.

Several years ago, the Royal Family decided official celebrations of the monarch's birthday, involving outdoor pageantry should take place in June rather than the actual calendar date.

Britons took note of the birthday by flying flags on buildings throughout the country.

Ice Removal Problems Keep Dog Show Out

Despite the need for more space than is available at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium, the Belleville and District Kennel Club will have to get along this year without the use of the Belleville Arena as the location for its International All Breed dog show this summer.

The local kennel club earlier in the year requested the use of the downtown arena for its dog show on Oct. 23 and 24, even offering to pay the additional costs of removing and re-installing the ice.

Yesterday, recreation and arena committee members agreed that removal of the arena ice to allow staging of the dog show would be impractical.

However, the committee will offer the use again this year of the Ben Bleecker Auditorium and the suggestion that kennel club members approach the Quinte Exhibition fair board for the use of nearby fair building in which to prepare dogs for the show ring.

In other business, committee members agreed (finances permitting) to the provision again this year of an evening supervisor at Queen Victoria School to allow continuation of community program activities.

Also the committee agreed to the use of the Belleville Arena in connection with the annual Girl Guide and Boy Scout church parade on May 16.

Board Funds Used by College

The college receives government grants at the elementary school rate for all students in Grades 9 and 10. Grades 11, 12 and 13 at the college receive no government support and are considered a private school. The NCC board of governors has suggested that tuition fees for students in these three senior grades be set at $120 per student per year. No decision has yet been made on the payment of tuition pending the receipt of pledges from parents of students. But The Intelligencer was told that the majority of parents attending the hastily-called meeting Sunday night were in favor of paying tuition.

The private sector of NCC is supported by the three Roman Catholic parishes in Belleville.

"Never in its 40 years of operation has Nicholson charged tuition to resident pupils," said Mr. Barrett this morning. "Out-of-town students have paid $200 a year tuition."

The chairman declined to say for publication the amount contributed by the parishes without further consultation with his fellow governors.

Mr. Barrett said the advances made by the separate school board to the college have been accumulated since 1966. But Mr. Wilkinson, the auditor, said today that to his knowledge they have been accumulating for only the first two years of county board's operation—1969 and 1970. Mr. Wilkinson's firm has audited the books of the separate school board since its institution Jan. 1, 1969.

A meeting of the college board of governors to decide on imposition of tuition fees will be held Friday night. Members of board are the three parish pastors, Msgr. J. P. Sullivan of St. Michael's, Msgr. J. A. Corley of St. Joseph's, and Rev. Reginald Sweeney of Holy Rosary. Mr. Barrett, Kennedy Seeley, E. J. Buckley and Herbert Brown representing St. Michael's parish. Robert Lavery, representing Holy Rosary and Dr. J. F. Letersky and Bernard Hurley representing St. Joseph's.

In his report, the auditor also noted that the arbitration of the assets and liabilities of each individual board brought into the county board on Jan. 1, 1969, has not yet been made. The arbitrators' report was due by July 31, 1970, but has not yet been received.

"The delay in obtaining the report of the arbitrators . . . contravenes section 20(6) of the Separate Schools Act, which required that it be completed by July 31, 1970," Mr. Wilkinson said in his notes.

The board's 1970 expenditures were $2,549,901. Total deficit at the end of the year was shown as $109,299. This was a reduction from the deficit of $117,012 at the end of 1969.

At the Tuesday night regular public monthly meeting of the separate school board, discussion of the auditor's report was held over until the next meeting. Trustees authorized the administration to publish the report in The Intelligencer within the next 21 days, a legal requirement.

Grant Announced For Parkland

Government approval of a provincial grant of $25,000 to the Moira River Conservation Authority for land acquisition as an addition to the greenbelt flood plain lands along the Moira river inside the city limits has been announced by Hon. George Kerr, department of energy and resources management, and Hon. Richard Potter, MPP for Quinte.

During the past year, the authority initiated a scheme to acquire property on the west side of the Moira extending south from Highway 401 to the seasonal dam opposite Fry Park for the purpose of developing a greenbelt along the river flood plain.

The authority is now intending to purchase a 10-acre parcel of land lying immediately to the west and adjoining the properties previously purchased.

The city, as the main benefiting municipality will bear a major portion of the authority's share of the cost.

The authority now owns more than 60 acres along the west side of the river between Highway 401 and College Street and ultimately hopes to increase the total area to approximately 60 acres.

Long term planning by the city parks board calls for development of the above mentioned area as an attractive park and recreation area.

Committee Appointed

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward county councillors have appointed a ten-member land division committee to hold terms of office varying in length, front one to three years.

Those appointed for one - year terms include H. B. Simpson, Alva Collier and David Whattam. Two - year members are Ralph Richards, Ross Bovay and Donald Bond. Three - year appointees are Clifford Wilson, Hugh B. Johey, Herbert Cooper and Clinton Green.

Members of the finance and personnel committee explained that terms of office were staggered to provide continuity in the newly organized committee. One-third of the land division committee's membership will retire annually.

Peace March Plan Gets Final OK

Permission has been given to organizers of the Peace for People March by city council, parks board and the police department for the march to be held from Victoria Park and to follow the route of Pinnacle St. to Victoria St., south to Front St. and re - assemble in the market square.

The march, say organizers, is designed to promote peace throughout the world with no political implications.

There will be a short gathering in the Victoria Park grounds to hear music and poetry and to hear organizers of the march speak on the aims of peace.

Other proposals had been that the march start at the grandstand and touch Front St. as little as possible.

Wayne Ridsdale, organizer of the march, said in a meeting with the parks board that this would defeat the purpose of the event. He said that the marchers want as many people as possible to see them as marchers and understand what the marchers are doing.

The Front St. area, said Mr. Ridsdale was the obvious place on Saturday afternoon for the most exposure to people of Belleville.

After debate it was decided between Police Chief Douglas Crosbie and Mr. Ridsdale that the march could be held on the portion of Front St. between Victoria and the Market Square without causing a serious traffic problem.

The march will begin at 11 a.m. at Victoria Park and disperse to re-unite at the market square. From here the parade will move on the design-

The benefit the township talent proposes is a variety show advertised for Saturday April 24 commencing at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Kente school. The director for the entertainment is well known local country music and folk ballad singer Norman Post.

Blaze

Joseph H. MacKay, headmaster at the college, said 27 boys were quartered in the Graham Hall dormitory wing — most of them in single rooms.

Taylor Franklin, college bursar, said the fire was discovered by two students who, as they were passing the dormitory building, spotted smoke seeping out through north side windows.

The school alarm was turned in and classes were speeded evacuation.

When it was learned the fire was in Graham Hall, firemen were called.

College officials today had high praise for the work of firemen in bringing the blaze under control under difficult conditions.

"We are very appreciative," said Mr. Franklin. "We are pleased with the response of firemen. It could very easily have been a total loss."

Mr. Franklin said tenders would be called immediately for restoration of the dormitory wing.

In the meantime all students have been provided with alternate quarters. A section of the lad's residence, Highland Ave. has been closed off for use by junior boys. Senior students will be accommodated in Baker House, while a few will have quarters at the college infirmary.

Fire-damaged Graham Hall was opened in 1926 along with the main college after it was moved to Dundas Street west from College Street.

The college property in West Belleville is part of a 42-acre tract of farm land given by the city in the early 1920s to keep the college in Belleville when consideration was being given by the board to moving it to Brockville.

Construction in the early 1920s was with wood rather than steel lath and once yesterday's fire got in behind the partitions it quickly rose to the attic.

The blaze, while not spectacular except for a few brief moments when it broke through the roof, nevertheless attracted a big crowd of passersby and area neighbors.

Adding to the crowd of onlookers was the college student body and concerned staff members who had an unexpected half holiday from classes.

Oh Yeah?

'Most Serious Fires in Winter'

"And they say you have most of your serious fires in the winter?" .

That was the comment of one city fire official yesterday as firemen quenched the last of the flames which resulted in up to $200,000 damage at the Albert College Graham Hall dormitory.

The college blaze was one of three alarms answered yesterday by firemen — two of them being serious blazes.

Shortly after nine Tuesday morning, firemen were called to the Lafferty - Smith Transport warehouse building on Bleecker Ave. near the CN tracks which destroyed an old section of the building and damaged stored bags of raw cocoa and piles of wooden pallets used for mechanical handling of materials.

Then in the afternoon firemen were called to the dump at East Zwick's Island with a number of firemen still being there when the alarm from Albert College came in.

With the general alarm at Albert College, firemen moved over from the city dump, while off-duty firefighters also reported for duty to help out in fire-fighting duties at the college.

Trenton Controversy

Dundas East Owners Oppose Zoning Change

TRENTON (Staff) — One group of Trenton residents does not like the idea of curbing commercial expansion on Dundas East — the property owners along the eastern arterial road.

A majority of the 15 people who attended the public discussion of Trenton's new official plan here last night had interests on Dundas East and objected to a land use projection in the plan, calling for a "highway commercial" zone there to revert to R2 residential.

Scattered commercial zoning along Dundas East is limited in the plan — approved by Trenton and Suburban Planning Board March 30 — to two small neighborhood commercial sites, adjacent to supermarkets.

In line with the TSPB desire to contain commerce in the downtown area and curb sprawling shopping centres, the area on Dundas between Campbell and Flindall streets — now largely in commercial use is slated to become residential. Existing businesses would be allowed to continue but any projected new ones would contravene the land use scheme.

Lyle Carr, active in initial stages of the ward system debate, said if floor commercial on the official plan, which must still be approved by council and the department of municipal affairs.

Referring to Dundas East, he said, "it has gone more and more commercial. You cannot put residential on it. . . . I would block commercial development."

Furthermore, Mr. Carr stated the Ontario Municipal Board "has said it is not feasible for it to go residential."

Dennis Flood of the consulting firm, Project Planners, told Wayne Dobson of 179 Dundas East a person might face zoning problems, if he closed a business along the strip and tried to open it up again.

Unlike many other properties in the community, those on Dundas East would deteriorate in value if they were zoned from commercial to residential, according to Trenton real estate broker, Hugh O'Neill.

A lot of people with land on the route, he said, have bought because of its commercial use.

Mr. O'Neill told members of the planning board in attendance, they would "be taking away from the value of these properties . . . by many times, values would be greatly decreased," with the proposed change in land use.

Five-Year-Old Home Again

A five-year-old boy taken to Belleville General Hospital last night after being struck by a car in Rossmore has been released following observation.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said today that no charges were laid in connection with the incident.

Dr. Robert Patrick, TSPB chairman, indicated there was some confusion between the official plan and zoning regulations. He explained that the plan is conceptual and does not impose zones just projected land use areas to be broken down into zones.

Despite this, Lyle Carr concluded the change was an implicit threat against the people on Dundas East "who want to stay as they are".

Cleanup Time Here Again

The city's garbage collectors, Quinte Sanitation Services Ltd., and the city public works department are apparently not in complete accord as to what constitutes garbage.

In a recent newspaper advertisement regarding spring cleanup, the city engineer notes that refuse not normally considered garbage will be collected by city works crews if placed at the edge of the street in time for the cleanup crew.

It is noted that grass, yard debris and similar materials are garbage and should be placed in containers for the normal garbage collection.

Spring cleanup by the works department commenced this week in the West Hill district and will continue through to March 14 before the entire city is covered. Dates are different for various parts of the city.

But the garbage collectors in some instances are said to be refusing to pick up grass and other yard debris which has been put out in bags.

Failure to pick up the grass and debris loaded bags seems more pronounced when a half dozen or more bags are put out at the same time.

But the city engineer says that the pickup of such materials (in bags or other containers) along with the normal garbage collection is covered under the city's contract with the collector.

63-Unit Condominium Approved for Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — Council here Monday followed the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board in approving a 63-unit condominium development for the northeast part of town.

However, before sanctioning the site plan of the Toronto firm, Ack Construction, a number of recommendations were made by town engineer, Arthur Campbell.

In a report, he suggested the parking lot on the 4½-acre site off Sidney Street at Alfred be hardsurfaced by a five-foot-high wall to conceal the view of cars. He also advised curbing of the roadways which, he said, should be "hard surfaced."

Sam Diamond, a spokesman for Ack, disagreed with the wall idea, saying the same concealing effect could be achieved with shrubs. Council decided to give the developer freedom in how he chooses to hide the cars.

Mr. Campbell said the town should "never assume responsibility for the streets and services in the development."

Council was told that this would be spelled out in the deeds of each property and potential purchasers would be made aware of their own responsibility for such services as snow removal and garbage collection. However, councillors decided the contractors should keep an interest in the management of the project for five years to ease transition of the area's administration to the home owners themselves.

Considerable interest was sparked by a proposal of the planning board that another roadway from Kerr Crescent be provided to serve the site.

One access road was already planned from Sidney St.

Moe Karten of Trenton, another Ack representative, said the company was trying to provide homes for workers as cheaply as possible and another road would increase the cost of the scheme.

He added that a "prominent architect" advised him against the second roadway, allowing access through the property from east to west, because "every Tom, Dick and Harry would use it as a throughway".

"We reviewed this matter and agreed wholeheartedly with Mr. Karten's comments," said town clerk O. W. Larry.

In approving the site plan, council stipulated that a road allowance be left so that a second access way may be built if it is eventually deemed necessary.

Education Tasks

In view of the hassle over cost ceilings on education imposed by the Ontario government, a memorandum known to Conservative party members by Education Minister Robert Welch is of interest.

According to Mr. Welch, the ceilings represent a level of expenditure per pupil "that will enable a board to provide a quality of education that is adequate."

The ceilings were determined after examining the 1970 expenditure estimates of every board in the province and apply to ordinary expenditures ,a term which the minister says includes all expenditures except long-term debt charges, capital expenditures from revenue funds and transportation expenditures.

The basic ceiling for an elementary school pupil is $545, up nine per cent from the 1970 ceiling for grant purposes, and for a secondary school pupil $1,060, up six per cent for the same contingency. For boards in the defined cities, the ceiling is 20 per cent higher for elementary school pupils and 10 per cent higher for secondary school pupils.

The Minister's memo goes on to say that the ceilings are so designed that, with the possible exception of two relatively small secondary-school boards in the territorial districts that were unable, because of such factors as small schools located long distances from each other, to curtail their expenditure levels in 1970, no board will be forced to reduce the number of dollars it can spend on a pupil in 1971.

"The department's calculations," the memo adds, "indicate that before it would be required to spend less per pupil in 1971 than it had in 1970, an elementary school board would have been exceeding its 1970 ceiling by 33 per cent and a secondary school board by 20 per cent . . ."

On this general theme, a recent address by Premier Davis to the Canadian Ratepayers' Association is of interest. In it he made some significant comparisons — for instance, some people see no contradiction between demanding new services and at the same time complaining about costs. The total cost of suggestions made in the legislature in 1969 for improving education services added up to more than a billion dollars. This, he said, would have doubled the education budget. At the end of the session Mr. Davis added, the same people were calling for reduced costs.

The Gross National Product for 1970, mentioned by the Premier, is also revealing. Totalling $84 billion, it included 1.4 per cent spent on cigarets, 2 per cent on liquor, 3.2 per cent on new cars, 3.3 per cent on gasoline and 4.8 per cent on education. This meant that the people of this province spend almost as much on cigarets and liquor combined as they do on education. Twice as much is spent on new and used cars and their upkeep as is spent on education.

These are sobering facts which help put the total education costs in perspective.

They may also give us pause to dwell for a moment on just where our money is going, and not just on education.

A Hardy Breed

Politicians are a hardy breed. They pursue their political activities, not to mention their various professions as well. It is a life of unremitting effort, although of necessity a man does find time for himself and make due allowance for rest, exercise and recreation.

John Diefenbaker takes his early morning walks and George Hees has his daily swim. Prime Minister Trudeau jogs, skis and goes scuba diving while also allowing skill at judo.

But some know when to quit. John Roberts for example. The former Ontario Premier said in Halifax recently that PC leader Robert Stanfield had tried to persuade him to enter federal politics. There was "no way," however, that he would run in a federal election if one was called this fall because he would not go "from one world of utter and absolute pressure to another."

You do not often see it defined as precisely as that — not by a politician himself, for he must always put his best foot forward, never appear rattled, upset, tired and so on. Maybe we could absolve Labor Minister Mackasey from this, on those occasions when he must grind on through the night in those interminable labor negotiations!

FBI and Its Veteran Chief Increasingly Under Fire

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — As recently as a few weeks ago, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover probably could have stepped down gracefully, the tributes of a grateful nation drowning scattered voices of criticism.

Now, in the view of many observers of the recent drama flooding over the director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, he has missed his chance.

He is the man who stayed too long and now his departure will inevitably be marred by the cheers and jeers of his critics, united as never before in the 47 years he has dominated the FBI.

Incredibly the 76-year-old Hoover—he remains in office beyond retirement age by grace of presidential decree—has suddenly come under fire from many sides, with even congressmen breaking tradition in making pointed personal attacks on the United States top cop.

"The disintegration of the image of J. Edgar Hoover is really quite impressive," writes D. J. R. Bruckner in the Los Angeles Times. "It compensates one for having been born too late to see the Titanic sink."

"To many Americans, that is not too much of an overstatement.

Perhaps most painful of all to Hoover's towering ego is theft of secret files from a Medina, Pa., FBI office. The paper-detailing FBI tactics in racial and campus disorders—have gradually been fed to the press, keeping the embarrassment alive.

The vision of the policeman unable to protect his own property is said to have sent Hoover into a towering rage.

Until recently, Hoover was undisputedly the country's most successful bureaucrat ever, more secure in his domain than any office holder—including presidents. He has served under eight presidents since the day he took over the scandal-ridden bureau and, with firm hand and a genius for efficiency, moulded it into a model force, envied around the world.

He was at times at least a few steps ahead of his nearest critic.

His notorious secret files and the elaborate technology at his disposal for investigating an individual kept all but the most foolhardy critics at bay.

Now things have changed. Of late, much of the American public has been aroused by evidence of widespread "snooping" by the FBI and other agencies, including even the military.

But the real storm broke April 6 when Representative Hale Boggs of Louisiana, the Democratic majority leader, startled his colleagues with a one-minute speech accusing Hoover of emulating the tactics of Hitler and Stalin and keeping some congressmen under surveillance.

President Nixon and Attorney-General John Mitchell rallied to Hoover's defence and Boggs did not elaborate on his specific proof. Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield also defended the FBI chief but later changed his mind when it was discovered the FBI had in fact recorded conversations with a congressman charged in a bribery conspiracy case.

On top of that Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine, leader for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, has noted, even criticized, for his cautious approach, disclosed the FBI had conducted widespread surveillance of last year's anti-pollution rallies on Earth Day.

The tempest and some others were enough to crack the Hoover Dam, with other lesser critics rushing forward to join the attack.

As for Hoover's future, no one is prepared to make any firm predictions. He could retire, which seems unlikely. He could be fired, which seems even more unlikely, given Nixon's firm endorsement last week.

And so, it seems likely he will stay on indefinitely.

Observers note the situation would change if the voters replace Nixon in 1972. Democratic presidents have flirted with the idea of getting rid of the conservative-minded Hoover in the past, it is said, but didn't dare it. But the comments of all the leading Democratic contenders make it clear Hoover could not survive in office if a Democrat is elected.

Litter and Pollution Everywhere

Are We Destroying Our Environment?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The environment of Belleville and district is slowly being destroyed. By garbage and refuse of all kinds. Cans, papers, bottles and plastic containers of all kinds.

Someone took the liberty of dumping newspapers, cartons, and oil cans on the south side of Station Street, just past Trenchimer Ave., in Belleville. The wind has now blown them in all directions, making an unsightly mess.

On the Bay Bridge Road, papers have blown from the city dump and are littering the road sides. Almost any street or road in the city and district has this refuse lying on them.

Off the south-west corner of Zwicky's Island, Christmas trees were placed on the ice of the Bay of Quinte, to act as markers (at the time of the Winter Carnival. But who ever put these trees on the ice must have thought it was too much trouble to remove them, when these trees had served their purpose. When the ice melts they will go into the water of the Bay of Quinte further polluting it.

Some of the industries in Belleville and district litter the areas around their establishments. Parking lots with papers, bottles, cans and almost anything you can mention on them; the wind blowing papers in all directions, making a mess of other persons' property.

Local municipal governments have garbage dumps, which are not properly supervised in controlling the disposal of their refuse: Sidney and Thurlow town ship's burning of their refuse further polluting the air; Belleville, Thurlow and Sidney letting papers blow all over the place and destroying the environment a little more.

Where are the Government inspectors who are supposed to look after situations of this kind? They allow the pollution of our air, water and land to go on unchecked. We have laws which if properly enforced, would control many of these polluters.

When are the provincial and federal governments going to act to enforce their own regulations? The polluters must be stopped regardless of who they are. The environment can only take so much of this kind of treatment. We have had lots of talk, now let's have some action, for our health and even lives depend on the action taken in the next few years.

KENNETH B. PEOPLES

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Peoples is absolutely correct, as we noted in an editorial entitled "What An Image" last week: "We pay lip service to the problem and do nothing, or rather continue tossing everything from beer bottles to oceans of paper and cardboard to the four winds and into the streams and rivers . . ."

Quebec and Newfoundland's Exclusion of Women Jurors Challenged by Sen. Ferguson

Montreal Gazette

The right of two provinces, Quebec and Newfoundland, to continue to exclude women from jury service is being seriously challenged by Senator Muriel Ferguson and a number of other members of the Upper House. Apparently, Senator Ferguson is correct in her contention that the question of who may serve on juries falls within federal jurisdiction. She was assured of this by government Senate Leader Paul Martin.

Having raised the issue, Senator Ferguson now is out to clear that, unless the cabinet acts, she will introduce her own bill in the Senate. In view of her demonstrated determination to put an end to the exclusion of women from juries, the cabinet might be well advised to move first.

It is an obvious anomaly and a regrettable anachronism that this kind of discrimination against any section of society should exist today. The sooner the ban is removed, the better. What is surprising is that any Quebec support for Senator Ferguson's crusade seems strangely muted. Here is a wrong that needs righting. In this province such grievances generally get vigorous and highly vocal support.

Any vestiges of the discredited principle that women are limited members of society with limited roles to play should be removed. In excluding women from jury services, Quebec is perpetuating an outdated discrimination. Ottawa can put an end to it — and should do so without further delay.

Ceylon the Latest Target of Revolutionaries

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — The eruption of civil violence in Ceylon has both surprised and perplexed diplomatic observers here, although the grievances which gave rise to the current turbulence have long roots in Ceylon's political life.

The United States state department gave every indication of surprise when radical young Ceylonese suddenly emerged two weeks ago as an apparently organized and cohesive force on the tropica' island off the south coast of India. Other Western diplomats here also admit to having been caught unawares.

The perplexity of Western governments is easily understood. Major Western powers now are being called upon to supply helicopters and other support to a government which has aroused them in the past, nationalized the property of their citizens and pursued policies in direct conflict with their own.

"Better the devil you know than the devil you don't," seemed to be the Western attitude in which they see Afleftwing, pro-Eastern government under assault by even more extreme left-wing elements.

The government of Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike has received its principal support so far from the U.S., Britain and—in unusual accord for the moment—India and Pakistan.

Other countries which Mrs. Bandaranaike has asked for help—the Soviet Union, East Germany and the like—have remained aloof from the government's plight and, as far as is known here, completely silent.

Reports from Ceylon that members of the North Korean embassy in Colombo have been implicated in the rebellion could not be confirmed.

One Western diplomat has characterized the situation as "the old problem of politicians who have been unable or unwilling to keep their promises."

The armed radicals, known as the Guevarraists, had become alienated from Mrs. Bandaranaike's left-wing coalition government. They claim it has failed to proceed quickly enough in nationalization of private industry, expansion of welfare services and revitalization of a sagging, nearly bankrupt economy.

Many of the radicals are said to be students who could not find jobs after graduation from universities in Ceylon and abroad.

The situation is enough to give pause to those who see communism as a unified force. Mrs. Bandaranaike's government has been supported and influenced by Ceylonese Communists from two normally hostile factions—the regular pro-Moscow party and a larger Trotskyite group. To the radicals, both factions are irrelevant. Most of the old leaders took up communism before the Second World War and have not much altered their ideas since then to accommodate Maoists, Cubans and other post-war offshoots.

Even more dubious to the radicals are Mrs. Bandaranaike and members of her dominant Freedom Party. The prime minister is herself the daughter of an aristocratic Ceylonese family and the widow of a middle-class leftist prime minister who was assassinated in 1959. Many other colleagues have similar upper classes which have controlled much of Ceylon's life before and after independence from Britain in 1948.

Western diplomats here say the Ceylonese government was apparently as surprised as anyone by the uprising.

Some observers believe a carefully-planned revolt was "spoiled" when some radicals prematurely attacked the American embassy in Colombo. Police and army units answered widespread caches of weapons and explosives, plus plans for an attempt to overthrow the government.

Even with the tip-off the government has been hard pressed to restore order and regain control of rural and jungle areas of the island.

NDP Opens Its Leadership Convention

OTTAWA (CCP) — The New Democratic Party opens its national convention today to elect a new leader and plot its course through the rocky political waters of the public ownership and Quebec issue.

Today's debating was expected to begin tamely enough, with policy discussions on agriculture, fisheries and labor.

But by Friday, after joining to honor outgoing leader T. C. Douglas, the 1,800 voting delegates will be faced with the divisive questions of how much government ownership is good, and what relationship Quebec should have to the rest of the country.

The new leader will be elected Saturday.

In the running are David Lewis, 61, now deputy to Mr. Douglas; Edward Broadbent, 35, MP for Oshawa-Whitby; John Harney, 40, York University professor; Frank Howard, 45, MP for the British Columbia riding of Skeena; and James Laxer, 32, Queen's University lecturer from Kingston.

Mr. Lewis is widely expected to lead on the first ballot.

But as delegates shift their votes on succeeding ballots, the other candidates give themselves good odds to win.

The delegates are to meet all the candidates at a banquet session tonight.

The ownership debate likely will be spurred by the party's nationalistic, left-wing Waffle group which sought unsuccessfully in pre-convention committee to send to the convention proposals for immediate nationalization of resource industries and financial institutions.

The Waffle also wanted a long-term NDP goal of public ownership of all major corporations in manufacturing, resources, financial, transportation and commodity distribution sectors.

Instead, the party's resolutions committee approved for convention debate proposals for government planning in the private and public sectors; and a halt to foreign take-overs of Canadian industry.

On the Quebec issue, delegates from the province battled in pre-convention committees for a clear statement of Quebec's right to self-determination.

In a compromise, with objections from English-speaking delegates, the committee approved a resolution that would send the issue to a party bicultural council for study, after outlining the points in dispute.

The points are whether Quebec should itself decide to separate or not, the range of relationships that can be discussed and whether Quebec should negotiate on the basis of parity with English Canada.

The decision to send the issue to the council is aimed at avoiding a floor fight on the questions that could have led to a walkout by Quebec delegates.

Leadership candidates will speak to the convention Friday night—but only briefly.

Organizers say they will each have just 15 minutes for a speech and demonstration by supporters.

Trudeau Silent On Security Act

OTTAWA (CP) — With the Public Order Act due to lapse in 18 days, Prime Minister Trudeau Tuesday again refused to give any clue to government plans.

He told former prime minister John Diefenbaker, who asked in the Commons whether the act's life will be extended, that an announcement will be made before the end of the month.

Mr. Trudeau also told Mr. Diefenbaker he hasn't yet replied to a letter from Premier Bourassa of Quebec asking for continued measures after April 30.

"He too will know before the end of the month," Mr. Trudeau said.

Donald MacInnis (PC—Cape Breton-East Richmond) said further legislation doesn't appear to be needed since the premier had told European countries all is well in Quebec. Mr. Bourassa is in Europe on business.

Benson Defends Tax On Building Materials

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson Tuesday defended the federal government's 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials on the grounds that virtually everything else in the home is taxed.

Before the Commons finance committee approved the finance department's 1971-72 spending estimates totalling $3.391 million in a little over 2½ hours, he was asked why the sales tax is retained on building materials.

The general federal sales tax is 12 per cent, applying to most manufactured goods except food, and is applied at the wholesale-to-retail level of trade. Unlike provincial retail sales taxes, it is hidden in the price of goods sold to consumers.

Mr. Benson said more than half the revenue the federal government obtains from the tax on building materials comes from commercial construction projects, not residential.

Mr. Benson said he is not entirely happy with the application of another kind of tax, the succession duty on estates. Ottawa now pays over to the provinces three-quarters of the estate taxes it collects. Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia have their own estate taxes and Saskatchewan and Alberta rebate the provincial share to the estates so that, effectively, they have no tax on them.

Mr. Benson said he would prefer to see equal treatment of estates across Canada.

Prisoner Hero of Revolt

TORONTO (CP) — A prisoner named Barry MacKenzie was the hero of the Kingston penitentiary rebellion, says one of the members of a citizens' committee named by the prisoners to intercede in their behalf during the four-day insurrection that ended Sunday.

Toronto lawyer Aubrey Golden said Tuesday MacKenzie risked his life for the release of the six guards held hostage.

He said MacKenzie's bravery was displayed late Saturday night when fighting broke out among the prisoners and four of the spokesmen were afraid to go back to them.

MacKenzie went back alone and sold the idea of surrender, Mr. Golden said.

Attack on Waffle Defended

WINDSOR (CP) — United Auto Workers regional director Dennis McDermott Tuesday defended his attack on the Waffle group of the New Democratic Party by saying he fears they may alienate the electorate.

Mr. McDermott was commenting in a press conference on the occasion of the annual reunion of Local 444 retirees.

He defended his intervention into the Waffle drive in the current leadership convention for the NDP in Ottawa by saying that as a NDP member he "had every right or at least as much right as James (Mr. Laxer) to voice opinions on this matter."

Commenting on international unionism, Mr. McDermott said it is a peculiarity of the North American continent which was established because of interlocking economies.

He said the UAW in Canada has all the autonomy it wants, but its link with the international union in the U.S. is essential to provide it with the strength to negotiate with international companies.

"It would be absurd, ludicrous, to expect the UAW in Canada to take on the great conglomerates alone. General Motors for example would put its foot out and squash us."

Mr. McDermott said the UAW in Canada is just as concerned with foreign control as any other citizen or group, but stressed that an international union is tied to international corporations, and as long as one exists, the other has to be.

THE TEACHER ANSWERS

Question: Do you agree with Educational Ceilings?

Answer: Yes we agree with the general concept of Ceilings on Educational Spending.

BUT!!

Question: Are you opposed to the Ceiling as imposed by the Ontario Government?

Answer: Yes. This ceiling is inflexible and against the best interests of ALL students. Surely we all must understand that as society (and education) changes so will the INDIVIDUAL needs and teaching methods change. Arbitrary ceilings allow little flexibility in adjusting to the needs of ALL students.

Question: Do you agree that economy in education is necessary?

Answer: Yes, remember we too are taxpayers. We feel that costs should be as low as possible and still do an effective job of educating the students of Ontario. As taxpaying members of society, we believe that PROPERTY TAX cannot support the burden of education cost. The Province must equalize the burden of education across Ontario so that no one area shares a greater burden than another.

B and P Women Elect New Officers

As is the custom for most organizations at this time of year, new officers for the coming year are elected, and the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club was no exception when an election took place at the regular meeting held at the Sun Valley Motel, Monday evening.

Annual Synodical Meeting

Mrs. G. Williamson, president of the Kingston Presbytery WMS, Mrs. J. McFarlane, president of the Toronto and Kingston Synodical, Mrs. B. Hackett, general c onvener of the annual meeting, Mrs. H. Hogg and Mrs. V. Weir discuss the three-day program at St. Columba Presbyterian Church. The 24th annual meeting of the Presbyterian Synodical of the Women's Missionary Society which started on Tuesday will conclude on Thursday.

Home Care Program Topic at Meet

MARMORA — Mrs. A. Kuglin, nurse administrator for the Home Care Program for Hastings and Prince Edward County, was guest speaker at a meeting of the Marmora Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society held April 14, in the Marmora Public Library.

The Home Care Program, for Hastings and Prince Edward County, is a relatively new one being undertaken. Mrs. Kuglin described the professional nursing services in the program; also related the professional services of the physiotherapist.

She also gave details of the auxiliary services provided, such as medical, surgical supplies, drugs, hospital and sick room equipment, arranging for x-ray and laboratory tests, home - making services and co - ordination with the services of other voluntary agencies, such as the Cancer Society and the Red Cross Loan Cupboard.

The Hastings and Prince Edward County Home Care Program is presently serving the nine southerly municipalities of Hastings County and the area at present serviced by the VON in Prince Edward County.

Two other guests, accompanying Mrs. Kuglin, were Miss R. Cuthbert Regional Supervisor for Central and Eastern Ontario for the VON, and Miss V. Truax, nurse in charge of the Quinte Branch of the VON. They spoke briefly concerning the work of the VON and stated that the VON is on call seven days a week, 24 hours a day.

Mrs. Granville Meikle john, president, presided over the business portion of the meeting, with reports presented by committee chairmain.

The report of Mrs. George Wist, campaign chairman, showed that the recent "Blitz" had been successful in raising 98.6 per cent of the 1971 objective for funds — $543.53 had been collected to date, with other collections yet to be received.

Mrs. James McChesney, treasurer, reported assistance had been given towards the cost of eye glasses for a family. The Branch is grateful for the donation of a cane from Mrs. Tom Young.

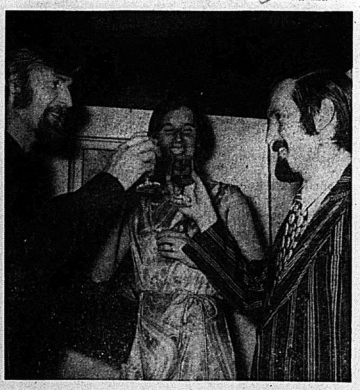
It was decided that copy of a letter received, regarding participation by the Branch in the Government's Opportunities for Youth Program, would be given to the Village Council and the Recreation Committee for further study.

The resignation of Mrs. Alice Stark as committee chairman for Sr. Citizens was accepted and Mrs. Francis Rothermel agreed to accept this position.

Mrs. Eldon Killian was appointed Water Safety Chairman and will represent the Red Cross Branch on the Recreation Committee. Their slogan this year is "Think - Don't sink". Be water wise.'

Two Young Sisters Expert at Touch Typing

TORONTO CP - Two little girls, using a new-type keyboard on a typewriter, have learned to touch-type, one at the rate of 80 to 96 words a minute.



Kelley McCauley, a 12-year-old who attends grade 6, learned to type 12 days after her father, Robert, brought two typewriters home for the girls.

Kelly is the faster. Her six-year-old sister, Marlo types about 45 to 50 words a minute. It took Kelly 18 days to learn, but now she can type faster than either her mother, a secretary before her marriage, or her father.

Kelley does all her homework on the machine, writes letters to friends and relatives and writes thank-you notes for her classmates following school field trips.

The machine she uses has a Dvorak keyboard which has all the vowels on the same line.

In June Kelley will travel to Phoenix, Ariz., with her father to give a demonstration of her ability at the International Communications Association.

Church Groups

ST. COLUMBA CHURCH

The Presbyterian Women of St. Columba Church held their monthly meeting on Monday, April 19 and preparations to receive guests from many cities as far north as Sault Ste. Marie, for the Presbyterian Synodical — St. Columba will be the host for this occasion, including a dinner on Wednesday, April 21.

The meeting commenced with a short worship service headed by Mrs. M. Devolin and her group, followed by the business meeting with president Nancy Burke in the chair. Plans were discussed for a Fall Fashion Show and several dinner undertakings for which the group will provide the catering.

Highlight of the evening was a talk and presentation of slides by Miss Frieda Matthews, on her recent trip to OBERAMMERGAU to see the Passion Play which is presented every 10 years. It is interesting to note that the Passion Play was first enacted in 1634 and the present Play involved hundreds of residents in the surrounding area, who grew beards and long especially to portray the characters.

The play was presented from May until September 1970, five days a week and each performance ran for 5½ hours. The slides gave a wonderful insight into the beauty of the Play, depicting Christ from the Beginning to the Crucifixion to the Resurrection, and it was a great inspiration to learn that the Theatre in which the Play was presented, housed 5000 people for each performance.

Synodical Holds Annual Meeting

The 24th annual meeting of the Presbyterian Synodical Women's Missionary Society which began on Tuesday night at St. Columba Church was continued today at the same place.

Lunch was served at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and the afternoon session included prayer and workshops.

After dinner at 6 p.m. the members will meet again at St. Columba Presbyterian Church where Rev. Alex S. Calder, Moderator of the Synod of Toronto and Kingston will be present to extend his greetings.

The highlights of the evening program will be an illustrated talk on the Holy Land by Miss Giolio Kelly and a worship service conducted by Rev. Alex S. Calder.

On Thursday, the new officers for 1971-72 will be elected and installed and a communion service will be conducted by Rev. David Murphy.

Local Nurse Senior Tutor In Australia

A local nurse Mrs. Linda M. Buzzell (nee Hogg) is having a rewarding and interesting experience "down under" in Australia.

Mrs. Buzzell, a graduate of BCIVS, Belleville and the Kingston General Hospital School of Nursing accompanied her husband to Canberra, Australia when he was awarded a scholarship by the Australian National University to obtain his Ph. D in parasitology.

Mrs. Buzzell who obtained her bachelor of nursing degree at McGill University was immediately employed by the Canberra community hospital as a sister tutor and since then she has taken an active interest in nursing education in Australia, with the full support of the matron of the hospital.

She has recently been appointed to the position of senior tutor at the Canberra hospital. She has been on the planning committee of the University of New England's summer school in community development and also has been actively concerned with the development of a two year pilot course in general nursing at the Canberra hospital.

Mrs. Buzzell is a member of the Australian nursing federation, being treasurer of the association at the branch level and one of the federal councillors at the federal level.

Mrs. Buzzell recently visited her mother who lives in Australia. She is now preparing for her last winter in Australia (where the seasons come in the reverse order that they come to Canada) and is making travel arrangements for their return to Canada by Christmas. There is no snow in Canberra but the Australian Alps are within easy reach and the Buzzells enjoy skiing in July and August.

Mrs. Buzzell taught at the Belleville General Hospital for a year prior to her marriage and also at the Kingston General Hospital but Canberra is the first place where she has seen a class enter and also graduate.

Sesame Cheese Bread

An easy road to popularity is along the homemade bread route. Mary Moore today has given you explicit directions for making two handsome sesame cheese loaves. Our freezer stockers will be glad to hear these loaves freeze to perfection.

Fancy Breads Are Easy to Make

By MARY MOORE

When you are window shopping and pass a bake shop with those beautiful loaves of fancy breads entice you to come in and buy them just remember that you can make them yourself.

Try your hand at

SESAME CHEESE BREAD
(2 loaves)

1 pkge. (1 tbsp.) granular yeast
1 tsp. sugar
¾ cup lukewarm water
1 cup scalded milk
2 tbsps. sugar (second amount)
2 tsps. salt
2 tbsps. butter
2 cups (½lb.) shredded old Cheddar cheese
About 4½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 egg yolk (for top)
About 1 tbsps. sesame seeds (for top)

In your largest beater bowl soak the yeast with the 1 tsp. sugar in the lukewarm water 10 min.

Meanwhile stir into the scalded milk the 2 tbsps. sugar, salt and butter and cool to lukewarm. Add milk mixture and cheese to risen yeast liquid. (NOTE: This may seem like a lot of cheese but it is necessary to give the loaf a real cheesy flavor.)

Add 3 cups of the flour and beat until you have a smooth dough and longer if your strength holds out. Work in one more cup of flour. Cover with a towel and let rise until more than doubled. Mine took 2½ hrs. at 70 deg. Fahr. in the kitchen.

Sprinkle kneading board with remaining ¾ cup of flour, punch down dough and turn out on floured board and knead 100 times. I was able to knead all but ¼ cup of the flour on the board into the dough. Cut into four pieces. Shape each piece into a long roll. Twine two together like a fat two-strand rope. Place each of the 2 loaves in 2 buttered standard loaf pans, tucking ends under. Brush tops of loaves with undiluted egg yolk, using all of it. Now carefully sprinkle sesame seeds all over egg-yolk-brushed top and let rise (under lamp if possible) for 2 hrs. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 30 min. or until rich gold and slightly separated from sides of pan. Cool on racks. Serve 1 loaf for current meal right on the table on a bread board, slicing it with a razor sharp knife as requested.

This cheese bread freezes exceptionally well if you have any leftover.

Dinner Menu

WEDNESDAY
(Oven Dinner)

Beef Loaf with Onion Gravy; Baked Potatoes; Baked Pepper Squash; Shredded Lettuce and Spinach with Italian Dressing; Raisin Pie; Coffee.

Sorority Chapter Plans Events

The regular meeting of the Alpha Lambda Chapter was held April 14 at the home of Donna Knox with 15 members present.

During the business portion of the meeting plans for the annual Black and Gold Ball were discussed and favors for Founders Day, April 30 were decided upon. A potluck supper will be held at the home of Marilyn Johnny on May 15. It was decided that all members would send a single yellow rose to their mothers on Mother's Day.

Election of officers for the year 1971-72 were completed with the following accepting office: president, Marg Zakos; 1st vice pres., Irene McInnes; 2nd vice pres., Marilyn Johnny; recording sec., Donna Knox; corresponding sec., Marg Vanderveldt; and treasurer, Barb Jamieson. They will be installed at the meeting on May 12.

An extremely enjoyable program was presented by Cathy Carter on the topic "Self Estimate". After a short introduction all the girls had a chance to personally evaluate themselves, which proved to be most interesting.

An auction sale of articles that girls had brought from home was followed by refreshments being served by the hostess and co - hostess, Marg Vanderveldt.

Seven pledges took their test and will have their ritual of jewels on April 28th at the home of Cathy Carter.

Those with Colds Should Stay at Home

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please say something about people who are so proud of themselves because they come to work when they are sick as dogs. In our office the desks are very closely spaced. The woman who sits at the desk next to mine has had a hideous cough and a cold for over a week. She sounds as if she belongs in a T.B. sanitarium. The way her chest rattles I wouldn't be surprised if she has pneumonia.

ANN LANDERS

I caught her cold yesterday and I'm sure I'll be home sick tomorrow. The same thing happened last year. This woman infected the whole darned office. Three people missed two days of work because of her. I figured out she was the cause for 48 hours of absenteeism.

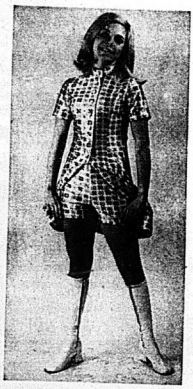
Please print my letter. Typhoid Mary never misses your column. Just to make sure, I promise to pin it up on the office bulletin board. — WHERE ARE YOU LINUS PAULING, NOW THAT I NEED YOU ?

DEAR WHERE: Here's your letter and I can promise you that it will go up on office bulletin boards all over the country. This is a universal problem and I'm happy for the opportunity to get the message before the public.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a cousin who is so cheap it hurts. She and her husband have visited me four times in the past six months. They could well afford a hotel but it is easier to sponge off a relative.

The first time they came they brought a can of cornedbeef. Last time it was a sack of peanut clusters. They never let me know when they are coming and they have yet to write a thank-you note. Please say something about people like this in your column. — NEW ORLEANS SUCKER WHO IS SICK OF BEING TAKEN ADVANTAGE OF.



DEAR NEW: I have nothing to say to them. But I do have a word for you. Are you so hungry for company that you will put up with anything? I have a standard reply for folks who complain that they are being taken advantage of: It takes two to play that game — an insensitive clod and a fool who allows himself to be used .

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you blasted people who give "dead fish" handshakes. Shame on you, Annie, old girl. You've erred. The limp hand does not necessarily mean the person is a clod or that he lacks oomph. It can mean the poor devil has arthritis. I have suffered with this affliction for years and it is a curse. When I shake hands I protect myself by avoiding a tight grip. I don't feel I should apologize. I just hope the other party understands. — SEEN IN THE BEST JOINTS.

DEAR SEEN: Sorry I offended all you arthritics out there but how is a person to know if nothing is said? Rather than extend a limp mitt, better to touch the other person's hand and say, "Sorry — arthritis."

MRS. JAMES CREE, 58 Dixon Drive, Trenton, COMES MAXI DISCOUNTING AT LOBLAWS—AND SHE COMES OUT AHEAD.

Mrs. Cree, who shopped Loblaws before MAXI DISCOUNT prices came into affect says, "I have certainly noticed a considerable difference in the prices over the past few months—I shop for a family of six so I shop with care and I find I'm saving at least $4 or $5 a week with these new prices. As far as comparing Loblaws with other food stores—I check the newspaper every week and compare that way and I've gone around and tried all the other food stores in town but I always end up back here at Loblaws because I've found that overall I really do get better savings here—especially when I consider the quality of the food I buy at Loblaws. Loblaws quality is always very good."

Girl Wants Affection; But Not to Fight Off Suitors

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: How can I make a date understand that I want to stay a virgin until my wedding day? I want to wear white and deserve to wear it.

You can't just get to know a person if you have to fight him off all the time. At the same time I long to have someone hold me. I guess I am just starved for love and affection.

I want so much to be noticed and admired by men. I want them to love me and not just my body. — Twenty-Four Years Old

Dear Twenty-Four: So now we have to apologize for refusing sex to a date?

Try countering the if - you-loved - me - you'd - prove - it line with the if - you - loved-me-you'd - respect - me - enough to wait idea. Believe it or not, sex before marriage causes guilt feelings.

Of course you want affection. Who doesn't? This is a lot different from the passion, a te and intimate embrace we are talking about now.

You can give friendship and warmth and show a willingness to be interested in your dates. You can give the resources of your mind without capitulating, body and soul. Try it that way.

• • •

Dear Doris: Can a woman who is living common law and using the man's last name get a job using that name; or does she have to give her other last name?

• • •

I've heard a person can use another name or change it, but is it legal without going through court? — C. L. Wife

Dear Wife: In Canada you may use any name you wish, but you should be consistent.

If you have not worked for many years and do not have a Social Insurance card, you may apply for one in the name you wish to be known by. If you do have a Social Insurance card already, you can have the name changed by visiting your local Unemployment Insurance Commission Office.

It is all quite legal. Just don't risk a mix-up if you want to claim benefits later.

• • •

Dear Doris: I can well remember having to memorize The Red River Voyageur in school many years ago. To me the Red River was sort of mystic. In 1966 I went to Winnipeg (from New Brunswick). I got a taxi and asked the driver to take me to the Red River. He took me over the river and to where the flood had been several years before. It sure was a letdown to me. Lots of creeks or brooks here are nearly as wide.

On the train coming home I was talking to a retired engineer who had had a lot to do with building parts of the railway many years before and he told me not to judge the river by its appearance. He said the current was very strong and the water was quite deep.

It certainly was a beautiful trip. I don't know any way a person could spend a more enjoyable time than on the train. — Engine Wheels

Dear Engine Wheels: Trains have a magic all their own. They bring you close to the scenery and give you a real sense of the vastness of our country.

Sorry the Red River let you down — but glad the old-timer picked you up again! Sometimes our dreams of far-away places run away with us — and why not!

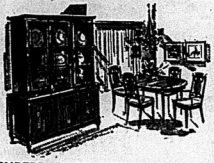
• • •

We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris about your particular human problem enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Son: "Who moved all my chemistry test tubes? I was working on an experiment here."



Mother: "I won't touch things on this table, so anything you're working on, put it here. I'll clean the rest of the room and you can clean this part yourself."

Children's possessions are sometimes more important than adults may realize. Don't make housework so important that you disregard your youngster's right to a little clutter in his own domain.

Hull Snaps Drought To Pull Hawks Square

CHICAGO (CP) — It didn't matter to Cliff Koroll that he scored what proved to be the winning goal in Chicago Black Hawk's 3-2 victory over New York Rangers Tuesday night.

To the Chicago right winger, it was more important that he helped Dennis Hull break a playoff drought.

Koroll's first-period goal put the Hawks in front 1-0, then Hull scored in the second and third periods as Chicago evened the best-of-seven National Hockey League semi-final series at one game each.

Koroll's goal came after Ranger goaltender Ed Giacomin failed to hang on to a Stan Mikita shot. And his assist came when he and Hull combined in a second-period break with only Ranger defenceman Rod Seiling between them and goaltender Ed Giacomin.

Hull, streaking down the left wing, passed to Koroll, who returned the pass after drawing Giacomin. Hull flipped the puck high into the net for the score that took the pressure off the Hawks.

"The goal was a big one," Koroll said. "But I like the assist a little better.

"It got Dennis on the scoreboard and gave us a 2-0 lead," he said.

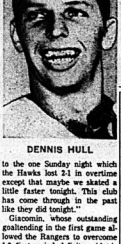
"I've been very confident this year and when you have confidence you can make the plays. I feel I'm making less mistakes and playing a lot smarter than last year."

Hull, elated after shaking the playoff slump, thought for a while he couldn't buy a playoff goal after scoring 40 times in regular-season play.

"On the first power-play, I had the corner open," Hull said "I was counting it. But Giacomin stopped it."

His first goal, he said, was just a matter of flipping the puck up into the empty net because Giacomin had been drawn out by Koroll.

"After that first game, we knew what it would mean if we lost this one," Hull said. "I was happy to get that one into the empty net—I liked that."



Giacomin was pulled in the last minute of play in favor of an extra attacker but Dennis Hull again ended the threat with a long shot into the unprotected goal with 15 seconds left.

"I don't care about the shutout," he said bluntly. "We won the game."

It's now a three-out-of-five series and home ice doesn't mean much," said Chicago coach Billy Reay. "It hasn't meant much in the playoffs this year.

"The game was very similar

to the one Sunday night which the Hawks lost 2-1 in overtime except that maybe we skated a little faster tonight. This club has come through in the past like they did tonight."

Giacomin, whose outstanding goaltending in the first game allowed the Rangers to overcome 1-0 first-period deficit, said his team-mates were going to have to score more goals to win the series.

"You can't just wait to score in the last couple of minutes," he said. "In the last two games, we haven't done well.

"It's tough when you don't have goals," he explained. "The pressure mounts—you know the next mistake could be another goal and then . . . but give the guy at the other end credit."

The New York goaltender said a cut too his left hand that required five stitches to close suffered in a collision with Chicago bobby Hull in the first game didn't trouble him Tuesday night.

"The hand didn't bother me at all," he said, displaying the bandaged hand to reporters.

Emile Francis, general manager-coach of the Rangers, didn't appear upset over the loss.

"We just got through winning two overtime games on the road in Toronto and in Chicago," he said. "We're not going to cry about it."

While the Rangers are planning to score more goals in the next two games of the series in New York Thursday and Sunday, Reay's strategy will be to wear a certain brown suit.

Reay wore thee suit every game in Chicago's quarter-final series with Philadelphia when the Hawks eliminated the Flyers in four straight games. He wore it again Tuesday but not Sunday, when the Hawks lost.

"I'm not superstitious," Reay said, "But I'm going to be wearing it Thursday."

Stars Good For First 20

MONTREAL (CP) — Captain Ted Harris of Minnesota North Stars did the best job of defending the first game of the National Hockey League semi-final between the North Stars and Montreal Canadiens.

"We had a real good 20 minutes," he said after the game Tuesday night. "The trouble is the game is 60 minutes long."

The North Stars did look good in the first period. But after that it was all downhill for the West Division team as the Canadiens' pumped seven goals past goaltender Lorne (Gump) Worsley en route to a 7-3 win and a 1-0 lead in the series.

JACQUES LEMAIRE

"What are those Canadiens made of?" asked Bobby Rousseau, the right winger Canadiens traded to the North Stars last summer. "They come off a tough series with Boston and you'd think they would have a letdown. But no way."

The North Stars outskated and outplayed Montreal in the opening period and grabbed a 2-0 lead at 11:45 on Danny Grant's power-play goal.

The North Stars, appearing in their first Stanley Cup series against an East Division team, appeared to have caught the Montrealers off guard.

"We didn't start out well at all," commented Montreal coach Al MacNeil. "We weren't at our best.

"I don't know why. You could say it was a letdown after the Boston series, but I don't think so.

"They just moved in the second period. There was no emotional pleading or pitch on my part."

Marc Tardif tied the score at 1-1 at 5:48 with a blistering shot from inside the blueline and then Jacques Lemaire scored three times to tie a National Hockey League playoff record for most goals in a period by an individual player.

Lemaire sent Montreal ahead 2-1 at 11:07 combining with Henri Richard and Frank Mahovlich on a three-way passing play.

Four minutes, later, he beat Worsley with a shot to the short side and added his third goal with 69 seconds remaining in the period.

In the third period, the Canadiens kept right on top of the visitors getting three goals—one each from Tardif, Frank Mahovlich and Guy Lapointe—while Bill Goldsworthy was the Minnesota scorer.

"We'll know more by Thursday," said Minnesota coach Jackie Gordon. "We didn't look sharp. It's been a long layoff for us from last Thursday to Tuesday and I think we were affected by it.

"We got away from our checking game and weren't playing positional hockey after the first period."

Gorden said that Cesare Maniago would start in nets for Minnesota in the second game of the series Thursday night.

McAuliffe 'Maddest' In Tiger-Oriole Melee

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clay Dalrymple was mad. So was Earl Weaver. And Jack McAuliffe . . . ooh, was he mad!

It was just a mad, mad, mad world at Tiger Stadium Tuesday night.

McAuliffe capped a night of madness by bouncing into catcher Dalrymple at home with the winning run that gave Detroit Tigers a 7-6 victory over Baltimore Orioles. The ninth-inning collision almost touched off a wholesale fight as both American League benches emptied, but it was stalled by the umpires.

"That's the way you're supposed to play the game," said losing manager Earl Weaver, referring to catchers blocking the plate.

"Ellie Hendricks did it earlier to Joe Niekro and Bill Freehan did it to Boog Powell . . . so Dalrymple was going to do it to McAuliffe."

Weaver pointed to the fifth inning when Hendricks, the starting Baltimore catcher, was flattened while blocking the plate in a collision with Detroit pitcher Joe Niekro. The run preceded Jim Northrup's three-run home run.

In the Orioles' five-run eighth inning that tied the game at 6-6, Powell roared home, but was cut down by an Al Kaline throw after a single to right field. In this case, Freehan was blocking the plate, too.

DICK McAULIFFE

Northrup then lashed a single to left off Pete Richert that chased Mose McAuliffe. Greeting the Tiger runner with open arms was Dalrymple, an eighth inning sub. Only trouble was, he didn't have the ball.

"McAuliffe never touched home," said Weaver," but it didn't matter—Dalrymple was ruled for catcher interference."

After McAuliffe got up, Dalrymple followed him from home and tagged him. McAuliffe showed. Dalrymple, Dalrymple showed back and the other players joined in before the umpires quieted things.

Elsewhere, Washington Senators defeated New York Yankees 7-1, Boston Red Sox whipped Cleveland Indians 4-2, Minnesota Twins nudged Kansas City Royals 5-4, Chicago White Sox stopped Milwaukee Brewers 7-1 and Oakland Athletics beat California Angels 4-0.

Frank Howard ripped his first home run of the season and scored three runs, leading Washington over New York.

"I hope this gets me going," said the broad-shouldered slugger. "This probably has been one of my slowest starts."

Gary Peters doubled home the first two runs for Boston in the fifth inning and defeated Cleveland with relief help from Ken Tatum.

Reliever Ron Perranoski preserved Minnesota's victory in the ninth inning by getting Fred Patek to hit into a double play with men on first and second.

Pitcher Bart Johnson drove in three runs with a second-inning double and a grounder in the eighth and scattered eight hits for Chicago.

Oakland used Jim ('Catfish') Hunter's three-hitter and two homers by Sal Bando to take care of California.

Niekro Finds Lost Knuckler

Phil Niekro lost his knuckleball in Atlanta last summer, found it in Arizona last fall, retained it in Florida this spring . . . and gave it to Pirates in Pittsburgh Tuesday night.

The Niekro knuckler was jitterbugging to perfection and the Pirates managed only six hits as Atlanta Braves posted a 2-0 victory on Hank Aaron's two-run homer off Bob Moose in the first inning, the 598th of his career.

"One of his knuckleballs was taking off and the other—the bottom was dropping out of it," said Pittsburgh slugger Willi Stargell. "I was just looking for the one in between."

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis Cardinals ended San Francisco Giants' nine-game winning streak 3-1, Cincinnati Reds edged New York Mets 3-2 on Johnny Bench's two-run homer in the eighth inning, Philadelphia Phillies nipped Montreal Expos 1-0 behind Chris Short's three-hitter, Chicago Cubs downed Houston Astros 3-1 and Los Angeles Dodgers whipped San Diego Padres 6-2.

Niekro, who pitched Atlanta to the championship of the NL West in 1969 with 23 victories, slipped to 12-18 last season and his non-knuckler was tattooed for 40 home runs. After the season he worked with the Braves' instructional league team in Scottsdale, Ariz., and regained his touch.

He apparently came all the way back Tuesday night. Even during 1970's bad times, though, Niekro shut out the Pirates twice.

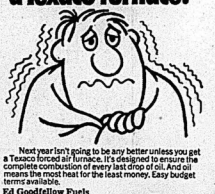
"I usually pitch pretty good against this team," he said. "The thing about us," said Pittsburgh's Bob Robertson, "is that we're a free-swinging club and a club like us is going to have more problems with that knuckleball."

The Giants seemed a shoo-in to run their winning streak to 10 when they sent ace Juan Marichal against Reggie Cleveland of St. Louis, a 22-year-old native of Swift Current, Sask. Cleveland had won all six of his major league decisions, including four last year.

But the Cards nicked Marichal for both their runs in the fourth on a walk to Matty Alou, who stole second and continued to third on Dick Dietz' throwing error, then scored on Joe Torre's single. Ted Simmons tripled for the deciding run.

Cleveland blanked the Giants until the eighth when they scored on Tito Fuentes' two-out single. Reliever Frank Linzy ended that rally but Moe Drabowsky had to come on in the ninth with the bases loaded and strike out George Foster and Fran Healy to preserve the triumph.

The Giants lost outfielder Bobby Bonds when he suffered a severely sprained ankle trying to get back to first base on an attempted pickoff in the third inning.



Manager Gil Hodges of the Mets elected to pitch to Bench with two out and a runner on second in the eighth inning.

Sportsmen's Show Sets Attendance Record

TORONTO (CP) — An attendance record was set at the 1971 Canadian National Sportsmen's show held in Exhibition Park last month.

The 10-day exhibition attracted 384,000 persons, 40,000 more than the previous high.

General manager Harold D. Shiel partly attributed the increase to the number of school children who attended. The show coincided with the school spring vacation.

An attendance record also was set at the Sportsmen's Dog Show. The dog show, held at the same time as the sportsmen's show, drew 35,000 persons, an increase of 7,000 over last year.

Quinte Club's Birthday Bringing Big Changes

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

The Bay of Quinte Country Club is one old-timer who doesn't object at all to letting a little grass or even a few trees grow under its feet.

"We're a publicly owned course so the members all own a share in it and as a result they take a tremendous pride in 'our course'", says current president Abe Tobe, "and we have a lot of changes planned for the next few years."

A great number of changes have already been introduced to the Belleville links since the club began operations 50 years ago.

"As a member, I'd say that there was more general interest in the game than there used to be," remarked publicity chairman George Haggis.

Club pro, George Balazs, who has served in that capacity for 17 years at the Quinte course has also experienced a shift of responsibilities in his position. "Now the job consists mainly of supervising the first tee-off, giving lessons and public relations work in general," he explained, "whereas up to five years ago I also had to serve as greenskeeper as well."

Course maintenance is currently looked after by Henry Guertin, who oversees a staff of nine assistants and almost $50,000 worth of equipment.

"There has to be much greater mechanization today, or you'd be paying fantastic amounts of money out in wages," relates Abe Tobe. "It's like operating a 150-acre farm, while having to work around trees, benches and sand traps."

One change that the club officials would definitely like to see made is the image of a snobbish, exclusive clique which is almost inaccessible to the average working man. "It might have been that way 25 years ago, but it certainly isn't like that now. We have teachers, railroad workers, doctors and factory employees and just about every other vocation as members," says the president. "All that we ask is that members purchase a $100 share when they join, and that's the same amount that was charged 50 years ago.

"There's very little congestion around the first tee" adds Balazs, "and I think that part of the reason must be that our members come from so many different jobs that they don't converge at the same time when they finish work."

Although the club attempts to limit membership at the current 600 mark, a number of positions are left open each year with members moving to other cities or retiring.

Because of the expropriation of land for widening Highway 2, all golf next season will be played north of the highway. Two new par four holes are being constructed this summer for use next year by designer Gordon Witteveen.

The current par 71, 6800-yard layout will range close to 7,000 yards next season, while playing to a par 72.

"While our first hole (which along with number 18 is slated to be replaced by the new fairways) was a light driving hole it was only 286 yards," noted Tobe. "The changeover next season will mean that we have 18 tough, championship holes.

"We're happy to see a number of other golf courses operating in the area," he adds, "everyone has to learn to play somewhere and once they progress to the point where they're ready to play a championship course, we figure that they'll give us a try."

Among the plans for the future are an underpass under Highway 2 and the possible building of a new clubhouse near the existing site. "We'd have to increase our social membership if we plan to erect a new clubhouse to ensure that facilities like restaurants, tennis courts and a swimming pool would be utilized fully," the president acknowledges. "Then the golf part would just be something extra, while your family could enjoy the other facilities."

Play has already begun on the course this season and officials are optimistic of a successful year. As club president Tobe explains, "the construction of the two new holes won't interfere in any way with current play and the course is at least three weeks ahead of the condition it would be in any other year."

Bay of Quinte Country Club pro George Balazs and course superintendent Harry Guertin are giving a push towards course maintenance while club directors George Haggis and Abe Tobe get ready to test the facilities. The country club, which celebrates its golden anniversary this summer has a number of major changes in the offing. The 600-member club will add two new holes next season with the possibility of a new club house being constructed at a later date.

Minor Gear Due Friday

It's easy for the 1,200 boys who participated in Belleville's minor hockey program to forget about the sport at this time of year.

But the BMHA has to do its spring cleaning like everyone else.

The organization's equipment convenor, Bill Dennis, asks that all minor hockey coaches and managers turn in sweaters and equipment Friday at the Memorial Arena's minor hockey equipment room.

Musical Chairs?

Filling the president's chair of the Women's Softball League has proved to be a difficult assignment so far.

Two meetings have already been held and all nominees to the executive have declined to serve in an executive capacity.

A voluntary committee of Pat Robson, Verna Hill, Valerie Brown and Betty Anne Dafoe has been set up to look after registrations and to organize the league.

Registration will be held Saturday at the Recreation Centre from 8.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m.

Marse Joe's Baseball Edict: Fast Games Don't Sell Hot Dogs

The baseball Hall of Famer, whose black hair is streaked by only a few strands of gray, has been a gentleman farmer on his 61-acre Yankee Farm in nearby East Amherst, N.Y., since retiring in 1950.

Now McCarthy's main "managing" tasks are supervising nurses and housekeepers who care for his wife Elizabeth, an invalid for 64 years.

In a concession to his age, he permits others to tend his flower beds and crops.

He retains an excellent memory and has firm ideas on the endurance of baseball tradition.

"There's nothing wrong with baseball," he said in a pre-birthday interview. "Just provide the boys with bats and balls and a place to play and this country will continue to develop top players."

McCarthy notes that baseball games sometime lag because of "too many visits to the mound by managers before changing players."

He added: "A two-hour 30-minute game is about right, but there is no time block in baseball, and the fans love those extra-inning battles that go much longer.

"I remember one day in Chicago, Grover Cleveland Alexander pitched a game only a few minutes over an hour. The concessionaire complained he didn't have enough time to beat the hot dogs."

In his 16 years as pilot of the Yankees he led them to seven World Series titles, eight American League pennants and five second-place finishes.

McCarthy was regarded as a strict disciplinarian of his players and a believer in tight-knit team performance, despite the fact he managed some of the top individual performers of all time—Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Joe Di Maggio and Ted Williams.

Gehrig has a special place in McCarthy's memory.

"He wasn't an easy man to know, but he was loyal every inch and with the stakes highest, the best clutch hitter I ever had."

McCarthy, who spent 15 years as a player but never made the major leagues, completed his managing career after three seasons with Boston Red Sox.

Sport Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — If Sudbury is to become a member of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series next season, it will have to be through the transfer of an existing franchise, OHA president Clarence (Tubby) Schmalz said Tuesday.

Schmalz said a Junior A council meeting Tuesday had voted against expansion while leaving the door open for a franchise transfer. He added, however, there has been "no formal application" for a transfer.

He said there had been no request from Hap Emms, operator of the Niagara Falls Flyers, to shift that franchise, and there could be some arguments about additional travel costs from such southern Ontario teams as St. Catharines, Hamilton and Kitchener.

SARNIA (CP) — Hamilton Mountain Bees edged Petrolia Jets 1-0 before 1,800 fans Tuesday night to take a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior B semi-final series.

The goal was scored by Jim Kolelf on the first shot on goal in the game at the 21-second mark of the first period.

Dixie Beehives were to meet the series winner in the OHA final.

OTTAWA (CP) — Sports officials here remained unconvinced that any problems will develop over a $1 million federal program for student athletes.

Stan Spicer of the amateur sports branch of the health department, says the fact that any grants to students "are booked into their education" means student athletes would not endanger their amateur status when they received grants.

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert LeBel, president of the Quebec Junior A Hockey League, announced Tuesday that the league will institute a trophy next year commemorating the late Michel Briere.

LeBel said the Michel Briere Trophy will be awarded annually to "the player selected for his display of workmanship during the season and the one who most closely emulates the late Michel Briere's spirit of competition while he was in the Quebec League."

THE CONQUEST OF DEAFNESS by Ruth E. Bender

Beginning with a discussion of the early Hebrews who first passed laws for the protection of the deaf, the author then continues with the influence of Christianity. Schools for the deaf began in the 18th century, and by the 20th century science and electronics took up the battle.

KHRUSHCHEV REMEMBERS by Nikita S. Khrushchev

Here is the unique — and enthralling politics! reminiscences of a Soviet leader. Never before has it been possible to penetrate to the power centre of the Kremlin itself. These are absorbing recollections of the man who sat at the summit of power in the modern Russian empire from 1953 until 1964 and whose impact on the outside world, particularly the Western world, was so vivid and unsettling.

JOHN SINGER SARGENT: PAINTINGS, DRAWINGS and WATERCOLORS by Richard Ormond

John Singer Sargent (1856-1925) was the most brilliant portrait painter of his age. Many of his landscapes and other paintings, little known in his lifetime, are now regarded as amongst his finest achievements. This anthology shows two sides of Sargent: the fashionable portrait painter and the artist off duty, happy to record the canals and shadowy interiors of Venice or the fields of Worcestershire in oils and watercolors, a medium that he used with prodigious skill.

THE REALITY OF MONARCHY by Andrew Duncan

Mr. Duncan, who is a journalist educated in England and America, was permitted to spend a year at the side of the Queen, Prince Philip, Prince Charles, Princess Margaret, Lord Snowdon, et. al. to produce an uncensored report on what the world's most royal family is up to, what means, and what the reality is under the glittering surface.

FAITH, HOPE AND HILARITY by Dick Van Dyke

Within chapters with titles such as A Sunday School Teacher's Notebook: How the World Began; The Family That Prays Together; and What Is God Like, are hundreds of short anecdotes, sayings, comments and ideas from the mouths and minds of children. These have been solicited from ministers, clerical groups and Sunday School teachers, and from Dick Van Dyke's recollections and experiences.

THE SADDEST STORY by Arthur Mizener

The life of Ford Madox Ford. He feuded with Hemingway and collaborated with Conrad on Romance. He encouraged the then young writers D. H. Lawrence and James Joyce. While writing innumerable books and hundreds of articles, he had time for poetry, essays and a busy career as editor of the English Review and the Transatlantic Review. Above all he achieved almost legendary fame for two masterpieces, the novel The Good Soldier and Parades End. Mr. Mizener is also the author of The Far Side of Paradise, the biography of F. Scott Fitzgerald.

BASIC DESIGN by Kenneth F. Bates

This book is a must for all people — artists, hobbyists and do - it - yourself enthusiasts — who are excited by designs, who use designs, and who want to know more about the subject. Mr. Bates insists that one think rather than accept, and shows how to develop that most necessary quality — individual initiative.

Two Trainmen Killed in Collision

BOWDEN, Alta. (CP) — Two Canadian Pacific freight trains collided head-on Tuesday night killing two trainmen who had jumped from one engine seconds before the impact.

RCMP said the collision started fires in one of the engines, a tank car of liquid butane, two box cars carrying beer, one carrying lumber and in one empty flatcar.

The victims, identified as enginemen A. E. Lewis, 48, and fireman Colin Gradley, 42, both of Calgary, jumped clear of their northbound train just before the collision but were burned to death in a sheet of flame that extended 500 feet from the tank car carrying 8,000 barrels of butane.

The tank car, seven cars back from the engine, was ruptured and the butane ignited when a flat car smashed into it, said a spokesman for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Four persons were slightly injured with bobs, cuts and bruises and were released from hospital after treatment. There were five crew members on each train.

The crash was the second incident in less than four hours on the same line.

A dayliner carrying passengers from Edmonton to Calgary collided with a sports car at a level-crossing earlier Tuesday, near Lacombe, 45 miles from the freight train crash. The drivers of the car, not immediately identified, was reported in serious condition in hospital.

No one was reported injured on the dayliner which continued its trip after a short delay. It had passed Bowden before the freight trains collided.

Just behind the engines was a box car carrying beer kegs which punctuated the crash scene with persistent, though relatively harmless explosions as the shaken-up beer blew out of its containers.

Diefenbaker Asks About 'Bug'

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker asked in the Commons Tuesday whether the RCMP planted electronic listening devices in the home of Jean-Marie Cossette, president of the St. Jean-Baptiste Society of Repentigny, Que.

"Members of Parliament are beginning to wonder if it is happening elsewhere as well," Mr. Diefenbaker added as he asked the question of Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer.

Mr. Goyer told Mr. Diefenbaker and Andrew Brewin (NDP —Toronto Greenwood) that he had received a telegram from Mr. Cossette saying his home had been "bugged."

His answer was that there is no law to prevent this. Police, private agencies, any citizen were able to use such devices.

INCREASE PRODUCTION

SASKATOON (CP) — This year, 600 head of two-year-old bred Holstein heifers are being flown to Uganda from Canada in an international co-operation program designed to increase milk production, reports the University of Saskatchewan's dairy science department.

TOWERS

Depression Tossed T. C. Douglas From Pulpit Onto Soapbox

VANCOUVER (CP) — There were memories of campaign travel by horse and buggy in prairie winters, of bedding down on farmhouse kitchen floors or beside the wood fire of a schoolhouse stove, and incumbents who would be a ferry trip to one of the British Columbia Gulf Islands.

The New Democratic Party member of Parliament for Nanaimo - Cowichan—The Islands was as jaded as he would have been had he, on the behalf of a constituent, just roused an unhelpful Ottawa bureaucrat out of bed well after midnight.

Only days away he would be stepping down from the national leadership of the NDP which he had headed since its formation in 1961 in a marriage between organized labor and the CCF.

But men like T. C. Douglas don't even with a 67th birthday coming up in October, step down one foot at a time.

He had been following hectic schedules like this one for going on 40 years, as NDP leader for the last decade but first as a federal CCFer starting in 1935 and then as CCF premier of Saskatchewan from 1944 to 1961.

He will be his party's candidate in the next federal election, and his new challenge is the riding itself.

"For 30 years I've been a party leader either provincially or federally," he explained, "so for 30 years I've had to do other jobs in addition to being a member.

"I haven't in all that time been able to concentrate entirely on looking after a constituency—and it's a fascinating constituency, one of the most varied in Canada."

And, as an ex-leader, he would be in a position to pick and choose his travels.

"There won't be this terrific drive that you've got to be in so many places and visit so many provinces. In 1970 I covered 87,000 miles by plane, in addition to thousands of miles by car and boat, because I thought it was incumbent on me as leader to get into every province to show the flag."

Even so — even though he still insists after all these years that he is a politician by accident — it is impossible to imagine a Tommy Douglas travelling at much less than a greyhound-and-whippet pace.

It seems that this peace-seeker who began his married life as a Baptist minister was singled out to be an eyewitness to, or a participant in, every 20th century upheaval that has led to radical changes in Canada's social order.

In the 1919 Winnipeg general strike he was making his newspaper delivery rounds as a youngster.

He recalled: "I stopped to see what was happening and a man was shot not 30 feet from me on the corner of William and Main."

Other recollections:

"I've lived long enough to remember the riots here in Vancouver in the '30s when the unemployed occupied and held the federal building and the post office. I remember the riot in Estevan, Sask., when the miners were on strike. I was in Regina when the unemployment riot took place, also in the 1930s."

There were memories, too, that the victims in these outbursts of violence were people trying to live inside the law, decent people who had been doomed to perpetual hobohood—"when we had thousands of them riding the rods, pushed by the police on to boxcars from one place to another."

It was a bit of reminiscing

Tweed

The snowmobile club at Arden, held a successful euchre party recently with 16 tables in play. There has been no euchre party every Tuesday evening in the village hall all winter. These are still continuing, sponsored alternately by the Ladies Auxiliary and the Snowmobile Club.

Miss Marion Kenny, Mrs. Jane Genereaux, Richard Griffin, all of Toronto spent the Easter weekend at the home of Miss Mabel Kenny, Tweed.

Mrs. G. A. Quinn, of North Victoria Street, Tweed, is a patient in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, Room 324.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lefebure, and two daughters, Nicole and Lisa, of Hull, Quebec, visited on the weekend with her mother, Mrs. John Gehan, Arthur Street, Tweed.

"I think this is something we ought to impress upon the Canadian people, that at the present moment almost half our unemployed are under 25.

"I don't think these young people today, who are much more knowledgeable about the productive capacity of our economy, will be as patient or as docile as the young people of the '30s."

In the still-running saga of Tommy Douglas there have been triumphs and times of sharp disappointment; his pride at Saskatchewan premier in bringing into reality, in 1947, the first governmental-sponsored hospital insurance program in North America; the later, bitter fight over medical care insurance in Saskatchewan; rejection at the polls twice after returning to the federal political scene —turnabouts salvaged by byelection victories.

Where did Tommy Douglas start?

Well, he is an in-and-out, and back-again, Canadian.

He was born in Falkirk, Scotland, came to Canada and then went back when his father, who had served in the South African war, rallied to the colors once again in the First World War.

At war's end he returned to Canada after, at age 13-plus but not quite 14, working in a cork factory. And in Winnipeg he took up the printer's trade before beginning to further his education.

What thrust Tommy Douglas into politics was Weyburn, Sask., in 1930 when, newly married, he had taken on his first pastorate with the Depression getting into full gear and Saskatchewan starting on an eight-year drought.

He had returned that summer—after post-graduate work in Chicago, where the condition of the unemployed had shocked him. Back in Canada things were no better and perhaps worse.

"We came across cases where babies were being put into layettes made from flour sacks, cases where children couldn't go to school because they had no shoes.

"But, when we came to get candidates, there just wasn't anybody in the district who could run—the farmers were all on welfare, the workers were unemployed. . . . Anybody who had a job, it was more than his job was worth to run politically."

Thus began the start of the Farmer-Labor party of Saskatchewan. Later, it melded into the CCF and the CCF, in turn, was transformed into the present-day NDP.

You can't spend an hour or two with T. C. Douglas without getting a chuckle here and there. One story:

He had the habit when he was premier of Saskatchewan of dropping in unexpectedly at jails, mental institutions and the like.

One night with Mrs. Douglas, who had been a music teacher, they went to the Regina jail and on the way they made a quick pickup of some movie film from the Saskatchewan government's adult education branch.

"One of them was a movie which showed you how to pole vault over a 20-foot wall," he recalled.

Another story:

"There was this very sophisticated young fellow who had come from Ontario and who had been found guilty of forging cheques, and he had lots of nerve and he spoke very well.

"He got up and said, 'You know my father is a real Conservative in the province of Ontario, and I can hardly wait to write him and tell him I've met Premier T. C. Douglas in jail.

"And my father will write back and say the jail should have been there years ago.'"

But getting serious again:

"I think the prison system in Canada is one of the most archaic in the Western world. It's absolutely appalling, this apathy and indifference of the Canadian people. Not only the conditions of our jails but, even worse, our callous disregard about the people when they come out of them."

Will come in.

And a few other observations:

"Our youngsters in the year 2000 are going to look back and say that we were either cynical charlatans who bartered away our birthright, or that we were simpletons.

"I'm not really afraid of the Americans, but I am afraid of the pathy of Canadians and the cupidity of our own business community.

"I never get excited about the people who say that if we don't let the Americans have water, don't let them have our gas and oil, that the marines

"The marines won't come in. The Americans think they had a tough time in Vietnam. You can imagine them trying to run around the Canadian Arctic.

"The real danger is our own people . . . we're like a farmer who is meeting his bills each year by selling a little piece of his farm, and he's having a whale of a time.

"But—he's going to run out of farm some day.

"I am terribly concerned about this country disintegrating if Quebec pulls out of Confederation. I think that unless we can work out some satisfactory arrangement with Quebec, we're only fighting a delaying action.

"It is going to be hard enough to meet the danger of complete absorption by the U.S. if we're together but, if we split up, we've had it."

still have a country where all gloaming and dooming.

"Canada still has two things that can be salvaged. We can still salvage our environment, the American society. I think we can learn from their mistakes; I think we could build a society here which wouldn't be monstrous, which wouldn't have built those great monstrosities of cities which crush the life and the creativity out of people."

Saskatchewan Balks at Car Prices

REGINA (CP)—The provincial government is refusing to purchase vehicles from General Motors, Ford Motor Company and Chrysler Corp. because of price increases.

Public Works Minister Lionel Coderre, minister in charge of the central vehicle agency, said tenders were called early in the year for 270 vehicles but the prices on each vehicle had increased by about $600, mostly due to the large manufacturers having discontinued their fleet discounts.

The government said at the time that unless the discount was reinstated it would study the possibility of purchasing from other manufacturers.

So far the government has purchased about 25 Japanese-made cars and is planning to call tenders on about 25 British vehicles.

Mr. Coderre said that out of 1,277 vehicles held by the government as of Feb. 12 this year, 42 per cent were General Motors models, 36 per cent Ford and 20 per cent Chrysler.

Austrian Diplomat Seized

ZURICH (Reuter) — An Austrian woman diplomat was held hostage in this Swiss city today in an apartment ringed with explosives. Her abductor demands a $1.2 million ransom.

The kidnapper, Swiss sauna bath owner Fernand Mueller, dragged middle - aged Louise Kneissel into his sandwiched apartment Monday. Miss Kneissel, heads Austrian embassy's social service division, away from overhead wires.

If a wire should strike the car, occupants should remain inside, leaving all metal parts untouched. A wooden or plastic object may be used to depress the horn to summon aid.

During the first few minutes of rain, motorists should reduce their driving speed, avoid all sudden manoeuvres and brake gradually.

According to the Canadian Automobile Association, the first few raindrops following a dry period result in a dangerously slippery surface composed of water, dirt, rubber, dust and oil film. When enough rain falls, the surface is washed clean.

The idea of banning all auto traffic from selected mid-town streets during certain hours of the day seems to be taking hold. New York City closed 15 blocks of Fifth Avenue to all auto traffic for seven hours a few months ago and air pollution dropped drastically. The public liked it very much. Tokyo has since tried it with good results and now other major cities here are testing.

The time may well come when the centre core of major cities will be off limits for all of today's internal combustion engines.

To get more mileage from your tires, let your wife do the driving. According to Good-year Tire and Rubber Co., women average 30,000 miles on tires while men average only 20,000, with some men getting as little as 12,000 miles. Of course the area of the country, road conditions and driving speeds influence tire wear. Most wives don't travel 70 mph to the grocery store, so maybe this explains Good-year's findings.

No more shocking to see if your battery needs water. GM now has a completely sealed unit that needs no checking at any time. Terminals are on the side with the top perfectly smooth. Look for it on the '71 pontiac "Grand Prix SJ" and the Oldsmobile "Toronado."

Heavy Runoff Adds to Problem

Deloro-Madoc Authorities Are Up in Arms Over Arsenic

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

MADOC — The tourist industry and life itself has suffered a severe setback because of tons of arsenic waste pouring into Moira Lake from tailings and slag deposits at the abandoned Deloro Smelting and Refining Company mines at Deloro, several miles northwest of here, according to area council representatives, local businessmen and motel owner Clayton Smith in particular.

Yesterday, Mr. Smith organized a tour of the abandoned mine site with local village and township reeves, conservation authority members, businessmen, a chamber of commerce executive member and two representatives from the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Operator of the Shoreline Motel on scenic Moira Lake, Mr. Smith felt obligated to close his facilities to the thriving tourist industry which exists every summer.

"We had no alternative," the irate motel owner stated, "We had no water supply because we use water from the lake and it's not justifiable to our patrons. My wife and I have a lot of respect for human beings."

Mr. Smith said several of his guests in recent years had emerged from their quarters in the mornings showing definite signs of some abrasive substance in their eyes, and he believes this inflammation to be a direct result of the arsenic content in the lake. "And these people didn't swim," he asserted.

Because of his concern, the motel owner called in the department of health officials to test his water. The results of the three samples, one taken at the lake where his intake pipe is located, a second test at his 5,000 gallon water storage tank and the third from the taps in his motel reads:

The report, according to Mr. Smith, indicated an arsenic content of 28.9 parts per million at the lake source, .05 parts per million at the water tank and 1.2 parts per million in the motel taps.

The safe drinking level, according to John Vogt, industrial water division of the OWRC, is .05 parts per million.

Mr. Smith refutes the department of health report. "I think it's wrong; it should read 28.9 parts per million in the storage tank . . . It wouldn't be that concentrated from where we pump it in . . . the water sitting in the storage tank would have the high concentration."

Dr. C. R. Lenk, Medical Officer of Health for Hastings and Prince Edward counties, said this morning "there was no indication of any danger to his customers. What he did, he did on his own."

In answer to allegations of a mixup in sample tests, Dr. Lenk consulted with his staff and was informed that correct labelling of water samples were made during the Oct. 1970 tests and correct results were forwarded.

"We do not see any specific problems, and we have consulted the best provincial experts. They would have closed him themselves if there was any danger," said Dr. Lenk.

The medical officer also explained that "part of the arsenic comes from natural sources" and the building of arsenic wastes in Moira Lake are only partly the responsibility of the Deloro company, with local Deloro Stellite officers in Belleville.

"The courts will decide the extent of the company's responsibility," he affirmed.

The Deloro mine site lies in crumbling ruins. Office buildings stand ghost-like, surrounded by the rubble lifted from the bowels of the earth and deposited in piles after extraction of the minerals they contained.

The chief problem, one which OWRC representative John Vogt and Lawson Bell, willingly admitted exists, lies in seepage from the tons of arsenic-laden waste buried in abandoned shafts and covered by rubble.

Mr. Vogt informed those on the tour that close to 300,000 tons of material containing arsenic were dumped. It is from these pilings that seepage has entered the Moira River, which splits the Deloro property down the middle.

One bed, referred to by Mr. Smith as "hot with arsenic" contains 300 parts per million of arsenic. This figure was verified by Mr. Vogt. Several feet from this particular bed, are the raging waters of the river, swollen with spring runoff.

Mr. Vogt explained that arsenic is an accumulative taxant which builds up over the years. "But the concentration in the bottom muds does not kill vegetation and biologists indicate it's returning downstream, going down the watershed." He further stated that the level of arsenic buildup in Moira Lake was decreasing every year.

Last year, the Deloro company spent $50,000 to install two storage lagoons on the property. Each day, workers treat the arsenic-laden waters with ferrous - sulphide, thereby reacting the chemical to a non-soluble substance.

Mr. Bell, a chemical technologist with the Belleville services branch of the division of industrial wastes of the OWRC, carefully explained that in non-soluble state, the dangerous chemical would not mix with water, but would settle to the bottom, as it has done in the lake.

Pointing to the 1½ square miles of arsenic-bearing tailings, a muddy basin of red, muddy devastation, with the skeletons of trees mute testimony to the waste, he said the seepage from this bed was minute.

"These tailings contain nonsoluble arsenic; the little that does seep from here will have little effect on the water. The arsenic on the property, however, is in a soluble form and this is what we're worried about."

"The ponds are here to settle out arsenic when we add the ferrous sulphide to the contaminated water when it comes in. The yellow in the water is suspended matter with a fair amount of arsenic . . . about 30 parts per million . . . the rest of the color is either arsenic or iron," said Mr. Vogt.

"The level coming out of here is not acceptable for drinking but it mixes with drinking water and dilutes."

However, this treatment has not proved completely successful.

"The company didn't do a satisfactory job in 1970," asserted the senior OWRC official, who referred to the two lagoons.

Mrs. Barbara Allen, Reeve of Tweed, agreed. "It's ridiculous . . . the company spending $50,000 for this."

"What's the solution, with people afraid to vacation here the tourist season is coming pretty fast," asked Tom Burnside, Reeve of the village of Madoc.

According to the OWRC local residents aren't readily buying the future McLaren report.

Mr. Vogt assurred the more than 25 area representatives that the report would be submitted by mid-May, "before the critical flow period arrives".

But who will foot the bill for the cleanup? the OWRC official was asked.

"I would think the OWRC would step in and pay for the cleanup and then bill the company. Right now we're interested in stopping arsenic from getting to the river (cost of operating a plant would be approximately $10,000 per year) and eventually we hope to eliminate the arsenic problem forever."

In the meantime, the tourist industry faces one of its poorest years, according to area businessmen. Last year, Crystal Beach resort was closed down, and this summer, Mr. Smith's property will be vacant. "Our only alternative is to take down our buildings . . . this has wiped us right out," he said.

Dr. Hughway G. tacked to his motel entrance sign, is a bold - printed board which reads:

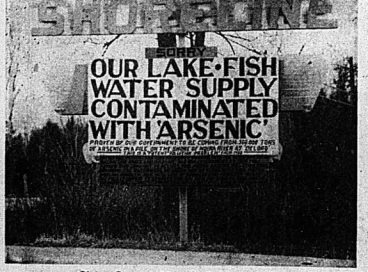
"Proven by our government to be coming from 300,000 tons of arsenic in a pile on the shore of the Moira River at Deloro. This a potent pollution problem from 1958.

"In 1958, the poison from this property running into the river and creek killing livestock and wild life. Had our government at this time forced this company to rectify this poison arsenic pollution from reaching the waterways, we would not be faced with this major arsenic problem now. With loss of business and property value, we feel it unfair to subject our valued patrons to this poison. This company should be forced to compensate each business and property owner on the Moira system."

What does Mr. Smith think of the McLaren report plans? "With their engineering crews on this property, it would be better to give the merchants the money to help them pay for boarding up buildings. The government has given this company too much time."



Charles Mowatt, president of the Madoc Chamber of Commerce, calmly voiced a general opinion reflected by the gathered reeves, councillors and businessmen, when he said the local residents would give the OWRC until May to produce or at least start producing results. "I think there might very well be a stink raised at that time if nothing further has been done," he concluded.

Farmers' Spokesmen Revive Tax Controversy

PICTON (Staff) — A four-member delegation from local 333 of the National Farmers' Union last night urged Prince Edward County councillors to refuse grants to all farm organizations. This request was suggested as "a further means of holding local tax rates as low as possible".

Spokesman for the delegation and vice-president of NFU local 333, Arnold DeBries said that he understood the Ontario Federation of Agriculture is seeking grants.

Members of local 333 also sought council's support in its desire to remove education tax from farm land. A brief presented to councillors stated, "The local is continuing its encouragement of the withholding of municipal taxes as a means of bringing this to the attention of the provincial government."

Picton deputy - reeve James Bird suggested that by withholding taxes NFU members would, in effect, forfeit their rights to government services. He added that he believed such action also is illegal.

Ameliasburg deputy - reeve Norman Post demanded, "Has the NFU offered the government any real solution? The education just keeps people like us and often there are no ready-made solutions."

Mr. DeVries informed Mr. Post that two briefs containing suggestions have been presented to former municipal affairs minister Darcy McKeough and added that copies could be provided for councillors.

"Our tax methods need a lot of overhauling and I see your point, but you are from Sophiasburg township, Mr. DeVries, and if you want the education levy removed from the business portion of your land why can't the Lake Ontario Cement Company ask for this too," questioned Hallowell reeve George Vincent. Mr. Vincent said that the cement plant, located in Sophiasburg, could conceivably make such a request if the NFU stand for removal of education tax from land is followed. He noted that if an "ability to pay" basis were adopted, employees and shareholders in the plant would be expected to pay on their residences. "I don't like some of the legislation either, some of it is 100 years old, but if you remove the education levy from the business part of any group of people, you'll get complaints from others," warned reeve Vincent.

Sophiasburg reeve George Fosier reminded council that its auditor stressed in a few years ago that it is illegal to give grants to any farm organization at the county level. He added that it would be unnecessary to pass a motion supporting the NFU delegation's request since "there is no need to stop what we know is illegal."

It was pointed out to the delegation that council had just endorsed a resolution from Oxford County asking the department of municipal affairs, assessment branch, to restore the breakdown of land and buildings as separate values on the assessment roll notices.

Whistles Defended

Train whistles may be an annoyance to some people, but they can also be life-savers.

This is the feeling of Mrs. Norman Kent, 59 Frank Street who, in a letter to the city traffic committee, says that whistle warnings at the Frank Street pedestrian crossing have been instrumental in saving several lives.

Mrs. Kent wrote that in 1964 she had rescued a three-year - old boy from the tracks near home and it was only the long blowing of the train whistle that had attracted her attention.

Since then, in at least two other incidents, lives had been saved at the Frank Street crossover as the result of warning whistles.

Mrs. Kent's letter was in protest against an earlier letter from a railroader who complained about train whistles.

"Thank Heavens for some sort of warning," she wrote. "Which means the most — a train whistle or the lives of people?"

As result of the earlier railroader's letter, the city clerk is obtaining information from the railways as to the requirements for blowing of train whistles.

One PC Breaks with Party on Committees' Role

TORONTO (CP) — Tom Smith (PC—Hamilton Mountain), the youngest government member of the legislature, voted against the government Tuesday because he said legislature committees should be a free forum, untrammelled by partisan party politics.

The vote was on an amendment by Tim Reid (L—Toronto-Scarborough East) which would have added independent research staff and a budget to the legislature's committee on human resources. It is responsible for examining the departments of education, university affairs, social and family services, corrections, and health.

Opposition members pounded their desks when Mr. Smith rose to vote with the Liberals and the New Democratic Party. The amendment was defeated 53 to 31.

In the legislature itself the government is expected to resign if defeated on an important vote, but at the committee stage there should be a free forum to discuss and present constructive criticism.

Mr. Smith, 31, said school costs and programs are of utmost concern to the people of the province.

"Unless we as a committee are going to be able to have independent, objective assistance not just a secretary . . . we are hamstrung."

Committees need the independent thought of resource people, he said.

"One of the major things that really has disturbed me is the appointment of a man whom I hold in very high esteem and regard, Dr. McCarthy, to head up this committee . . . investigating his own department."

Mr. Smith was referring to an announcement last week that Dr. J. R. McCarthy will resign as deputy minister of education to conduct a lengthy inquiry into the priorities and programs of education.

Premier William Davis said the government would not support the amendment because it was "unnecessary."

—John White, minister of university affairs, told the legislature that provincial universities have received nearly $870,000 for research from United States' government agencies. He was answering Fred Burr (NDP—Monday how much Ontario universities received from "the Pentagon".

—Mr. White also said he hopes to set up a system of forecasting jobs available to graduates of universities and next few months.

—Agriculture Minister William Stewart said Quebec will probably strengthen its control on Ontario eggs entering the province but added that this will not be the only effect of the passage Thursday of the tub-provincial government's controversial "chicken and egg" bill.

—Leo Bernier, minister of mines and northern affairs, said no legislation is planned to control gravel pits and quarries until discussions are held with operators. He was replying to Opposition Leader Robert Nixon who said legislation had been promised by the government last spring and again last fall.

—Edward Good (L—Waterloo East) said it was not possible for the municipalities in Waterloo County to accept or reject provincial government plans for regional government in their area until they hear the financial arrangements for each of the new proposed areas. He said the area wants to avoid the dissatisfaction that has arisen in St. Catharines since regional government was introduced over one year ago.

New Jobless Pay Seen as Incentive to Be Lazy

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Alfred Hales (Wellington) says the government's proposed unemployment insurance system will provide those out of work with an incentive to sit at home.

He told the Commons Tuesday that a bill to amend the Unemployment Insurance Act needs a massive revision to be acceptable to Canadians. Debate on the measure, now at second reading, continues today.

The bill would increase maximum unemployment benefits a worker could draw to two-thirds of his qualifying salary with a maximum payment of $100 a week going to an unemployed person who had been earning $150 or more a week.

To qualify for full benefits, a person would need to have worked 20 weeks in the previous year as opposed to 30 weeks over the previous two years as now is the case.

Mr. Hales, chairman of the Commons public accounts committee, said a person who worked 20 weeks or more in a year before losing his job could automatically collect three weeks of benefits even if he returned to work the next day.

"This is called an incentive to find work. I would say it is an incentive to sit at home."

Mr. Hales's remarks were typical of those made by many Conservatives during the debate. Most argued that the new scheme is a type of socialistic policy Canadians would not accept.

Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey has said most Canadians will act to prevent any abuse of the system by behaving in a typically-industrious fashion.

Under the new plan, a worker would be eligible for partial benefits after contributing to the insurance fund for eight weeks. Self-employed persons are not covered the bill.

"It would be possible for a woman to work for eight weeks in order to obtain pin money," Mr. Hales said.

"She could work during November and December in the Christmas rush in a department store earning pin money and collect $800 worth of insurance while her husband might be earning a salary of $15,000 or more a year."

Max Saltzman (NDP—Waterloo) said the bill would prevent the government from ever attempting to combine high unemployment and a tight-money policy.

Under the bill, the government would automatically pump hundreds of millions of dollars into the unemployment insurance fund when unemployment rose above four per cent.

If the government chose to treat unemployment it would have to pay an extremely high price.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Love Lets Child Be Self

Listening to my favorite FM station the other night, I heard an old recording of Leslie Chabay, the former Metropolitan tenor, and recalled a dinner I had with him and his wife in Aspen many years ago.

His little boy of five had wandered in to kiss his parents goodnight, and when the lad had left, Chabay told us how he had decided that the boy was not going to be a musician.

For several weeks Chabay had sung the boy to sleep with a lovely old German lullaby. One night, instead of singing the words, he merely hummed the tune, and asked his son, "What is this I'm humming?" The boy promptly replied, "Jingle Bells."

More fathers should make such simple little tests before trying to squeeze their sons into a mold of the father's choosing. I shudder to think how many inept doctors and lawyers (and musicians) we have just because fathers refuse to admit that their sons might not have the same capacities, tendencies and temperaments as they.

They think this is love, but it is the exact opposite—pride of possession. Love accepts a person for what he or she is; the proud parent is not content to have the child grow up in conformity with his natural bent, but projects his own desire for glory into the child.

The classic case in English biography is that of Lord Chesterfield, the polished man of affairs, who utterly ruined his son's life, and was the worst possible parent with the highest of intentions.

Those who have read Chesterfield's letters to his son—which seem such a model of worldly instruction — ought to know that the boy was emotionally crippled for life by his father's efforts to make his son as much like him as possible.

"Be not too much a parent," was Emerson's terse advice, which has never been improved upon. This does not imply that the child should grow up without direction or discipline, but that the discipline should encourage the child to become who he is — to develop in the way most natural to his talent and personality.

A child's need for acceptance is as deep and basic as his need for security and affection. Such acceptance is more often found in poor or non-achieving families than in affluent and goal-oriented ones, and it is hardly remarkable that most rebellious adolescents today spring from the latter type of family.

Our modern mania for sending children to college to fit them for vocations that may be far beyond their capacities is real kindness, but cruelty, like forcing a kitten to crawl up a barbed wire fence. It's a wise parent that knows, and accepts, a child's limitations.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Of course I'm glad you invited them to dinner, I just hope they enjoy your cooking."

Campers Plan Convention

TORONTO (CP) — The population of Brantford is expected to be doubled for five days in July by 40,000 campers from Canada and the United States.

The occasion is the 12th annual National Campers and Hikers Association convention, scheduled for July 12-16.

A temporary city with facilities including a bank, post office, water, fire and sewage systems is planned for a 424-acre campsite on Grand River Conservation Authority property.

George Wilson, past president of the Canadian Rebels Camping Club, said Monday night he expects the convention will bring $500,000 in business to the Brantford area.

Students Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Hundreds of students at four suburban North York schools walked out of classes Tuesday in support of their teachers who are working to rule to protest the local school board's salary offer and provincial curbs on education spending.

The borough's 2,000 high school teachers began working to rule Monday—coming to school 15 minutes before classes and leaving 15 minutes after classes.

Youth Flees

TORONTO (CP) — Police were seeking a 20-year-old youth who jumped from a third-floor hospital window Tuesday behind the back of a police guard.

They identified the youth as Howard Perry, who was receiving treatment after his arrest Friday on charges of failing to remain at the scene of two accidents, criminal negligence causing bodily harm and possession of a stolen automobile.

Board Supports Woman's Campaign

PICTON (Staff) — Members of the Prince Edward County board of education on Monday voted to support in principle a Cormley mother's efforts to amend "an insufficient piece of legislation."

Joanne McLaren has begun a campaign to have Minister of Highways and Transport Charles MacNaughton, consider an amendment to legislation requiring school buses to use red flasher lights when children are embarking and disembarking in all rate speed zones.

Mrs. McLaren pointed out in a letter to trustees that bus drivers now are required to use flashers only when embarking in speed zones exceeding 35 miles an hour. All motorists travelling behind a bus with flashing red lights must halt as must all approaching cars. These rules do not apply in speed zones 35 miles an hour and under. She and her family reside in a 30-mile zone where bus drivers do not put on flasher lights when stopping.

Mrs. McLaren has decided to advance her complaint to the provincial level and has circulated 27 petitions which must be signed by June 1. Prince Edward trustees agreed that a petition circulated locally would be unwarranted since the problem in question does not affect county students to a marked degree.

Board member Edward (Ted) Rutter remarked "It's nice to have the bus stop in a 30-mile zone and put on its red lights but it may not be so simple." He mentioned schools where traffic congestion caused if buses stop continually in this manner. His point was supported by trustee Hilton Martin who added, "if you stop traffic both ways on a main street you get traffic block. Apparently there is no pat answer to this, so the present system must be working. I would be tempted to go with the judgment of the dept. of highways."

Vice-chairman of the county board, James Planner commented that some bus drivers complain of motorists' failures to stop in over 35 m.p.h. speed zones when red lights are flashing.

"FOR YOUR NEXT SHOT

Golf strategy is not just a technique employed by the best golfers. Any golfer, no matter what his handicap, can employ strategy to his advantage.

It comes down to playing for your next shot, whether off the tee, fairway or from close to the green. There are hundreds of strategems to use, but here I'll name just one good one for the middle handicapper.

On a long par-3, one you cannot reach under ordinary circumstances, and one that has sand bunkers to the side—use a "comfortable" club and play to the front of the green (solid line). Take a chance on a chip and putt for a par. Avoid a riskier shot from sand which might hit with a longer club (dotted line).

All members who had the good fortune to meet the visiting members from Montreal East Unit 308 are agreed that, of the many groups that the unit has been host for over the years, this was the most friendly and nicest group of people. It made for a wonderful weekend for all.

The dart matches were set up with all teams, mixed and female being drawn from a single receptacle. Final results showed a lady from Montreal, Joan Dunne, and a member from Belleville, Bill Newell, being the winners while a Belleville lady, Vera Hatfield, and a member from Belleville, Dave Evans, were the runners up.

The dance was thoroughly enjoyed by all with Mary Fleit and Bill Salter entertaining with songs. At intermission a detachment of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit Pipe Band won the hearts of the visitors and, dressed in their new regalia, they looked and sounded as good as at any time since they were organized.

An unexpected feature was President John Browning having requested to play the pipes and doing it exceedingly well, to the surprise of the visitors. There was a pleasant exchange of gifts and dancing to the goodnight waltz ended a most enjoyable day for all.

Unit 201 is looking forward to a return visit about September at which time Unit 308 president B111 Whitehouse vows that, despite the fact that Belleville more than lived up to its most friendly reputation, they were going all out to try and do it bigger and better if possible.

The Dukes shuffleboard team of Capt. Tom Bentley, Jim Campbell, Bill Phorlock, Bill Newell, Cash Mahaffy, Dave Feeney and Ron Sheridoden and Hagh Northey playing the last match against the Royal Hotel team from Trenton, won the Eastern Ontario Shuffleboard Championship.

Birthday greetings are in order to John Preston, formerly of Thessalon, and now a resident at Hastings Manor, who was 95 years of age on Saturday, April 10th. Mr. Preston is still active and gets for his early morning walk, weather permitting.

Mrs. Hattie Kimberley has recently moved to Deseronto, after having resided for the past two years with her sister Mrs. Alice Shire, in Northbrook. Mrs. Shire, remains in poor health in hospital at Whitby, after reportedly suffering a series of strokes last autumn.

Actors Get Grant For Ottawa Trip

PICTON (Staff) — Quinte Island Theatre players have received a grant from Prince Edward county council to assist their production of the Jane Goulding play, Gift of the Drum. It will be presented by the Picton theatre group on May 17 at the National Arts Centre in Ottawa as a part of Theatre '71. The play will be performed in Le Salon, described as "an intimate theatre in the round" which is often used by the Governor - General for private entertaining at the Arts Centre.

Members of the QIT were pleased to learn that they will be the first group to perform in the drama festival following its official opening.

A QIT spokesman termed this "an envious opportunity for the group and one that reflects well on the participation in the field of children's theatre."

The Gift of the Drum is a dramatization of an ancient Indian legend involving a very large part of Canada's history — the Indians and their god, Manitou. Play director Nick Rolston said QIT members agreed that there is a large gap in Canadian culture when folk literature and traditions are concerned. For this reason Gift of the Drum has added appeal for QIT members.

Mr. Rolston added, "The festival in Ottawa seemed to be an excellent opportunity to make people more aware of our heritage at the same time as making the public more aware that Canada has many fine playwrights who deserve just recognition of their work."

Producer Elizabeth Hurst supported this statement and asserted that although Gift of the Drum is being presented by the QIT's youth section it is not "childish." She noted that the play's appeal cuts through all age barriers and carries a message for everyone.

Cast members for this play, called the most ambitious single children's project in the QIT's three-year history include Frank Creamer, Leo Creamer, Ted Ross, Richard Brant, Janet Alexander, Elaine Miller and Kitty Cross.

NDP Parley Stalled On Quebec Policy

Women Denied Assured Role

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party convention today debates proposals protecting women in the labor force after rejecting guarantees of numerical equality for women on party executive bodies.

Wednesday, the delegates at the national convention withheld the required two-thirds vote to accept a proposal to increase the number of elected members of the NDP federal council to 24 from 20 and make 12 of them women.

The full council numbers about 100, the rest of the members appointed by provincial and union groups.

Also defeated was a proposal to make half the 10 federal officers women.

Today, proposals to prohibit discrimination in the labor force will be discussed.

The proposals also include removal of abortion from the Criminal Code, further government research into birth control and free information on birth control.

The convention's rejection of Wednesday's proposals represented at least a partial defeat for the party's nationalist leftwing Waffle group, which had supported the changes.

The debate was the liveliest of the opening day, although

Breakup Of Canada Is Feared

OTTAWA (CP) — With five candidates campaigning for his mantle, T. C. Douglas Wednesday gave his final leader's report to the New Democratic Party and devoted it largely to a call for intelligent English-French dialogue to offset the very real danger of Canada's disintegration.

After warning that the danger of Canada disintegrating is very real the 66-year-old Mr. Douglas said "the times in which we live demand an intelligent dialogue between English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians to determine under what conditions it is possible for us to live together to our mutual advantage on this half of the North American continent."

Quebec is not a province like the others, he said. "What both Quebec and the rest of Canada has to decide is whether it is possible to develop an equal partnership of French- and English-speaking Canadians."

Pakistani Big Tanks Are Poised

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — A Pakistan armored regiment equipped with 24 Russian T-29 Tiger tanks was poised today for a major assault against secessionist forces in the important East Pakistan town of Mymensingh, the Press Trust of India news agency reported.

It said members of the Bangla Desh (Bengal nation) "Liberation Army" repelled a three-pronged Pakistan army attack Wednesday against Mymensingh, 80 miles north of the East Pakistan capital of Dacca.

PTI said the infantry columns apparently were subjected to hit-and-run raids and hampered by intermittent thunderstorms which prevented the Pakistan Air Force from providing air support.

PTI was quoting reports reaching Agartala, India. It said the tanks were landed at the port of Chittagong a few days ago and reached Dacca Wednesday. It said they probably would go into action today.

United Nation Held Vital

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party grappled with growing anxiety Wednesday with the Quebec constitutional issue.

This problem far overshadowed the attempts, so far frustrated, by the left-wing Waffle ginger group to get its views adopted as party policy. The Waffle appeared in for a rout.

The resolutions committee, after a special two-hour session on the Quebec issue, produced a new resolution. It was promptly rejected by the Quebec wing, which is urging self-determination for the province.

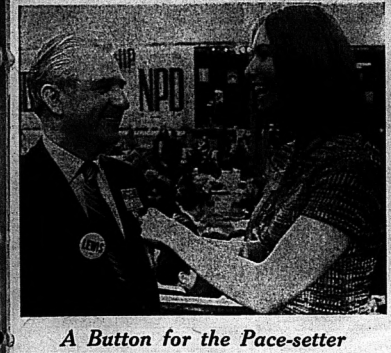
The new resolution was, if anything, more federalist than the original. It called for a united Canada and said repeatedly that only together can Canadians get socialist things done.

It would have the 100-member federal council of the party devise an unambiguous and lasting agreement on relations between French and English Canada.

The resolution will go to the convention floor Friday. The Quebec wing and the Waffle faction will each present amendments—designed to reopen the whole Quebec issue—and the floor fight is expected to last an hour with a vote heavily in favor of the main resolution.

Today the convention dwells on other policy matters, including another round with agriculture, and on a special night for retiring leader T. C. Douglas.

The five candidates who want to succeed Mr. Douglas in Saturday's vote answered questions from a panel and from the audience Wednesday night for some 90 minutes.



Again Quebec was a major—if not the major—issue.

Potter Asked for Clarification

County Council Doubts It Can Stop Festival

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Hastings county councillors disagree with Quinte riding member Dr. R. T. Potter when he says that county council can pass bylaws outlawing the staging of rock festivals.

And they would like clarification from the member citing the provincial regulation which would give county council the authority to pass such a bylaw.

Dr. Potter made the statement late last week when he said the matter of regulating rock festivals should be dropped back into the laps of municipalities whose responsibility it was.

The announcement more than six weeks ago that a rock festival was planned for Madoc township early in July prompted a storm of protest from private individuals and organizations throughout the county, demanding that such events be disallowed in the county.

The matter was discussed at the March meeting of council at which time county officials said the county as such could not ban rock festivals.

However, the council did offer assistance to Madoc township in drafting a regulatory bylaw.

County Administrator Carl E. Bateman told county council this morning that the controversy over the planned Madoc festival has resulted in him receiving "the most abusive telephone calls" in his tenure of office.

Also, he said he had received "any number" of petitions from private individuals, clergy, organizations and even township councils asking that everything possible be done to ban the festival.

Earlier this month Madoc township council passed its regulatory bylaw which, among other requirements, calls for promoters to post an insurance bond for public liability and property damage in the sum of $200,000 to protect the public property and the township from damage.

Also called for, is payment of a licence fee of $500 and advance payment of an amount of money estimated by the Ontario Provincial Police to provide for the cost of adequate additional police protection.

P.E.I. to Repeal Law on Assembly

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Faced with increasing public concern over the possible loss of civil liberties, Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island announced Wednesday that his Liberal government's Public Gathering Act will be repealed this fall.

The bill gave the provincial attorney-general, in consultation with the cabinet, sweeping powers to outlaw any gathering that might endanger the public order. It was aimed at rock festivals.

The premier admitted that the legislation was drawn up in haste and was too broad for its intended use; to make sure that rock festivals provide proper facilities.

The premier told a news conference the act will be eliminated from the provincial statutes when the legislature meets again, probably in early November.

In the meantime, an eight-member committee will propose to the government measures to replace the act, passed during the closing hours of the spring sitting as the government searched for a way to control rock festivals planned for the Island this summer.

The premier estimated that 80-per-cent of the population was behind him when the act was introduced, but he said since then some people have been expressing "quiet reservations."

Others have been doing more than that.

A demonstration was held by students in front of the legislature building after the bill was passed and a Committee for the Restoration of Civil Liberties was set up to press for its repeal.

A poll of 18 of the province's 44 lawyers Wednesday showed 17 of them disagreed with the legislation.

There had been suggestions here that the federal government would overturn the bill. But Justice Minister John Turner said during a visit Tuesday that it was not for him to question the validity of provincial legislation.

His decision not to interfere was criticized by the Canadian Civil Liberties Association in Toronto Wednesday.

Alan Borovoy, executive-director of the association, said in an interview that it was the responsibility of the federal justice minister to challenge the legislation before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Premier Campbell said Mr. Turner did not discuss the bill with him either publicly or privately.

The government's basic approach to new legislation will be to allow rock festivals but only when certain facilities are maintained.

The primary aim of the Public Gathering Act had been to force cancellation of Junction 71, a rock festival planned for the Easter holiday just outside of this capital city of 25,000.

The government feared facilities were not available to handle the large groups attracted by such festivals.

The premier also said it would have been difficult to provide medical services for any youths suffering reactions from drug abuse. The province has only three doctors qualified to handle such cases and two of them were scheduled to be out of town during Easter.

The bill will remain in provincial law books all summer, but the premier said the government would be "loath" to use it. He hoped anyone planning a festival would have the courtesy to advise the government of its plans.

The Public Gathering Act was "a blunt instrument" but at least it had opened lines of communicaters between the province's young people and their parents, the premier said.

Provincial cabinet ministers decided unanimously to repeal the act, Mr. Campbell said, and "this is evidence of our government's open mind and ability to change."

Prof. David Milne, chairman of the Committee for the Restoration of Civil Liberties, said in a statement late Wednesday the committee was satisfied with the government's action to repeal the act.

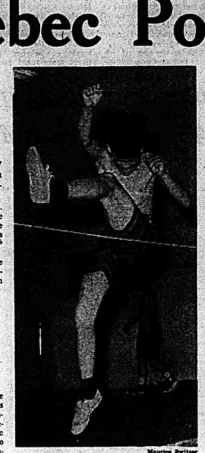
Locomotive Driven Back Into Support Engine

Enginemen Incinerated

BOWDEN, Alta. (CP) — A CP Rail inquiry into a head-on collision between two freight trains that killed two trainmen and blocked the Calgary-Edmonton line for 25 hours is to open today.



Results of the inquiry are to be submitted to the federal transport department.

A tank car that contained 6,000 barrels of butane gas was still burning early today although crews had pushed and pulled it about a half mile down the track to a spur line.

The butane was believed responsible for the deaths of the two trainmen, who police said were killed when the engine of the northbound locomotive seconds before it collided with a southbound freight.

The two were burned to death on the ground in a gigantic sheet of flame from the butane car that was ruptured in the crash.

The victims were engineman A. E. Lewis, 48, and fireman Colin Gradley, 42, both of Calgary.

Lafferty-Smith Seeks To Extend Operations

The Ontario Highways Transport Board will hold a week-long hearing in Belleville next week to consider the application of Belleville's Lafferty - Smith Express Lines Ltd. to carry general freight between this city and Montreal.

Specifically, the application is for a PC licence to carry general commodities between the Quinte area and the Quebec border.

If the Highways Transport Board decision is favorable to the Belleville firm, it will then have to appear before the transportation board of Quebec for a licence to carry freight on into Montreal.

Lafferty - Smith Express Lines Ltd. has been carrying general freight between Toronto and Belleville since 1953 and now wishes to extend its operation through to Montreal.

If the application is approved, Lafferty-Smith will be the first independent operator to receive a PCV licence for the Belleville - Montreal run.

Currently this business is handled by the three "giants" — Smith Transport, Maislins and Direct Winters Transport.

One of the key submissions in the Lafferty-Smith application is that it will be able to offer faster service and could assure local customers next-day delivery without stop-overs at centres between here and Montreal.

It had its beginning back in 1928 at Wooler, northwest of Trenton, where the present owners' father, M. Haggerty operated with one truck.

After the two sons left high school they also were attracted to the trucking industry and in 1953 with their father formed Haggerty Transport — still with one truck.

But inside 10 years the fleet had grown to 36 units and in 1962 the Haggerty brothers formed a new company and bought out Lafferty Transport which in turn owned Lafferty-Smith transport. At the same time the name was changed to Lafferty-Smith Express Lines Ltd.

Today the firm operates one of the most up-to-date highway fleets in the business with more than 180 units of all types including vans, floats, tankers and just ordinary trucks.

Post Office Mall Approved by OMB

TRENTON (Staff) — Civic officials here learned yesterday the Ontario Municipal Board has approached the town's participation in the post office mall development.

Trenton voters gave their consent to the expenditure of $251,000 as their part of the project in a December referendum — new municipal offices will be provided on the site in a condominium arrangement with private interests.

Councillor Ted Parker, a leading advocate of the scheme, says "a lot of work still has to be done but it is now getting under way".

Architect of the new core area project and its principle developer, David K. Linden of Montreal, told The Intelligencer today that he is very pleased with the move.

"It brings us one step further toward establishment of this livable centre," he said.

In a telephone interview, Mr. Linden explained he wants the mall to be a prestige address and indicated tenants may include provincial and federal government offices, banks and finance companies.

"We would like to have three-quarters of the occupancy set before we begin seriously on this — but that will not be difficult," he observed.

The architect mentioned he had been in Trenton Monday to discuss matters of land acquisition and tenancy with local parties and another individual is negotiating for him this week in Toronto.

He said he now awaits word from the town of Trenton as to a mutually agreeable course of action.

Councillor Parker suggests the next step may be for council "to meet the boarden to meet with us" in order to discuss timing schedules for completion of the scheme.

The Montrealer says there are many details to be ironed out with the municipality, land purchases to be completed, and tenant needs determined as working drawings can be prepared.

"We could get building started this year but we will need the continued co-operation and good will of the people of Trenton," Mr. Linden concluded.

Land, Air Foxhunt Successful

TRENTON (Staff) — A fox was the object of a two-hour police and helicopter chase through Middleton Park this morning.

Reports came in to the military police post at CFB Trenton at 9 a.m. that a fox was attacking dogs in the community.

Two dogs were picked up one on Norman Dr., and another on Borden Dr., and are now in quarantine.

At 9.45 a civilian, identified only as a Mr. Barr, reported he had been confronted by the angry animal in a stream area near the base golf course and he had thrown a muskrat trap at it, prompting it to run off into adjacent bush.

Members of the Belleville detachment, Ontario Provincial Police, and Trenton's military police mounted a search this morning assisted by a Canadian Forces helicopter in the district.

At one point police cornered the animal but it eluded the pursuers crawling out before noon north of CFB Trenton.

The hunt ended just after noon when the elusive fox was shot east of Bayside by an OPP officer.

IN MEMORIAM

NOWE — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mabel Agnes Nowe who passed away April 22nd, 1970.

Sadly missed by daughter Victoria.

He went peacefully from pain and strife,
He gently closed his weary eyes,
And took you in His care.
He left you grandmother rest and sleep,
Your loving memory we'll always keep.
—Carolyn, Ted and grandchildren.

NOWE — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother Mabel Agnes Nowe who passed away April 22nd, 1970.

In tears we now say sinking,
We miss you more than words can tell,
Our hearts were almost broken,
When God called you home to dwell.
You left us for a while dear mother,
To peacefully live your days,
But heaven needed another home,
To suffer that same.
Your love for us was always reassured by husband Percy, daughter Victoria and son-in-law Carl.

LACHAPELLE — In loving memory of a dear father and husband Mr. Leo Lachapelle who passed away April 22nd, 1970.

If God could have spoken before he died
These are the words he would have cried
"Dear Wife for me to be truly blest,
Thou must be with me in my rest,
Leave not your home, but courage take,
Love each other for my sake,
For all be said at his request,
Till God gave him eternal rest.
Sadly missed by wife Dorothy and daughter Ann.

REID — In loving memory of a dear husband and grandfather Mr. Reid who passed away April 22nd, 1970.

You never failed to do your best,
You gave your love and hands,
You lived your life for those you loved,
And those you loved remember,
—Sadly missed by all the family.

NDP

said that behind the scenes it is by far the dominating problem — even though only 28 of Quebec's 76-odd delegates had turned up here by Wednesday night. Total registration was 1,420 delegates with more still to arrive.

David Lewis said during the partly-televised discussion among the candidates that he will not even admit the possibility that the country will break up.

Mr. Lewis is acknowledged by this four opponents to be leading the contest for the party chieftainship.

He told The Canadian Press he expects to win on the second ballot at the latest.

Three other candidates—Ed Broadbent, John Harney and James Laxer, who represents the Waffle—all claimed to be in second place. MP Frank Howard didn't make any claims at all.

Mr. Broadbent said on the Quebec issue he favors a federal union for Canada. The NDP could create a new society only by French and English Canada acting together.

He also said Quebec's demand for jurisdiction over social security should be granted.

Mr. Laxer said there has to be a double majority to run Canada—a majority in Quebec and a majority in English Canada.

He added that he hopes this can be settled through recognition of self-determination for Quebec.

Mr. Harney said a new Canadian unity must be based on a new partnership with Quebec.

On other issues, the candidates got a heavy round of applause when he said there should be more public abuse for those who disagree with the Waffle.

He predicted the resolutions would be more conservative than at the 1969 party convention because of the strident language from the left.

Mr. Broadbent got some cheers from younger members of the party when he said marijuana should be put in the same legal category as alcohol.

Mr. Howard drew both cheers and boos when he said legalization of marijuana would bring to Canada riffraff from other parts of the world where the drug remained illegal.

Generally, applause was for what the audience—about filled less than one-fifth of the Civic Centre's 10,000 seats—considered a good answer rather than for the candidate.

Mr. Lewis got a good hand when he said that if he became prime minister the first thing he would do would be to summon the heads of the Bank of Canada, the finance department and similar institutions men who believed in socialism.

The convention tonight gives Mr. Lewis a chance to make his send-off with some prominent entertainers, including his son-in-law, actor Donald Sutherland of the movie MASH.

Mr. Douglas delivered his final report as leader to a standing audience Wednesday afternoon.

He called for intelligent French-English Canadian unity—the real danger of national disintegration.

He also left the impression he does not favor the Waffle's brand of economic nationalism.

He told a reporter he is entirely neutral in the leadership race.

He said that the NDP does not like to be told how to vote. If he endorsed one of the five candidates, he said, the endorsement could boomerang.

Indications of A Trend?

Wages from Province

City Cleanup Under Way

Thanks to the provincial government's initiative, 21 men presently on welfare and unemployment rolls began work yesterday on city property. The men, hired by the city personnel officer, come under the provincial - municipal employment incentive program.

The job, explained Gerard Brennan, secretary of the Belleville Parks Board, is "general cleanup . . . work that normally wouldn't be undertaken at this time of year."

He stressed that the parks board employees "couldn't possibly handle the work at this time;" there is no conflict in jobs with the regular workers.

The cost sharing program will result in the provincial government picking up the tab for the wages . . . $32,726, and the parks board will assume any additional cost for material and equipment rental. By the end of the 10-week project, June 30, 28 men will have been employed at $2.15 per hour.

"This rate is paid according to regulations, it coincides with the prevailing rate," said Mr. Brennan.

Areas to be cleaned up include the west side of Moira River south from Highway 401; city park land; and the bay shore area from Hillcrest Avenue to the sewage treatment plant and the harbor.

Debris will be cleaned up, trees and brush pruned, fresh paint will be applied to park benches, litter containers, ball diamond backstops, bleachers and playground frames, interior and exterior of buildings and shelters, and grading, replacement of topsoil and seeding of grass areas will form the work load for the workers.

Supervision will be provided by regular parks board employees.

Overnight Parking To Be Reviewed

TRENTON (Staff) — Four or five letters of complaint abut the town's overnight parking bylaw were received by town council here Monday and were referred to committee of the whole for consideration.

Legislation here provides that police may issue summonses to car owners when their vehicles are obstructing the work of municipal snowplows and street sweepers. Rather than tagging cars with parking tickets, court summonses are issued, leading to fines of $13.50.

Councillor Paul Tripp told council he had received several telephone calls over the weekend protesting the summonsing practice.

"Are you prepared to have it changed to a parking ticket?" asked Mayor Duncan McDonald.

Although a revision in policy will be considered by committee of the whole next week, Councillor Stan Ketcheson cautioned against changing the legislation until all cases under the overnight parking bylaw are disposed of in the courts.

Accountants Hear Thompson

George Thompson manager of the Belleville section of Bell Canada recently addressed the members of the Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial Accountants. The purpose of the meeting was to inform the members on the organization and function of the local Bell office.

Mr. Thompson said that high costs and economic pressures are the reasons for restrictions of private and two-party lines in urban areas and in order to help lower costs customers are required to pay their accounts directly at the office.

The annual meeting of the Society of Industrial Accountants will be held on May 14, 1971.

Queensboro Man Gets Council Grant

Canada Council bursaries totalling $702,994 have been awarded to 194 artists in the fields of music, theatre, visual arts, film-making, photography and writing. There were 881 applications.

NDP Sweeps to Power In PECI Parliament

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward Collegiate Institute students yesterday cast ballots for the political parties of their choice in preparation for model parliamentary sittings at the school next week.

The student election carried New Democratic Party members led by William Sweet to power with a majority of 21 seats. The Progressive Conservative party, headed by Laurie Tugman, won 16 seats while the Liberals, organized by Wendy Carman, captured 13 seats in the student government.

A total of 734 ballots was cast in the election with the winning party receiving 312 votes. The Conservatives garnered 228 votes and the Liberals 194 ballots.

An annual event at PECI since 1968, the model parliament sittings follow federal government procedures exactly with the exception of duplicating a senate body. "This is probably one of the most outstanding projects in the school," said James Adams, a grade 13 student who will become Speaker of the Picton during next week's parliament sessions.

Student party platforms, campaign speeches, elections and parliament sittings are organized by PECI pupils assisted by student supervisors. Each of the three political parties presented campaign speeches Tuesday before what NDP leader William Sweet described as "a quietly attentive group."

The New Democratic Party won its government majority with a platform demanding Canadian unity and abolition of pollution control measures. Party members supported loans to ensure that all new industries are Canadian-owned. Shares in key industries owned by Americans should be bought out and redistributed among Canadians. Complete sovereignty in the Arctic was urged with navigation restricted to those obtaining consent.

The NDP policy stressed that pollution must be stopped by measures such as the ban of no - return bottles and phosphate detergents. It was stated that garbage and glass could be reprocessed to supplement natural resources. Indecomposable plastics could be replaced by re-moldable plastics in an effort to curb pollution. A control on the production of luxury items is recommended as well as the research and improvement of sewerage systems. Government expenditures earmarked could prevent packaging wastes and large factories could be forced to halt pollution. It was also noted that persons should be hired to clean public areas and the landscape and develop polluted areas.

The Progressive Conservatives adopted a "Keep Canada Canadian" slogan, enforcing their view with plans to regain and hold key industries. Public corporations were favored over foreign takeovers. Conservative party members also advocate removal of the abortion law from the Criminal Code. Other points in their 13-point major policy include interest-free loans to industry to install pollution controls, refusal by Canada to enter a long term energy pact with the USA and a lowering of interest rates and an tax increase to create jobs and fight unemployment.

Liberal party members offer a 10-point policy which rejects separatism and urges national unity. Inflation is a real concern in the Liberal policy and it was stated that guidelines should be established and programs introduced, not to affect the productivity of Canadian companies, but to minimize and to prevent pollution. Liberals urged that Canada cultivate trade and friendship with Red China since it is "a powerful and oncoming nation." Student unemployment, state of the economy and a reduction of penalties for marijuana users also were discussed in the Liberal platform.

Model parliament will enter a three-day sitting at PECI, Monday, April 26 from 1:30 p.m. to 4.30 p.m. The sitting will be continued Wednesday, April 28, and will conclude Thursday night, April 29.

The final sitting of model parliament will be held on Achievement Night at PECI. The public is invited to attend this parliamentary sitting as well as the daytime sessions held earlier in the week.

Ice Cream Policy Raises Council Query

PICTON (Staff) — "I am beginning to wonder if in Prince Edward County we are not too small to exist," Reeve Sophisburg reeve George Foster discussing a report that the county hospital has refused to buy ice cream locally.

Reeve Foster said he was told two local men had bought milk from Silk Products, Wellington, and are now selling ice cream. The Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital board allegedly refused to buy from these county merchants.

The Sophisburg reeve suggested that Albert Pirath, reeve of Picton and county council's representative to the hospital board, should investigate this report.

Mr. Piroth replied that he was unaware of any refusal on the board's part to buy locally and noted that he had attended a board meeting very recently. "I promise you an answer for the next meeting but I don't intend to give answers off the top of my head," declared Reeve Pirath.

Warden Allen Anderson added, "I think we should give our service where we get our revenue."

No Happy Medium

The so-called age of leisure which has been widely heralded in recent years is turning out to be something entirely different. Instead of the four-day week we are still have the two extremes of the rat race, on the one hand, and unemployment — or enforced leisure — on the other.

There is no in between, no real balance between work and leisure. And tossed into this social malaise, compounding it and jeopardizing mankind's very future is a generation of youth unable to find meaningful employment, let alone purpose.

In this connection we cannot help but admire the disciplined approach to life of the Chinese, as manifested in reports and film in recent days. But even within the framework of our own democratic system, and its emphasis on personal freedom, there should be room for a similar sense of responsibility and purposefulness. For a growing number, however, it is not working out thus.

Is it a failure of the system then, or of the individual? Both we should say. Consider drug abuse and the observation of Dale Grant, a 26-year-old Toronto sales clerk and former speed freak. "Speed addiction, any addiction," he said in an article in Weekend magazine last year, "is ultimately a failure of the individual, not of society. That the world is messed up is no valid reason for messing yourself up. It is exactly the opposite. Speed is a negative attempt on the part of the user to deal with the alienation. It is a confession of failure, a weakness in one's self. Every hit says 'I surrender.'"

Still, there remains that "messed up world," and in the United States young people, if "stimulating," are also "confused," according to Dr. Joshua Bierer, a leading British psychiatrist. At the moment, he said recently, young Americans are completely lost, with no leadership "and only want to destroy and not build." He said after a U.S. lecture tour that he found some very fine young people, many sons and daughters of wealthy people. "They were just dissatisfied with the rat-race and felt there was something more important in life than just money and coming home from work tired. . ."

But how else does society function if not through every single member pulling his weight? The evidence of "copping out" is all around, in the languid, lack-lustre clusters of youth in the downtown areas of our cities. At the same time some of the blame must fall on the general economics of the day, on the weariness of the young over the not always inspiring leadership of the adult generation and on a sort of overriding disillusionment with life on this planet.

Nevertheless, it, is in the hands of youth to make something of themselves. More people live in cities today, and many of the answers to society's ills must be found within this framework. Consider then some words of architect Arthur Erickson, the recent winner of a Royal Bank of Canada $50,000 award for distinguished achievement in his field. "Cities," he says, "represent our indifference to man. That is why Toronto is not beautiful, for all the time people have lived here they have been indifferent to the real possibilities for enjoyment."

And he says "there are no universal solutions." That is the one certainty, indeed, but let every man play his part in the process of evolution, rather than revolution, by building up rather than tearing down. Only by such means, and with a due sense of self-respect, will man find purpose in life and, hopefully, build a better world.

Dog Care

Dog owners are expected to observe the law with regard to keeping them within bounds. Many do not, as one Sidney Street resident has indicated to us. It seems dogs have been attacking the garbage bags for food. In summer, moreover, flower gardens and shrubs suffer from roving dogs, not to mention cats. Quite apart from this, many owners neglect to exercise their dogs. We boast of our wide open spaces, but do you ever see anyone walking his dog?

And the Opposition Is Baffled

Trudeau Cabinet Speaks with Many Tongues

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It is so ridiculedockle it is beautiful, says former Conservative Trade Minister George Hees after a recent across-the-Commons floor verbal and gestures joust with Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

He was speaking of the Cabinet and its Commons carrying-ons, or, as he knows the collection of 29 Ministers of the Crown, "Pierre and the Boys".

And mind you, he was not speaking out of bitterness, for he and the Prime Minister, like Donald Duck and Pluto the Pup, are pals.

To watch them, too, is almost as much fun sometimes as watching the cartoon characters.

George Harris Hees calls the Prime Minister Pierre, and Pierre Elliott Trudeau calls him George in across - the - floor verbal bash and banter.

When each, if they were following the traditional form of parliamentary dialogue, as strictly stylized as the minuet in an 18th century drawing room, properly should be referring to each other as the Hon. Member and the Rt. Hon. Member.

Pierre will wave George to his feet with elaborate gesturing that can sometimes approach the form of a master of ceremonies presenting a star performer.

And George will give Pierre the "go-man-go" and "that's-my-boy" salute of exuberance that a football coach keeps in reserve for the star quarterback when the crunch comes for the old college try.

All of which is beside the point, except to underline that when George Hees is critical of the way Pierre Trudeau runs the Cabinet, it is not out of pique or small - mindedness.

For it is a Cabinet like no other Ottawa has ever seen over which Pierre Trudeau is, well, what? Presiding maybe perhaps reigning, but definitely experimenting.

Into this new kind of Cabinet, this different sort of Prime Minister has injected a massive dose of what he has called "participatory democracy."

Each of its 29 members, many of them distinct individualists with strong and sometimes strange opinions of their own, is free on the air to pop off with whatever may be momentarily at the top of his head.

This utterly abandoned freedom of Cabinet speech can be exercised at a ministerial whim of the moment regardless of whether it appears to square with Government policy — and what is that? — or seems to fly in the face of it.

This, the way George Hees sizes it up from a perspective of 21 years in Parliament, six of them in the Cabinet, gives the Prime Minister leverage over the Commons with which it is hopelessly helpless to cope.

For the device of "participatory Cabinet democracy" enables "Pierre and the Boys," collectively and individually, to speak out of all sides of their mouths with 29 different tongues — one for each of them, and seldom, if ever, in concert.

It is a shifty neat Cabinet trick if a Prime Minister can get away with it — and Pierre can and does with ridiculous ease — for in this way nobody in the Commons, Government or Opposition MP knows what the ministry is really saying, or what it may have at the back of its secret mind.

That way the Opposition can not pin the Cabinet with anything like a pointed question on any issue — go ahead, pick one, there is no shortage — because "Pierre and the boys" are forever shifting ground.

It has reached the point of lunacy where, on the same day and on the same question the Opposition — Conservative, New Democrat and Creditiste alike — can get a variety of often contradictory answers from Cabinet Ministers, a different reply from each one asked.

For the Opposition, says George Hees, "it is like riding the merry-go-round. You get nowhere. And not getting there is half the fun for Pierre and the Boys."

Pierre shrugs and makes faces, throws up his hands in mock resignation to what he infuriatingly makes appear as regards as Opposition thick-headedness, and most insultingly of all, in full professorial power, lectures the MPs as if they were a class of mentally retarded campus dropouts.

There is not an MP in the House, Opposition party leader or backbencher who has a clue how to cope with him.

Although, let it be said, George Hees finds a certain forest, riding a hunch that the best way, so far, to try is to give the Prime Minister some of the same.

But even so, that is not going to solve the problem of the Opposition — and the country, too — ever being sure they know what the Cabinet is thinking and planning to do.

Only 11 Vacancies Here

Militia Training Program Is Cut Back

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Through the medium of your paper may I express our dismay at the recent announcement that only 21 vacancies were allotted the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment (11 in Belleville, 10 in Peterborough) for the Summer Student Militia Training Program.

For many years the Regiment has conducted this training which has proven popular with the young people and their parents as well. This year when supposedly the Government is attempting to provide gainful employment for students, the vacancies are reduced to the lowest number ever.

The Regiment can and wants to train many more. Students are applying for vacancies in greater numbers than any previous year. Surely if the Canadian Forces do not have the funds it would not be too great a problem to use some of the $53,000,000 allotted for student employment to be used for this purpose.

The discipline, good citizenship and functional skills taught on these courses have proven to be an asset not only to the young men but to the community and the country as well. Surely this type of training is needed now more than ever.

In view of the foregoing we believe that the government agencies concerned should be severely reprimanded for not taking advantage of the Summer Student Militia Program to provide meaningful employment for our young people during the summer months. In addition we recommend most strongly that this type of training be made available to students on a continuing basis each summer.

Communists Compete for Favors

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The bizarre events in Ceylon, where the government is trying to put down rebel guerrillas, provide another example of how international power politics make strange ideological bedfellows.

Baffling to anyone analysing world events in terms of clear-cut doctrinal differences is the fact that the Soviet Union has come to the aid of Ceylon's prime minister, Sirimavo Bandaranaike, in her fight against the self-described left-wing insurgents.

Although currently branded Fascists by the government, the rebels insist they have taken their revolutionary cue from the late Che Guevara, who once was a key man in the Russian-backed government of Cuba's Fidel Castro.

Mrs. Bandaranaike, proud of what she calls her socialist policies at home and abroad, is considered insufficiently radical by the young Ceylonese now making trouble.

Yet, like Moscow, the Communist government of Yugoslavia is helping the anti-insurgent cause and, in doing so, has aligned itself with a number of "capitalist" countries in the pro-Bandaranaike camp, notably Britain and the United States.

India too is on the prime minister's side. But so, apparently, is that country's neighbor, Pakistan, which at present is tangling verbally with New Delhi over the latter's stand on the rebellion in East Pakistan.

Behind the reported Pakistani offer of two helicopters as a loan to the Ceylon government may be the influence of China.

Originally, authorities in Ceylon seemed to be hinting that China's Communist neighbor, North Korea, was a source of vital support for the rebels, who have been known to employ Maoist slogans.

But China, after being thus suspected of indirectly backing the insurgents, may have since decided against continuing a policy which was likely to put Peking at a disadvantage in the contest for top place among foreign powers seeking to influence government actions in strategically-situated Ceylon.

In any case, the Soviets are unstinting in their praise of extreme leftists who choose to operate outside the direct control of orthodox, Moscow - dominated Communist parties.

Meanwhile, Russia's commitment of planes and pilots for the support of the Bandaranaike government is producing concern in London.

There, apprehension about alleged Soviet ambitions in the Indian Ocean has repeatedly been cited by government officials in the controversy over sale of British arms to South Africa.

The latest move by Moscow will probably intensify British and U.S. emphasis on Indian Ocean security.

It also shows that Russia will not hesitate to back extremism in influence in large areas of Asia, as against similar claims by China. Moscow's chief target for pre-eminence in the Communist world.

Choral Society and Soloists Provide an Enjoyable Evening

By EUGENE LANG

The Belleville Choral Society under the direction of Murray Irwin, presented its fifth annual concert in Centennial Secondary School auditorium as part of this year's Artsfest now in progress this month. As in the past the program was of varied content that served to bring out the vocal attributes of the 45 members of the choir.

Selections from the ever popular Sound of Music provided the opener with the entire group demonstrating sharp clarity of enunciation set against fullness of tone. Two excerpts from famous operas proved most enjoyable; a regal rendition of the powerful "Pilgrims Chorus" from Tannhauser did honor to choir and composer while the Faust chorus by Gounod was sung with robust vigor, marred only by one quick turn of phrase where voices tumbled over each other in trying to negotiate too many words on too few notes.

Listen to the Lambs, by R. Nathaniel Dett elicited tonal gradations of singers in a finely conceived canvas bathed in glowing warmth. Martin Shaw's Fanfare provided the choir a chance to sing with vibrant voicings. Keith Bissell's The Dark Hills was handled in a cappella style beautifully musically. Your popular songs that grace choral concerts this continent over were evinced with lilt and lightness. Arranged by the late Leslie Bell, the Swedish folk tune, The Long Beach Sea, Skip to My Lou and Set Down Servant were standards of vocal groups the draw out the applause from listeners — last evening being no exception. In every instance Mr. Irwin received from his charges their attentive best, Dennis Gunter on string bass and John Bunner handling percussion backed up with effective punctuations in Ain't that Good News and the clever Canon swindled by Swinge from Bach.

Special mention must made of the music composed to accompanist S. Alec Gordon for the choir's benefit — and ours. Written in five part voices the anthem With the Voice of a Psalm is a semi-joyous work that was sung in declamatory fashion by the choir. Three short songs of simple intent collectively titled Father Gander Rhymes (appropriate verses slyly written by composer) were whipped up with frothful capric. Tiny delicacies served with verve!

Solo parts in various selections were sung by Jane Boyd, Lee Riedel, Carol Farmer and Shirley Wiegand.

Assisting soloists were Nancy Riedel, flautist and Kerry Stratton, violinist. Miss Riedel played remarkably well in the Purcell Flute Sonata, the first short movements giving her the opportunity to attest to her abilities in tone and technique as was evident in her performance.

Kerry Stratton is now no new name to the musical life of Belleville so introductions are unnecessary. Three numbers were played by this precocious young violinist, one of them being of his own composition. The Vivaldi Concerto A Minor was delivered with spirit in opening Allegro, soulful appeal in the largo and hearty zest in the finale. The Pastorale by Kerry came to these ears as a pleading wail of conventional structure underlined at times by gasping chords from the piano. This ofold augur much for Nos. 1 and 3 yet to pour forth from Kerry's creative cranium. The concluding Tarantella by Drdla gave some moments to exhibit the soloist's musical accomplishments, also bringing out a fluid bow in the songful middle section.

Mr. Gordon accompanied the two young artists as well as the choir throughout in the entire concert with his usual aplomb and rapport to the music and musicians.

Previous to the musical portion of the evening, Lee Journal outlined the history and motives of the City of Belleville Cultural Advisory Board introducing His Worship Mayor J. Russell Scott who presented this year's plaque to Mrs. Philippa Faulkner, local artist who has now an enviable reputation nationally for her contribution over the years to the development and furtherance of painting and art in Canada.

As in former years, we offer our compliments to Mr. Irwin and his choir for a splendid program, well chosen and conscientously performed.

Festival Alarms Councillors

In addition the bylaw requests that the medical officer of health shall have deposited with the township clerk a written approval that there will be adequate provision made for the public health of all persons that the promoter deposit with the clerk an amount necessary to repair anticipated minor damage and the cleaning of public buildings and grounds.

Any infringement of the bylaw calls for a penalty of not more than $300.

Finally, the licence and all conditions contained in the bylaw must be met 60 days prior to the holding of the event.

The warden's rock festival report read by Mr. Bateman said that the results of the county's request for provincial legislation to regulate and licence rock festivals had been "very disappointing."

Clarke T. Rollins, Hastings riding member was quoted as being in complete accord with county council's request.

However, Hon. Allan E. Lawrence, minister of justice had told the county that he had doubts whether such legislation, if it were proceeded with, would be effective in time to meet the Madoc township problem.

Mr. Lawrence was further quoted as saying that there were some areas where revenues derived from this type of festival have been so attractive that the municipalities have almost encouraged the functions.

The county solicitor, a firm of Toronto solicitors and the department of municipal affairs feel that the county has no authority to licence, regulate or prohibit rock festivals.

"If the Hon. Dr. Potter has privileged information with respect to such legislation we respectfully suggest that he make it known to us," the report read.

The report quoted representatives of the Ontario provincial police as saying the costs associated with political rock fest'vals were running into hundreds of thousands of dollars, while in addition there were emergency health services, hospital accommodation, public health and damage and cleanup expenses.

So far, it was suggested, these costs have all been assessed against the Ontario taxpayer with promoters being allowed to reap the benefit and go scot free.

Another fact of rock festivals that disturbs county officials is that drugs are sold and used openly, with complete nudity being commonplace, all of this, with complete knowledge of the authorities but little done to control it.

"It would appear that the province lacks the ability to control such events and is attempting to shift the responsibility onto the local municipalities."

The report said the county position has never been that the province completely ban rock festivals.

"What we do say is that the responsibility to license and regulate such festivals and to charge the promoters with additional costs associated with such large gatherings should be at the provincial level and not locally, as with Madoc township."

Council voted to adopt the report and ask clarification from riding member Dr. Potter.

NE Denies Report

MONTREAL (CP) — Northern Electric Co. Ltd. Wednesday denied reports that it plans to phase out operations in Quebec and move to Ontario.

Gordon Meehan, president of Northern's blue collar employee association, said Tuesday that about 1,000 Northern Electric employees in Quebec would be dismissed in the next six months.

A brief prepared for the association by Prof. Sidney Ingerman of McGill University documented charges that the company was moving all high growth operations to Bramalea and Kingston.

The report included a company engineering report prepared for management March 16 which talked of moving one manufacturing operation to Bramalea, thereby cancelling some 350 jobs in the Montreal area.

Ray Smythe, vice-president of corporate planning for Northern Electric, said in an interview Wednesday that there will be no such move and the brief is entirely without foundation.

All Ontario Farmers
DO YOU KNOW WHAT BILL C-176 MEANS AND HOW IT AFFECTS YOU?

Jack Horner, FARMER, M.P., who is opposing the bill as written is one of the Members of Parliament who says you, the farmer, should have a better understanding of Bill C-176.

We, a group of Ontario farmers will attempt to explain, in most products, we are currently using the NORTH AMERICAN SYSTEM of agriculture, where the farmer CONTROLS HIS OWN PRODUCTION.

Our Federal Government, through new legislation called Bill C-176, is attempting in good faith to organize the movement and marketing of the farm products of ALL CANADIAN FARMERS, by request, through a system which will probably lead to national commissions similar to the MILK COMMISSION, this, in an attempt to aid the small farmer.

THIS POLICY leads to controlled production . . . controls . . . forms . . . inspectors . . . quotas . . . prices set by government . . . surplus product maintained by imports and INEVITABLY LEADS TO TOTAL AND ARBITRARY GOVERNMENT CONTROL, as in the milk commission, where over-quota milk is paid at $1.09 per hundredweight . . . and cheese and milk powder are being IMPORTED NOW!

Remember, the Federal Government has the power to IMPORT.

This is the EUROPEAN SYSTEM.

As per a recent report, hog producers in Britain, for example, produce ONLY 50 PER CENT of their pork needs. THE BALANCE IS IMPORTED to MAINTAIN THE PRICE SET by the government, set to seven thousand HOG FARMERS GO OUT OF BUSINESS YEARLY in spite of a 25 PER CENT SUBSIDY on buildings and equipment.

This is called a CHEAP FOOD POLICY.

UNDER THE PRESENT TERMS OF BILL C-176

- government appointees shall SET PRICES of farm products WITHOUT NEGOTIATIONS with farmers.
- this will lead to CHEAP FOOD.
- the Federal Government will give the farmer NO CONTROL OVER imports.
- this will lead to CHEAP FOOD.

Why are there NO import controls in C-176?

Because imports are the REGULATOR of the farmer's PRICE, as in England. Should a rigid commission be set up for your farm products, you will never again see profits due to shortage of supply . . . never see $55. hogs . . . 50c eggs . . . 35c beef . . . due to short supply, as the product will be imported to keep the market fully supplied, as in Europe.

This is a CHEAP FOOD POLICY

THE MAJOR CHANGE under Bill C-176 from the NORTH AMERICAN SYSTEM to the EUROPEAN-type system will be PERMANENT if passed. Yet NO farmer committee has studied the merits of this system which the European farmers obviously dislike . . . as witnessed by the BRUSSELS RIOTS of March 24, 1971, when 10,000 farmers rioted, 139 were injured, 68 were arrested and ONE FARMER DIED.

Will we have to riot and demonstrate as in Holland, Belgium and other European countries to get a MEAGHER INCREASE from the government under a CHEAP FOOD POLICY?

MANY OF US have asked the standing committee on agriculture for a PLEBISCITE of all farmers of Canada, saying "LET THE FARMERS DECIDE." The Federal Government has said "NO". Jack Horner, M.P. says Bill C-176, which could be our cheap food policy, may be passed "as is" within weeks.

WE ASK YOU as individual farmers, therefore to democratically "express your opinion" to the Federal Government, in a non-political way by filling in the two coupons attached and mailing separately as suggested on the coupons. NO POSTAGE REQUIRED. Simply address as requested — NOW — while there is still time to study or change the bill.

I would ask that passage of Bill C-176 be delayed until
- a committee of FARMERS visits, studies and reports on the European system
OR . . .
- a democratic plebiscite of ALL Canadian farmers be held, indicating support for the bill.

Second Boss of the Year Award Presented by NSA

Eric Runacres, director of education for the Hastings County Board was presented with the Boss of the Year Award at the Executive Night dinner sponsored by the Bay of Quinte chapter of the NSA and held on Wednesday night at the Four Seasons Hotel. The presentation was made by Mrs. Gabrielle Watkins, president of the Bay of Quinte chapter of the NSA and Executive Night was the main event held locally in connection with secretaries' week (April 18-24) which is being observed throughout Canada and the U.S.

Wednesday being secretaries' day, members of the NSA entertained their bosses to the Executive Night dinner at which the guest speaker was Mrs. Marie Huffman, a teacher in the commercial department at Centennial Secondary School. "Teamwork between boss and secretary" was the subject of her address.

Defining team work as the acting together of two or more people to make the work of the group more effective, Mrs. Huffman observed that the objectives of a good team should be forward motion, unity of purpose and good communications. She expressed the opinion that forward motion or progress would be ensured if the talents and strengths of each member is used to the maximum and if the secretary has a head for judgement, an eye for detail, a nose for business, a chin to take it on and her feet on the ground instead of living up to the popular "girl Friday" image of the secretary. "Girl Friday was only a slave, she pointed out and not a particularly bright one either.

Mrs. Huffman also stated that a good team must have unity of purpose and must work towards a common goal. Thirdly, she emphasized that no team can operate well if good communications are lacking between the members. She advised bosses to make the office atmosphere conducive to good communications and instructed secretaries to make an effort to communicate with the boss.

The speaker was thanked by Miss Linda Whitehead who presented her with a gift on behalf of the association.

Earlier, Mrs. Gabrielle Watkins, president spoke briefly about the NSA which she said is the world's leading secretarial association and is non-profit, non-partisan and non-union. She outlined the purpose of the association which she said is to elevate the standards of the profession through education and the CPS (certified professional secretaries) rating system.

Mrs. Watkins stated that the FSA (future secretaries' association) is sponsored by the NSA and membership is open to students of secretarial courses. She pointed out that the Bay of Quinte chapter of the NSA has not yet installed an FSA group but doing so is one of its dreams for the future. She pointed out that the local chapter had won three awards since it was organized three years ago and is at present sponsoring an executive secretarial course at Loyalist College. Mrs. Watkins concluded by thanking all the bosses who were present at the event for their support and encouragement.

The head table guests including Mayor Russell Scott were introduced by Marlene Phillips, chairman of secretaries' week. A skit was performed by Sherry Meldrum, Lena Dearborn and Priscilla Steele.

Successful Living

Activity and Involvement Prevents Senility

By DORIS CLARK

Did you know that only a fraction of the senility which may creep on in later years is due to physical deterioration? Other contributing factors are constipation, lack of mental activity, and isolation which has become desolation, chronic illness and poverty of a life concerns.

All of these make for the creation of mental powers often observed in many aged persons.

Recently a psychiatrist who is a good friend of mine remarked about a middle-aged woman, "She is not the sort of person who will go senile. Her mind is too active, her brain too busy. And too many people care about her."

Isn't this a message to all of us to keep interested and involved in what goes on, whether we are 17 or 70?

* * *

Dear Doris: I am having quite a problem with my parents. What I mean is, every night they have a fight, more or less a war!

You see, my mother stays in every night of the week, so when she decides to go out with a girl friend on a Saturday night, my father doesn't agree with this. He claims this woman she goes with is no good. I myself have met this woman and she seems like a very nice person.

I want to help my parents if I can, but really I don't like to interfere, but it scares me because I don't want my parents split up. My nerves can't take it any more and I'd like to leave home, but I am only 15.—Worried and Troubled.

Dear Worried and Troubled: Little do your dear ones mean by what they do to you when you hear them tossing bitter words back and forth. They alone know how serious their warfare is; and meanwhile you stand by helpless and shaken.

If this has been going on a long time, I'd guess that they aren't going to split up. Just the same, you need a personal counsellor to unload to. At 15, you can't just walk out on it.

* * *

Dear Doris: I would dearly love to have the quilt pattern for the Dutch Boy and Dutch Girl.

We go on vacation in June to Nova Scotia for five months and since my husband needs my constant care I always take some sort of handwork with me. My husband is blind and has Parkinson's. I have a lot of nice remnants and this summer I plan to make a quilt top or maybe two.

Last summer I knitted nine pairs of men's socks, two pairs of little boys' and 17 pairs of mitts. These I gave for Christmas gifts. I have to keep doing something to keep my nerves calm. — Mrs. J. B.

Dear Mrs. J. B.: With the help of the Chatelaine Crafts editor we have reproduced and are sending you the pattern. Creative handwork like this can do a great job on the nerves, and you can pick it up without budging from your husband's side.

(I'll send a copy of the Dutch Boy-Dutch Girl pattern to anyone writing in, enclosing 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

Are you in doubt about the proper etiquette to use for your special occasion? Ask Doris, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply.

Ann Landers

Too Often Wives Not Appreciative

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been brooding about this for weeks and decided to write to you to get it off my chest. My letter might also serve to educate a few people. At least I hope so.

ANN LANDERS

I work in a pharmacy. On Valentine's Day a pleasant looking, middle-aged man came in to buy a box of candy for his wife. I could see he was a working man so I showed him the more modestly priced boxes. He bought a heart-shaped assortment of chocolate-covered cherries for $3.85. Before I wrapped it he said, "Please wait. I want to put in a card." He carefully selected a 19c card, wrote something on it and shyly handed it to me. When he left the drug store I thought, "How lovely."

Three hours later the man was back. With downcast eyes he told me he had come to get a refund. His wife said the box of candy was too expensive. I returned his money and swallowed the lump in my throat. When he walked out of the store he looked depressed and beaten.

Why don't wives realize what it means to a man to be able to bring his life a nice gift — even if it is too expensive? Don't these women realize they are killing something very precious when they deflate their husbands this way? Please, Ann, a word from you will bring the point home. — ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS.

* * *

DEAR ROCK: A letter like yours needs no added word from anybody. You've made the point beautifully and I thank you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter from the girl whose fiance had a terrible fight with his mother. He called her some vulgar names and the girl said she was shocked to hear such language from him.

While this does not sound very nice, it is, I believe, healthy for him that family setup and husband came from. Ed and his brothers were brought up to believe their mother was infallible. No one dared question her position on anything. She always had the last word. Anything less than complete agreement was not tolerated.

Outsiders thought it was wonderful that the boys were so devoted. People frequently commented on what a beautiful family they were. I knew better — my husband and his brothers were all hostile, resentful, frustrated and loaded with guilt because their true feelings about their mother did not line up with the faces they presented to the world.

In my opinion, it's much healthier when children are free to act out their true feelings and say what is on their minds. Do you agree? — LIVING WITH A DAMAGED SON WHO IS AFRAID OF HIS MOTHER.

* * *

DEAR LIVING: I fail to see anything healthy about allowing kids to call their mother vulgar names. On the other hand, children should be permitted to express an opinion that differs from their parent's without fear.

The wise mother encourages free and open discussion. She welcomes another point of view. She is also able to admit, on occasion, that she is wrong. Such an atmosphere produces intellectually honest children who are secure and comfortable with their parents.

Confidential to SOMEBODY'S GRANDPA: Never mind about my dimples. You ought to write for magazines.

ST. JAMES THE MINOR CWL

"Sacrament the Witness" was the subject of a film shown by Rev. J. F. McGarvey at the April meeting of the Catholic Women's League held at the home of Mrs. John Kerby. The film dealt with the Sacrament of Confirmation which the children of the Parish will be receiving next month. The meeting opened with the celebration of Mass at which members, guests and Kerby children participated.

Treasurer Mrs. J. Doran gave her monthly report. This was followed by the yearly report which showed the League had a satisfactory year.

Mrs. Roy La Chapelle read a letter from the Diocesan president concerning the CWL convention to be held at the Sun Valley Motel in Belleville on May 29 and 30. The guest speaker for the banquet Saturday night will be Mrs. Mary Sue McCarthy. Mrs. Gerald Kerby read a news letter from "Concern" asking for help in the missions of the world.

Lunch was served by the hostess Mrs. John Kerby assisted by Mrs. J. Finnigan.

Ben: "Ted is so messy. He scatters his stuff all over my bed and fills the bureau drawers with his junk. I wish I had a room of my own."

Ted: "Ben is too fussy. It's my room, too."

Mother: "It's too bad you can't each have a room — but it's impossible right now. Dad installed that rod in the ceiling so we can hang a curtain to serve as a room divider. There's plenty of space for a bed and a chest on each side."

A division of space and facilities in a bedroom shared by two youngsters will help do away with conflicts and make it easier to respect each other's rights.

U.C.W. Meeting

MELROSE UCW EVENING UNIT

MELROSE — The evening unit of Melrose UCW met in the church basement for the April meeting on Thursday evening. This was a postponed meeting so the program prepared for Easter was used.

Mrs. Don MacFarlane unit president, presided with 15 members present.

Mrs. R. Badgley conducted the worship service, using the "Beatitudes" Math. 5 for the Scripture. A couple of Easter hymns and a short paper on "The Meaning of Easter.

During the business period pre - arrangements were made for catering to a June wedding. An invitation to a potluck dinner and quilting was accepted, to be held at the home of Mrs. Clare Weese on April 21.

The president suggested a fresh bouquet should replace the one now in front of the church. The idea was approved by the members and the executive will take care of the matter.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $102.82 after all expenses had been met. The visiting committee reported on the calls made during February and March. Weather and road conditions were not conducive so they did not have many visits to report. Appointees for April and May are Mrs. C. Hagerman and Mrs. J. MacFarlane.

Mrs. C. Bates expressed thanks of the family for the many kindnesses shown at the time of the illness and passing of the late Charles W. Bates.

A short time was spent in discussing a bus trip which would take place later in the year.

Program convener, Mrs. K. McMechan with her assistant, Mrs. S. Demille, continued with the Easter theme.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Chocolate Souffle A Favorite

By MARY MOORE

Out of the grand and glorious past one of my relatives recalled the sumptuous meals served on the Cunard liners topped off very often with perfect souffles hot from the oven.

For nostalgia's and flavor's sake I hunted up the recipe for chocolate souffle (the favorite) and made six individuals to serve at a party.

These are not as much trouble for a guest dinner as you might think at first glance. Most of the preparation is done in advance so that it may be chilled. Fifteen minutes before dinner is announced the last folding - in - of - egg-whites is done and souffles are put in the oven. They require 40-45 min. so are ready to come directly from oven to table at dessert time.

CHOCOLATE SOUFFLE
(6 individual)

1½ tbsps. butter or margarine
2 tbsps. all-purpose flour
½ cup milk
¾ cup granulated sugar
¼ tsp. salt
2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate cut into 4 pieces each
3 extra large (or 4 med.) eggs — yolks and whites separated
1 tbsp. cold water
½ tsp. vanilla

Make the sauce in advance by melting the butter or margarine, blending in flour, then stirring in milk, sugar, salt and chocolate until thick and smooth. Remove from heat, cool it down a little and stir in egg yolks until blended. Cover and chill in refrigerator. About 1 hr. before dessert - serving time remove sauce from refrigerator and stir in water and vanilla. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into sauce until smoothly blended.

Turn into six unbuttered individual pottery or glass custard dishes. Set these dishes in large shallow pan containing enough hot water to come halfway up sides. Ten min. before announcing "dinner is served" put in oven at 350 deg. Fahr. and bake 40-45 min. Wearing oven gloves carry each to dinner table and place on a tea plate before guests, boiling hot. These hot souffles are often served with liqueur sauces or unsweetened whipped cream.

You see? — Souffles are not so hard to-make and are sensationally good.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Prisoners of Three Kinds

Thoughts at Large:

Perhaps a third of our prison population consists of men who are vicious; another third of men who are abnormal mentally; and the final third of ordinary citizens who have made a mistake; and if we are going to have prisons (which are of dubious value at best), we should at least have three different kinds, each dealing quite differently with its particular kind of inmate.

• • •

The people with the clearest insights are not necessarily those with the finest minds, but those who were least damaged by their environment while growing up.

• • •

What we most lack today is a sense of "community." But we cannot restore it in the old, static, pre-electronic fashion of unchanging neighborhoods and towns; only an awareness of "world-community" is large and stable enough to cope with the dynamics of this post-atomic age.

• • •

If we accept Darwin's dictum of "survival of the fittest" in its most crude and simple-minded form, then we would have to apotheosize the cockroach as the supremely fittest of all living creatures, since it existed long before man and has the best chance of outlasting us.

• • •

Hypocrisy is more to be despised than an outright falsehood; as Thoreau wryly put it: "One can lies in his words and gets a bad reputation — another in his manners and enjoys a good one."

• • •

A philanderer is motivated more by fear of his manhood than pride in his prowess: he is forever in flight, either toward a woman or away from one, and cannot bear the tension of a steady relationship, which is the only true test of a secure personality.

A class reunion is a dismal occasion on two counts — all you see are adults who look 10 years older than yourself, and students who look 10 years too young to be in college.

• • •

There are just as many self-made failures as successes, but they don't brag about it.

Only Two Qualifications for Special Olympics

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

There aren't any stringent qualifying standards for the second Canadian Special Olympics. You just have to be 13 and under and mentally retarded.

The first time the event was staged, in 1969, more than 1,000 retarded young Canadians converged on Toronto and proved to everyone's satisfaction that this had to be a regular event.

So the second Special Olympics will be held in Toronto this June 9-11, and there will be Bellevillians running, jumping and swimming for medals.

Enrolment at the William R. Kirk School for the Retarded on John St. only stands at 45, but the staff has hopes of sending no less than 12 of their charges to the Olympics.

Of course it just wouldn't be a sport undertaking unless there was a fund shortage, and, in that regard, the gang at William R. Kirk find themselves in a somewhat awkward position.

"We need about $1,000 to send 12 boys and girls and the necessary supervisors to The Olympics, about 25 people in all," explains Mrs. Joyce Stovell, a worker for the district association for the Mentally Retarded. "But we can't ask the public for it.

"The school is now operated by the Department of Education so the Association will have to raise these extra funds. But the Association is a member agency of the United Community Services so we can't hold a canvass under the terms of our charter."

Naturally nobody would object if Bellevillians sent unsolicited donations to Mrs. Stovell at 12 Pine St.

Arrangements weren't complicated for the Kirk contingent to the first Special Olympics. There were only four competitors, and every one went by car.

"We were very fortunate to have team jackets donated by Deacon Brothers that year," recalls Mrs. Stovell, whose 17-year old son Roddie ("we call him Rod now — he's getting older") brought home a couple of swimming medals.

"This time we've got a package deal by train," Mrs. Stovell went on. "Yes, I'm assuming we'll get the money. Surely in Belleville there are 4,000 people willing to donate a quarter!"

She hopes to stretch that $1,000 to pay for team sweatshirts, as well as transportation, accommodation, and meals.

As of Wednesday, the official donations stood at 75 cents one-third of which Mrs. Stovell flipped over in her hand as she watched one of the two weekly boys' physical education periods in the St. Thomas Parish Hall gymnasium.

There are no separate training sessions for the pupils who will be picked to participate in the Special Olympics, although those children might get a few extra pointers from volunteers Barry Morgan and Ron Hiuser, both BCI students and Brian Reddick.

William R. Kirk staff members Shirley Elliston and Sue Clarke oversee the school's phys-ed program, which includes swimming at the YMCA, track and field, which will be moving outdoors to the East Hill playground next week, bowling, free skating at the Memorial Arena in the winter months, football, softball and floor hockey.

There are special problems in coaching. "One thing we have to worry about that most athletic coaches don't is instilling a sense of competition in some of the kids," says Sue Clarke. "Some of them don't know what being competitive means."

But some of the aspiring athletes are well aware of the challenges that lie ahead.

Mrs. Stovell recounted one budding high jumper's wary look forward. "He said he hoped it would be a fairly low jump," she smiled.

Special Effort

This high jump presented little challenge to Tommy Givins, one of 12 pupils of Belleville's William R. Kirk School for Retarded Children who hope to attend "Special Olympics" in Toronto June 9-11. Looking on is BCI student Barry Morgan, one of several volunteer coaches in the school's physical education program.

Eight years ago, a gangling 16-year-old Toronto netminder attempted to push aside a local hotshot as the backup goalie for the Peterborough Petes. He didn't make it.

The Peterborough phenom who wound up with the job was Steve Rexe, while all Ken Dryden managed to salvage was a ticket to Etobicoke Junior B's.

"He was really big for his age and he just didn't have his full co-ordination then, kind of awkward like a colt trying to run in a horse race," was how the Belleville Mo-Hawk backstop described the Boston Bear-Trapper.

The next time that their hockey paths met was in 1969 when Dryden was picked as the alternate goalie in the Canadian National team behind Wayne Stephenson and Rexe. By then the Cornell student had learned to co-ordinate his six-foot, 4-inch frame, and was beginning to show some of the brilliance he would later demonstrate in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

"He was really quick," observed Rexe, "and he could glove a shot two inches off the ice with those long arms. Imagine being able to glove a shot TWO INCHES off the ice!"

STEVE REXE

"His only drawback was that at Cornell he had played only about 25 games, whereas we'd been in close to a hundred that year with the Nats, so Dryden wasn't quite as sharp as he would have been if he'd played that many games. You could see him improving almost every time he played, though, and he was only with the Nationals a month.

About Dryden's perfidiality, the red-headed Senior A standout offered, "He's a nice guy, quiet, but really intelligent. He'll sit around and have a few beers and try to talk on everyone else's level, but it would probably take five years to really get to know him. He's kind of an introvert."

Neither Rexe or the giant Ivy Leaguer saw any action in the first four games as coach Jackie MacLeod went with Stephenson for the whole distance. In game number five, however, the first-stringer was injured and Rexe played the final two periods allowing a pair of goals in a 5-2 loss to Sweden.

The injury jinx hit the Peterborough native the very next day when a practice shot by teammate Chuck Lefley ripped his leg open. The gash required 65 stitches on the outside of the leg and close to 200 inside during a three-hour operation to mend the damage.

Blanked Yanks

Dryden's initial effort in world play turned out to be a 1-0 shutout against the country that was picking up his educational tab, as he whitewashed the United States. While having little work in the game he was tested twice on tough chances by current teammate Larry Pleau.

The rookie finished between the pipes in a 4-2 loss to Sweden, but played well as the Swedes led by former professional Ulf Sterner dominated the game.

Rexe feels that the big advantage that a tall goalie like Dryden has over a little man is that he doesn't have to cut down the angles as well. "Look at Worsley the other night," notes the five-foot-eight Rexe. "He played a strong game for the whole first period but the first time he didn't cut down the angle enough it resulted in a goal.

"Dryden, on the other hand makes some fundamental mistakes but he covers so much of the goal that he can get away with them. When he goes down they have to shoot the puck at such a sharp angle to get it over him that just about every time it misses the net."

"I think that the real key to Dryden's success against Boston, however was his attitude. He's cool off the ice and he carries this attitude into a game. Ken isn't the type of guy that gets worked up and hollers 'let's go gang' in the dressing room. He just gets off in a corner and gets himself mentally prepared."

"Also", offers the former teammate of Dryden's, "he has that law career ahead of him so hockey isn't his only interest. Someone without Ken's other interests would have been awed by the Bruins, but he wasn't that wrapped up in the game and as a result he went out and stopped them.

"It seemed like the Montreal players looked on him as sort of a guardian angel back there who couldn't be beaten — and he wasn't!"

Barrow Wheel

TORONTO (CP) — John Barrow, 35, right defensive tackle for 14 years with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League, today was appointed general manager of the rival Toronto Argonauts.

He will serve a year's apprenticeship under Argo president Lew Hayman, gradually taking over some responsibilities from head coach Les Cahill.

Barrow, a native of Delray Beach, Fla., graduated in advertising from the University of Florida and was drafted third by Detroit Lions of the National League.

He chose Canadian football instead and joined the Tiger-Cats where he was named to the Canadian all-star team for 11 years in a row. He was Canada's outstanding lineman in 1962.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Bucks scored a sloppy 98-88 victory over Baltimore Bullets Wednesday night in the first game of the best-of-seven National Basketball Association final.

Alcindor finished with 31 points on 13 field goals in 16 tries and added 16 rebounds in the final half.

Tribe Beaten by Shot in Dark

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

He lost, and so did Cleveland Indians, as Yaz doubled in drive home the decisive run Wednesday in a comeback 9-7 victory by Boston Red Sox.

Yastrzemski, off to one of his best starts ever and now hitting .364, had already singled twice, walked once and belted a tremendous shot into the right field bleachers for his third homer of the year when he came up in the eighth inning.

The situation apeared to call for an intentional walk, with the score 7-7, a runner on second, two out and right-hander Vince Colbert on the mound. Dark came out to talk to his pitcher, but then the Indians pitched to Yaz.

The three-time American League batting champion ripped the first pitch on a line to left field, where it just eluded Roy Foster's diving shoestring try. The run scored and Yaz reached second, where he scored on Rico Petrocelli's single.

"I decided to swing at that first pitch if it was anywhere near the plate," Yaz said. "I figured if it was a ball, Dark might change signals and walk me."

In other games, Detroit Tigers belted Baltimore Orioles 5-1, Washington outscored New York Yankees 9-6 and Oakland Athletics stopped California Angels 4-3 in 13 innings.

Wet grounds postponed Kansas City at Minnesota and the Chicago and Milwaukee game was wiped out by cold weather.

Jim Northrup, who delivered four runs in Tuesday night's Detroit victory against the Orioles, belted in three more Wednesday night as the Tigers bumped the Birds.

Northrup, who has long played second fiddle to such Detroit stars as Al Kaline and

CARL YASTRZEMSKI

Norm Cash, is off to the best start of his eight-year major league career with 11 RBI.

While Mickey Lolich held baseball's defending champions in check with five hits, Northrup pestered the Birds with a solo home run in the first inning and run-producing doubles in the third and fifth. Lolich struck out nine Orioles, whose only score was Andy Etchebarren's third-inning homer.

Frank Howard stroked a run-scoring single with two out in the eighth inning to break a tie for Washington and the Senators' added two more in the ninth.

Washington manager Ted Williams was satisfied with the Senators' breakout of 18 safeties: "I think that's the most hits I've seen by one club in Yankee Stadium."

Sal Bando unloaded a two-run homer in the top of the 13th to give Oakland a comeback victory over California. The Athletics had tied the game at 3-3 in the ninth inning on Joe Rudi's lead-off homer off Rudy May.

Until Rudi's blast, May had given Oakland only two hits and struck out 12.

Stargell Acquiring Taste For Atlanta Deliveries

Willie Stargell, the Pittsburgh Pirates' strong boy, is acquiring a special liking for Atlanta Braves pitchers this early in the season.

Stargell whacked three more home runs and drove in five runs as the Pirates trounced the Braves 10-2 Wednesday night.

With nine homers in the young season, Stargell is one short of the major league record for April shared by Baltimore's Frank Robinson and Cincinnati's Tony Perez. Seven of the nine have come against Atlanta pitching.

Meanwhile Tom Seaver, New York's Mets' hard-throwing right-hander, set a club record of 26 consecutive scoreless innings in a 5-2 victory over Cincinnati Reds.

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis Cardinals shaded San Francisco Giants 5-3 and Los Angeles Dodgers handed San Diego Padres their eighth straight defeat, 10-2. Houston at Chicago and Philadelphia at Montreal were rained out.

Stargell's first homer Wednesday came in the first inning with one man on base and he hit a solo shot in the fourth, both off loser Jim Nash. His third homer, in the sixth, came off Tom Kelley, but he failed in his bid to become the eighth player in baseball history to hit four home runs in a nine-inning game when he struck out against Steve Barber in the seventh.

Seaver, who needed eighth-inning relief from Tug McGraw, had his scoreless streak broken in the seventh when he walked Johnny Bench with two out and Willie Smith doubled. The old club mark of 23 innings was set in 1909 by both Jerry Koosman and Jim Merritt.

Richie Allen paced the Dodgers over San Diego with a home run and two doubles and the left fielder threw out two Padres trying to score on base hits in the fifth inning.

Style Important for Stars

Montreal (CP) — Charlie Burns of Minnesota North Stars says he doesn't have grand illusions about his team upsetting Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup semi-finals, but the veteran forward does not want the West Division team to bow out without a battle.

"The important thing for us is to go out in style with our heads up," Burns said Wednesday.

"Not like Tuesday night. When you work so hard all season, why humiliate yourselves when there is no need to be humiliated."

The North Stars were bombed 7-2 by Montreal in the opening game of the series Tuesday night and face the Canadiens at the Forum tonight. Game time is 8 p.m. EST and the CBC will televise the clash from the opening faceoff.

"What we lack is confidence against the Canadiens," said Burns. "You look at them as a far better team than we are. We don't have the confidence or the cockiness we had to beat the (St. Louis) Blues.

"It's strange that we played some of our best games during the season against the old clubs. Maybe the Canadiens can't reach their best against us and that's our advantage if we can play three good periods."

"I definitely think we can win one game. Our team has improved with the addition of Murray Oliver, Doug Mohns and Ted Hampton. It's not so long ago that the Canadiens had their problems.

"Our style is close checking and waiting for opportunities. We can't let the Lemaire, Richard and the Mahovliches free wheel. We have enough problems trying to check them.

"We have a lot of players like Ted Harris, Danny Grant, Bobby Rousseau, Cesare Maniago, Gump Worsley and Jude Drouin who once belonged to Montreal. It means so much to them to play well and the rest of the North Stars feel the same way."

Maniago, the six foot, three inch, native of Trial, B.C., admits the North Stars face a high hurdle, but is not ruling out an upset.

"Nobody thought the Canadiens would beat the Bruins. But when they came back to win that second game, a lot of us saw that series as a toss-up.

"We know our team can play better than we did Tuesday and a win would give us a big lift going home for the next two games."

Maniago is scheduled to start in goals for Minnesota tonight. Worsley was in nets for the first game and was left pretty much on his own by a shaky Minnesota defence.

"I planned to alternate my goalies on a game-to-game basis anyway," said Gordon. "Gump played all right. He didn't have much help out there."

Gordon sent his team through a light skating and shooting drill Wednesday. Murray Oliver didn't participate as he took treatment for a shoulder injury suffered in the opening game.

Doug Mohns, out with a knee injury since the sixth game of the quarter-final against St. Louis, skated briefly Wednesday and may play tonight.

The Canadiens also practised and Phil Roberto, out since April 13 with a back injury, may dress tonight.

Coach Al MacNeil did not reveal his starting goalie for the second game, but it is likely that Ken Dryden will once again get the call.

Dryden has appeared in all eight Montreal playoff games so far.

Following tonight's game, the series shifts to Minnesota for games Saturday and Sunday night. A fifth game, if needed, will be played here next Tuesday.

Koroll Bothers Rangers More Than Big Guns

NEW YORK (AP) — Run, down the Chicago Black Hawks' list of scorers and Cliff Koroll, who managed 16 goals during the regular season, just doesn't make it up there with Bobby Hull, Dennis Hull, Stan Mikita, Chico Maki and Pit Martin.

But for New York Rangers, Koroll has been the most troublesome Hawk, both during the regular season and in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Hawks and Rangers clash in the third game of their National Hockey League semi-final round tonight and if Koroll keeps pestering New York, he's liable to earn himself a defensive shadow, just like Bobby Hull.

Koroll, a Denver University grad from Canora, Sask., scored the only goal in Chicago's 2-1 overtime loss in the opener of this series, and then scored the first goal and set up Dennis Hull for the second in Tuesday's 3-0 victory that evened the best-of-seven set at one game apiece.

During the regular season, the sturdy right winger had 16 goals and 34 assists for 50 points—sixth highest on the Hawks. But against the Rangers, Koroll totalled six scoring points—tops for Chicago.

"I don't know, maybe I try a little harder against the Rangers," said Koroll.

Why?

"Because of Jeff Jennings, that's why."

CLIFF KOROLL

Koroll was one of eight players on Denver's 1968 United States collegiate champions to move into professional hockey.

The others include defenceman Keith Magnuson, his Chicago team-mate; Jim Wiste of Vancouver Canucks; Tom Miller and Jim Shires, Detroit Red Wings; George Morrison, St. Louis Blues, and minor leaguers Tim Gould and Bob Dembowski.

Koroll plays on a line with Mikita, who had 24 goals and 72 points, and Dennis Hull, who had 40 goals and 66 points during the regular season. So far, the unit has accounted for all the Hawks' scoring in the two tight games against the Rangers.

Koroll detected a power-play slap shot for Chicago's only goal Sunday, scored on a scramble for the opening goal Tuesday and then fed Dennis Hull for another goal. Dennis added a best-of-seven set at one game apiece.

"The goal was a big one," said Koroll, "but I like the assist better.

"It put Dennis on the scoreboard and gave us a 2-0 lead. I've been very confident this year and when you have confidence, you can make plays."

NHL Headache Cured

NEW YORK (AP) — Pittsburgh Penguins, a financial headache for the National Hockey League all of this season, have been sold to a group of local residents for more than $7 million.

NHL president Clarence Campbell announced the sale Wednesday following two days of meetings during which the NHL's board of governors "reviewed four very attractive offers."

The bid that was finally accepted was that of a Pittsburgh group headed by Thayer R. Potter, Elmore L. Keener, A. H. Burchfield III and Peter H. Block.

"The group we selected fulfills the major requirements for success of a franchise anyplace," said Campbell. "Those are financial resources, management potential and resident ownership."

The new owners announced they would retain both general manager-coach Red Kelly and Jack Riley, the assistant general manager.

"We consider Kelly and Riley as two of our most important assets," said Potter, who will act as chief executive officer of the team.

The Pittsburgh club's financial arrangements have been handled by the NHL since last December and of the purchase price, $6 million will go to pay off debts and $1 million will be used as working capital.

"We are extremely satisfied," said Campbell, "that the Pittsburgh hockey club, which has had a tremendous growth this past season and greatly increased support by the fans, is in good hands. We are pleased that the ownership is made up 100 per cent by Pittsburgh residents."

Campbell said the Penguins' home attendance had increased about 54 per cent last season.

Habs Stay Alive

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Junior Canadiens scored two goals in the last 11 seconds of the third period Wednesday night to down St. Catharines Black Hawks 10-8 in their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A semi-final playoff series.

The win before 2,646 fans narrowed St. Catharines' lead in the eight-point series to seven points to five. The Hawks have won three and tied one in the six games played.

St. Catharines, needing only a tie to win the series and advance to the league finals against Toronto Marlboros, had erased a four-goal, third-period, deficit to tie the game 8-8 and appeared to have ended Montreal's hopes for a third consecutive Memorial Cup championship.

Montreal coach Roger Bedard had removed goalie Wayne Wood and had six attackers on the ice when Camille Lapierre scored from a goalmouth scramble with only 11 seconds to play.

Richard Martin scored his fifth goal of the game into an empty net at 19:56.

Dionne's third goal was his 20th goal in 10 playoff games so far.

Wylie Back On Job

GALT (CP) — Galt Hornets go into the Eastern Canada Allan Cup finals against Grand Falls Cataracts here Friday night with a sparkling record and former coach Bill Wylie back as bench boss.

Wylie gave up the coaching job he had held for three years to Norm Defelice this season. But Defelice, 36, recently suffered a coronary attack and has been confined to intensive care for two weeks.

Wylie coached Hornets into the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A finals in all three years he was bench boss, and has kept his hand in this year by assisting Defelice occasionally.

Wylie now takes command of a team which boasts a 43-10 record heading into the best-of-five series with the Newfoundland champions. All games will be played here with the second and third scheduled for Saturday and Monday.

Five of the six members of the OHA Senior A first all-star team were Hornets—goalie Boat Hurley, defencemen Ron Hergott, centre Vance Miller, right winger Bruce Reier and left winger Ron Smith. Defelice also was named coach of the star squad.

Galt was the highest-scoring and least scoredupon club in the OHA. Hergott, although a defenceman, won the scoring championship with 80 points in a 40-game schedule and also was selected as the league's Most Valuable Player.

Reier is the top scorer with 51 goals in 53 games and combines with Smith and Millar on a potent forward line which scored 111 goals.

NDP, PCs Back Wider Jobless Insurance Scope

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey received Conservative and New Democrat support Wednesday for his proposal to extend unemployment insurance coverage to an additional 1.2 million Canadians.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants) suggested coverage be broadened even further to include prisoners who work during their sentences at federal penitentiaries.

The Commons gave second reading—approval in principle—to a bill to extend the Unemployment Insurance Act, after spending most of the day's debate discussing a section that would bring teachers, policemen, public servants and other groups, now exempt, into the scheme.

The bill would also drop the $7,800-a-year salary ceiling which currently excludes 700,000 employees from the plan.

Before members got to the main question of the day—whether teachers should be included under the act—Mr. McCleave made his plea for the prisoners.

His suggestion that coverage be extended to prisoners who train as barbers, mechanics, tailors and other trades might be considered fantastic and absurd by some, he said.

But lack of funds probably was a major reason why prisoners returned quickly to crime, and unemployment insurance for those who had worked in prison would provide "some relief from the anxieties prisoners face when they come out into the world."

A spokesman for the solicitor-general's department said later the department is studying the possibility of unemployment insurance for prisoners, as well as workmen's compensation for those injured through their work.

Mr. McCleave, Mr. Mackasey and Grace MacInnis (NDP—Kingsway) agreed that teachers should be covered under the bill, but they got some disagreement from Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) and William Scott (PC—Victoria-Haliburton).

The issue has been controversial. Teachers' organizations have complained that teachers neither want nor need the coverage, and trustees' organizations have contended that board of education costs will be raised significantly.

Mrs. MacInnis said professional groups have always considered themselves a class apart from other working groups, but their greater strength and security were needed within the plan to allow proper benefits for everyone.

When she had been a property owner in Vancouver, she happily had paid taxes for education—and thus teachers' salaries—although she had no children.

She noted that teaching was not such a secure profession any more.

"One year ago," he said, "I think I would have resisted the proposal to put teachers within the concept of universality, but I do not do so today."

Mr. Horner and Mr. Scott said inclusion of teachers would mean an additional tax on municipal taxpayers to cover employees whose risk of losing their jobs was low.

Mr. Mackasey denied Mr. Scott's assertion that school-board budgets would have to go up by two or three per cent a year.

Unemployment insurance coverage would add .38 per cent to school-board budgets across Canada, he said.

Packaging Bill Again Attacked

OTTAWA (CP) — Representatives of Canada's grocery-makers, food processers and packagers took another swing at the government's packaging and labelling bill in the Senate banking committee Wednesday, complaining that the legislation places more controls on industries already heavily regulated.

The bill, which received unanimous approval in the Commons March 17, sets uniform labelling standards for goods sold in Canada and authorizes the cabinet to make regulations controlling labels and package sizes.

G. G. E. Steele, president of the Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada, said grocery manufacturers were concerned that new cabinet regulations on misleading or deceptive packages and labels would "become a matter for judgment by those preparing regulations rather than by the courts of the land."

As well, manufacturers wanted to be assured of mandatory consultation before any regulations were drafted against a member of their industry.

James M. Scott, president of the Packaging Association of Canada, reiterated Mr. Steele's concern that industry be consulted before any new regulations regarding packaging were drawn up.

New Nickel Mine

The Pipe development, 20 miles south west of Thompson, Manitoba, is the largest single nickel mining project in the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. current expansion program. Electric shovels with dipper capacity of eight cubic yards, and a fleet of 65-ton haulage trucks, will move 30,000 tons of ore and rock per day from the pipe pit. (CP Photo)

British Role In Euromart

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The British high commissioner to Canada said Wednesday British membership in the European Common Market will be of great benefit to Canada.

Sir Peter Hayman told the Canadian Club that England would be a much better trading partner within Europe than outside and would be a stronger economic force.

He said British membership would open Europe to Britain's worldwide connections and thus make the European community more outward-looking.

Sir Peter said Britain's pound is strong, her economy sound and pollution decreasing.

"In pollution we are miles ahead of you," he said. "Our clean air bill has virtually abolished smog from London."

End to Disease Likely

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A prize-winning scientist says researchers are on the threshold of engineering human cells "so none of the things we now call disease need exist."

Dr. Robert Good, 49, a professor of pediatrics at the University of Minnesota and 1970 winner of the Albert Lasker prize for medicine, said Wednesday that the conclusion is based on newly-evolved methods of cell manipulation.

The research has involved patients whose lymphatic systems had inborn defects for disease resistance. Good said in an interview:

"We can actually grow genetically-determined disease in a test tube," he said. "This means we will be able to study and manipulate them in standardized experiments all over the world."

Research with Dr. R. H. Park of the University of Minnesota has underscored the importance of "stem cells" in the human bone marrow for controlling the lymphoid cells which provide man with resistance to disease, Good said.

A transplant of bone-marrow stem cells at Minneapolis nearly three years ago shows that it is possible to engineer mosaic blood cells to overcome genetic deficiency in the disease-fighting mechanism, Good said.

"A baby boy, lacking the cells that carry immunity to disease and infection, was given bone marrow cells from his sister and now is completely healthy, Good reported.

"We have analysed the blood cells of the boy recently and find them to have his characteristics as well as his sister's, which means genetic materials really mesh," he said.

He said the boy's type-O blood changed into the type-O blood of his sister.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Seven Good Nags To Guard Spouse

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Nagging is not fault-finding when it benefits the nagger. I want to tell you that your encouragement about "nagging" in many of your columns during the past three years has helped me, my friends and others.

I agree that women should nag or cajole their husbands about taking care of their health. Do your women readers hesitate to nag? Then "cajole" is a good word. The Spanish word "nagga" means to "nibble."

Whether nag, cajole or nibble, let's get him to the doctor, fast. Thanking you again for your encouragement on nagging. I am yours truly, Mrs. S.

COMMENT: Your letter encourages me, Mrs. S. So does an advertisement I've just read in a national magazine published by the American Cancer Society. Perhaps you have seen it by now. It goes like this:

NAG, nag, nag, nag, nag, nag, nag.

Nag 1. For your breasts, self-examination every month.

Nag 2. For your uterus, the Pap test once a year.

Nag 3. For your lungs, don't smoke cigarettes.

Nag 4. For your skin, avoid overexposure to the sun.

Nag 5. For your colon, rectum, a proctо examination every year (especially after 40).

Nag 6. For your mouth, regular examinations.

Nag 7. For your whole precious body, a health checkup every year.

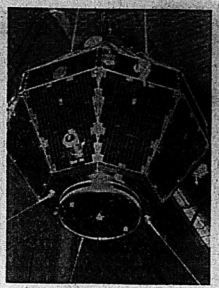
Seven nags for your own good. Bless them all. (Don't be afraid. It's what you don't know that can hurt you.) — American Cancer Society

P.S. I am happy to have such distinguished company on my side.

For Mrs. ?: I agree with your doctor that studies of blood sugar tolerance are indicated. Since you have a history of diabetes in the family and have given birth to two large babies, you should have routine examinations at least once yearly to check on your sugar metabolism.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: This may seem a trivial matter to you, but it's a large, nerve-wrecking one for me. I'm 23 and engaged to be married soon. My problem is that I am very flat-chested and thoughts of my approaching marriage fill me with anxiety.



I've been wondering about silicone injections. Are they safe? What are the results? Please don't suggest breast surgery. I have no money for that and could never explain it to my fiance. Do you know of any doctors who give these injections? Please answer this quickly. Do not use my full name. Miss S.

COMMENT: Most readers know that I never use a reader's name, whether requested to withhold it or not. Therefore, "Miss S." it shall remain.

I realize your problem is not trivial. Many women complain as you do about being flat-chested. Invariably I advise them, as I'm now telling you, that silicone injections are not an acceptable form of treatment. Results have not been good.

I recall a young woman, troubled as you are, who lost her anxiety overnight. How? She had the courage to talk about her problem with her fiance. He said he was marrying "her" and not a set of breast measurements.

It takes doing, but do you think you can do likewise? As I see it, this is the best solution to your present and future peace of mind.

Russian Paper Says China Aims To Trigger War

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist China's "conciliatory gestures" toward the United States mask an ultimate goal of becoming "the principal superpower of the world" and setting off an armed U.S.-Soviet clash, a Soviet political journal says.

In the first comment on Peking's friendly welcome to the U.S. table tennis team, the weekly Novoye Vremya—New Times—calls on China to fight imperialism "not by words, but by deeds."

The table tennis team visit, the article says, must be viewed against the background of Peking's global strategy.

"While provoking conflicts and obstructing the relaxation of international tension, the Peking leaders dream of triggering an armed clash between the two most powerful nations—the Soviet Union and the United States."

Advance excerpts from the article, due to appear Friday, were made public Wednesday by Tass, the official Soviet news agency.

Auld to Discuss Discounts' End

TORONTO (CP) — James Auld, Ontario minister of public works, said Wednesday he will meet with representatives of Canada's three major car manufacturers to discuss the discontinuance of discounts on fleet buying.

Mr. Auld and representatives from other provincial departments will meet May 12 with Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd., he said.

Other meetings will be held with General Motors of Canada Ltd. and Chrysler Canada Ltd., from whom the government also purchases vehicles.

Toronto and Railroads Agree to Swap Land

TORONTO (CP) — One of the largest obstacles facing the $1,000 million Metro Centre was removed Wednesday when city council informally agreed to a multi-million dollar land swap with Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

The agreement was worked out by officials of the railways and the city's executive committee during an earlier seven-hour meeting.

The city will hand over 12.5 acres of city-owned property, including Union Station, in return for 33 acres owned by the railways.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 23

Your birthday today: Most incidents of this year tend to bring crisp, clearcut, and immediate changes in your view of the world. This is predominantly a period of letting go of things rather than piling up more. Today's natives pursue their own chosen goals regardless of opinions and comment.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Review your efforts of the past few weeks. Make any corrections or amends needed while you still can.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Look twice before you buy, also consider how real is your need. Above all, stay within your budget.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Claims for your attention are not to be denied long. Family affairs contain subtle crisis conditions you're supposed to notice being before told.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Rising to provocation would only waste your time and effort. Where you can see humor, laugh even though it may be at your own expense.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Seasonal plans should be well in hand by now — if not, then see what you can do to settle details.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Whatever you're doing, the more discreetly you go about it the better. Sensible selection of working mates makes an essential difference.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Co-operation carries the day, and it may be a big one, with unusually fine results. Romantic interests benefit from temporary changes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Improve your immediate surroundings. The miscellaneous odds and ends you dispose of now clear a path for larger activities son.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Salvage ventures which have encountered disappointing or incomplete results. Today you have a better chance of seeing what went wrong.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Hasty decisions taken lately now rebound, particularly if you were the intolerant one.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Pursue all your interests in proper sequence, pacing your efforts while you are about it. Fresh social contact promises well.

SAVE MANY

TORONTO (CP) — A Canadian cancer detection test now being developed will save thousands of lives when it is generally used, members of the Ontario division of the Canadian Cancer Society were told. Dr. Thomas Alexander McPherson of University Hospital, Edmonton, described the test which can detect cancer of the colon in its early stages.

Tire Stud Makers Ask Ban Be Dropped

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's four manufacturers of tire studs has asked Ontario to remove its April 30 deadline for the use of studded tires, saying the ban could lead to an 11-per-cent increase in accidents.

The Canadian Tire Stud Manufacturers Institute, in a brief Wednesday to Highways Minister Charles MacNaughton, questioned the estimates of road damage on which the province based the ban.

The department of highways estimated that highway and street damage costs in southern Ontario alone would total $127 million over the next 10 years. Studded tires were blamed for wearing ruts in pavement and wearing away road markings.

The brief says the $127 million represents "the grand total of all the estimated new road and repair costs over the next nine years, some of which would probably be incurred whether or not studded tires continue to be used."

The manufacturers cite an analysis of 833 accidents conducted by the highways department during February, 1970, in which a review board determined that studded tires would probably have helped to prevent an accident or reduce its severity in 21 per cent of the cases.

The brief suggests that the province, instead of prohibiting the use of studded tires, permit their use only between October 15 and March 31, reducing the time studs are used.

Members of the institute are Canadian Shaler Products Co. Ltd., of Weston, Fagersta Limited, of Toronto, Kennametal Tools Ltd., of Hamilton, and Season Canada Ltd., of Agincourt.

Teachers Say Boards Spend on Non-essentials

TORONTO (CP) — In the past two years school boards have spent money for goods and services that teachers and communities do not believe are important, the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation told the legislature's standing committee on human resources Wednesday.

"The fat in board budgets . . . is really spending for this kind of unimportant item," the OSSTF brief said.

Pressed by Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) to name some of these unessential programs, the federation's research director, R. M. Saunders, refused. He said he could not answer for the 75 local boards and what priorities their communities set.

The brief said the teachers' ceilings on expenditures by local boards will reduce the quality of education for 40 per cent of the province's secondary school students in about a dozen school board regions.

Hardest hit will be children who vary from average, whether they are gifted, retarded, physically handicapped or emotionally disturbed, Mr. Saunders said.

The brief said the ceilings have resulted in cuts in teacher staff and courses which are "creating hardships in instructional programs."

Donald Morrow (PC—Ottawa West) said he thought statements of cuts in important programs were a "big fuss" caused by the initial panic when ceilings were announced last Oct. 13.

The federation admitted it does not want the department to give up the ceilings because "we recognize the need to control costs."

But it wants a better system of weighting students for grants.

The OSSTF says location weighting factors should be more carefully designed and separate from weighting for programs because there are different costs for the same programs in various communities.

Tim Reid (L—Scarborough East) asked the federation to be more specific about its proposals for a change in the grant system.

—In a speech to the Ontario legislature's standing committee on human resources, Dr. R. W. B. Jackson, director of the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education, said the alternative to OISE is "hand-me-down" United States' solutions and outmoded, second-rate school programs;

—Donald Deacon, MPP for York Centre, said he will ask the legislature to give the provincial auditor the right to conduct periodic checks on government spending, similar to the duties of the federal government's auditor - general;

Watchdog on Spending Sought

TORONTO (CP) — An overpriced stopwatch and the fact that he was asked to pay too much for his Christmas cards has prompted a Toronto Liberal to seek a watchdog system for Ontario government spending.

Donald Deacon, MPP for York Centre, made the proposal Wednesday to the Ontario legislature's public accounts committee.

The idea started when a track-coach friend of his received a stopwatch as part of a provincial government grant.

By accident the invoice for the watch was enclosed with it and the coach checked the invoice for $38 with the watch company's catalogue and found it actually cost $18 less. The government was later reimbursed.

Mr. Deacon said that last Christmas he was overbilled by the Queen's Printer for some personal Christmas cards. He checked the cost of the stock card with other printers and after showing the results to the printers paid an amount 40 per cent less than his original bill.

Big Smelts for Americans

The smelts caught with nets in Lake Ontario south of Brighton would be considered mammoth even when standards by Texans are applied. A few in the 600 pounds unloaded in tubs from Ernie Semple's boat yesterday measured a foot long. The king-sized variety bring local commercial fishermen more money in US markets. Three Russians Aloft To Join Space Station

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Three cosmonauts joined Russia's unmanned space station in earth orbit today, setting the stage for a dramatic linkup and possibly a boarding that could set the pace for a second decade of Soviet space exploration.

Tass news agency said the three-man crew of Soyuz 10, launched early today, Moscow time, would carry out "joint experiments" with the space station Salyut — Salute — sent into orbit Monday.

The space station is believed to be one of the biggest space vehicles ever put into orbit and has completed more than 60 orbits of the earth.

Tass made no mention of an attempt to link the two craft apart from the reference to joint experiments, but Soviet scientists have said they want to see the introduction of permanently - orbiting space laboratories staffed by crews replaced every month or so.

Consumers' Gas Buys Home Oil

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian-owned Consumers' Gas Co. of Toronto will pay at least $20 million to acquire controlling interest in Home Oil Co. Ltd. of Calgary from Home President R. A. Brown.

The announcement was made late Thursday afternoon in the House of Commons by Energy Minister J. J. Greene and confirmed here a few hours later in a joint statement issued by Mr. Brown and Consumers' chairman Oakah Jones.

It was Mr. Greene who intervened in February when Mr. Brown was reported to be considering purchase bids from Ashland Oil Co. of Kentucky.

Terms of the Consumers' agreement are more than $4 million better than those offered by Ashland, as shown in documents found by a Toronto Star Washington reporter in the files of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and made public by The Star in mid-February.

The statement here Thursday expressed pleasure that control of the biggest Canadian-owned oil producer remains in Canada.

More than 97 per cent of Consumers' 29,500 shareholders are Canadian residents.

In Calgary, Mr. Brown refused further comment, but A. H. Ross, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada, said Consumers' Gas has expressed interest in acquiring western resources for some time and its purchase of Home Oil achieved that end.

He said entry of the firm into the Western oil industry will have little immediate effect, but the company will probably contribute to increased exploration as it searches for additional supplies.

In Edmonton, Alberta Premier Harry Strom said the sale of Home Oil "seems to be a very good deal for everyone concerned."

"Anytime at all we can sell to Canadians it's very good," he said in an interview.

The Toronto statement said the agreement was to be closed today in Calgary "shortly after the annual meetings" of shareholders in Home Oil and in Cygnus Corp. Ltd., the holding company through which Mr. Brown controls Home.

Mr. Brown will remain as chief executive officer of Home Oil.

Mr. Brown and his family are to receive $17.6 million as prepayment against the purchase of 1,357,614 Class B voting shares of Cygnus, which represent approximately 30.3 per cent of the outstanding shares of that class.

Cygnus controls 1' million Class B voting shares of Home, or 43.5 per cent of the outstanding shares of that class in Home.

Purchase price for 655,230 of the shares is to be $15.03 a share, or the market price, whichever is greater, as defined on a date one year after the agreement is closed.

The Star reported Ashland's offer was $15 for a similar number of shares.

However, Consumers' purchase price for the remaining 692,384 is to be the greater of $14.45 or $11 plus half the difference between $11 and the market value on a date to be chosen by Mr. Brown within 10 years of closing.

Ashland's offer for the same block of shares was a minimum of $8 a share.

In addition, Consumers' is to receive first right-of-refusal for up to 10 years on approximately 200,000 Class A and B shares of Home Oil now owned by Mr. Brown, and lend $2.5 million to Cygnus for up to 10 years.

Consumers' was one of several Canadian companies known to have been interested in acquiring Mr. Brown's holdings in Cygnus.

Others included Northern and Central Gas Corp. of Toronto, Comp Investments Ltd. of Montreal, a private investment company owned by the Bronfman family, and Teck Corp. Ltd. of Toronto.

Laing Says Criticism Not Just

VANCOUVER (CP — Federal Works Minister Art Laing says Canadians have no right to oppose United States plans to ship oil along the Pacific Coast while doing the same thing themselves on the Atlantic Coast.

Speaking to the South Vancouver Liberal Association Thursday, Mr. Laing said his department has just completed a $17 million dock for oil tankers in the Maritimes.

"It is capable of handling vessels that will draw 60 feet of water and can pump 17,000 tons of oil an hour," he said.

"And what is more, it will take some of these tankers up to five miles to come to a full stop at sea."

Judge Lifts Ban On Mall Sleepers

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a victory over the Nixon administration and a silent, candle-light march on the White House, the Vietnam Veterans Against the War began their final day of war protest at the capital today.

The veterans planned to turn back medals they won in combat to cap their four-day campaign, a prelude to large anti-war rallies planned by other groups for the weekend.

Thursday's climax came when Judge George Hart of the U.S. district court lifted his ban against the veterans sleeping on the Mall and criticized the administration for first seeking the ban and then failing to enforce it.

Anyone Can See Own Reports

TORONTO (CP) — Any person in Ontario will be able to examine and correct information held about him by a credit reporting agency, under legislation introduced Thursday by the Ontario government.

The Consumer Credit Reporting Act is the first of its kind in Canada, Arthur Wishart, minister of financial and commercial affairs, told a news conference. It was promised last fall by A. B. R. Bert Lawrence when he held that portfolio.

It requires that all credit agencies be registered with the province.

Mr. Wishart said the bill is designed to prevent a credit agency from accumulating erroneous information gathered by careless investigators, sometimes from relatives or neighbors who have a grudge against the person being investigated.

"This is part of the great gripe, that a lot of this is on the record and is used to disparage people."

The legislation defines the sort of information credit agencies may gather and keep on file: place of employment and previous employer, family responsibility, outstanding debts, court actions for recovering money seven years back, bankruptcies for 14 years back, accounts unpaid for three months for the last six years, non-payment of taxes for the last seven years and convictions for crimes in the last seven years.

Mr. Wishart said this excludes "life-style" information such as "whether you spend your evenings in a beverage room or have an extra-marital arrangement."

The bill says any information used for credit references on Ontario residents must be stored in the province where a person has access to it.

If you suspect a store has assessed your credit risk from an agency report you may demand to be told the name and address of the agency.

Then you can go to the agency which must disclose without charge whether it has a file, show you the file and produce the reports on which it was based, whether written or oral. You may make a copy of the report.

If you feel there are errors, you may complain to a registrar of credit-reporting agencies. The bill provides that this official be appointed by the cabinet.

The registrar may order the company to change or strike out erroneous information.

If the director of the province's consumer protection bureau believes a company is contravening the proposed act, he may order an investigation complete with entry to the premises and examination of books.

Penalties for contravention are set at a maximum $25,000 for a corporation and a maximum $2,000 a year in jail or both for an individual.

Mr. Wishart said credit agencies which now have information considered improper under the act will have to wean out their files.

All credit agencies will have to be registered with the province but can appeal a refusal to the commercial registration appeal tribunal.

Mr. Wishart said the bill was not intended to cover banks, but if they are dispensing information for credit purposes it will apply.

It will not apply to the credit department of a department store because "they're not in the field of giving out credit information to other companies.

Policy Issues Expected To Bring Lively Fights

OTTAWA (CP) — Prospects are for some lively factional fights over policy issues today at the New Democratic Party leadership convention.

The five candidates to succeed retiring leader T. C. Douglas also will be doing some last-minute jockeying for votes before Saturday afternoon when about 1,000 delegates choose their new leader.

Resolutions on the status of Quebec in Confederation, foreign ownership, the status of women and unemployment are to be debated today.

The convention approved a foreign policy resolution saying the level of foreign aid to underdeveloped countries should equal one per cent of Canada's gross national product and the aid not be tied to Canadian content.

But other foreign policy resolutions ran into procedural tangles. Several resolutions to refer specific motions back to the party resolutions committee for redrafting were voted down, amid complaints from some delegates that the issues were becoming so mixed up they defied any rational decision-making.

One of the rejected motions condemned imperialism, another sought to establish a party policy towards NATO and the North American Air Defence Command, another called for shifting the bulk of Canada's defence spending into foreign aid and another would have deleted any reference to Canadian troops taking part in United Nations peacekeeping forces.

The convention cleared up a farm policy program rescheduled from Wednesday when it was passed once, then withdrawn after complaints from delegates that there had been inadequate discussion.

Although there was some argument the policy did not go far enough, delegates took only a modest amount of time to approve the resolution Thursday.

It commits an NDP government to regulate the farm machinery business, establish a public commission to control the size of farms, prevent foreign purchases of farms, establish a farmer pension plan and regulate the food processing business.

It also calls for co-ordination of truck and rail transport facilities through nationalization of the Canadian Pacific Railway and a guaranteed initial price for grain, tied to the farmer's production costs.

Broadbent to Present Resolution on Quebec

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party must adopt a policy resolution on Quebec that combines both a clear commitment to the federal system and the right of Quebecers to leave it if they so desire, Ed Broadbent said Thursday.

At a news conference during the NDP leadership convention, Mr. Broadbent said he is not satisfied with either of two resolutions on the contentious Quebec question ready to go before the convention today.

His staff was drafting a resolution that he hoped would be acceptable to the majority of delegates.

Demonstration Staged

Douglas Plans To Stay as MP

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party bade a fond farewell to Tommy Douglas Thursday night, but only as its leader — he served notice he will stay in Parliament and fight the next election.

The 66-year-old retiring leader of the NDP — the only leader the party has had since its founding 10 years ago — was cheered by 2,000 party supporters as he stood in the huge 10,000-seat Ottawa Civic Centre to receive his party's thanks.

The biggest cheer came when Mr. Douglas, standing on double steps that lifted him high over the podium, announced once again that he would run in the next election.

"If God gives me strength and if the electorate gives me votes, I'll be here fighting at the same old stand."

Votes May Switch Over Pot Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — If anything has switched votes so far at the New Democratic Party leadership convention, it would seem to be the marijuana issue.

But the switches do not appear to have been large or directed any one way.

Replying to a question from the audience, Ed Broadbent and John Harney said they favor putting marijuana on the same legal basis as alcohol. David Lewis and James Laxton were not quite so definite.

Mr. Lewis was definite the other way: Legalization of marijuana would attract to Canada the riffraff of the world, he said.

Loyalist College Brief Stresses Practicality

The goals of community colleges would be achieved more fully if their teachers were expected to enter and leave the teaching profession for extended periods.

The reason? — To "keep their knowledge of real world operations current", says the Loyalist College brief presented Friday to the commission on Post - Secondary Education in Ontario.

Ernst Koelsel, director of public relations, presented the brief, signed by Herbert Young, president of the college.

The brief admits there are "enormous complications" involving seniority, pensions and tenure in a program designed to put teachers in the working force for extended periods between teaching terms at a college.

"Failing extended interchanges, other means of keeping teachers current must be found," says the brief. "We do not feel that sabbaticals are adequate for the purpose we have in mind."

The brief notes that in the interest of economy, the college's physical plant should be used to full capacity if possible. This would imply running three semesters a year and introducing total immersion courses and concentrated instruction in some fields. Some steps have been taken in this direction at Loyalist, in accountancy for Manpower retraining students and another course for Unemployment Insurance Commission personnel.

The brief cautioned against "getting all the colleges into the same groove", and said the individual college's independence should be preserved in the interests of diversity of talents and outlook.

"Each college has its own local obligations, needs and resources, which would lead themselves ill to any strong central direction based on centralized research and development," the brief continued.

Loyalist's task is to provide post-secondary education with a highly practical job orientation, said the president in his brief.

"We feel that necessary components of even very down-to-earth job training include stress on speaking, writing and reading English, an appreciation of the past in terms of literature and history and an understanding of one's self, both as an individual and as a member of society."

To reach its goals, Loyalist has set itself to finding teachers with a combination of good academic backgrounds, good breadth of experience in the real world and the ability to teach.

Other essentials, says the brief, are courses whose graduates are in demand on the job market, relevant and interesting subject content, and good morale among the students through organization of tests, examinations, projects, lectures and assignments.

The most popular programs at the college are often those within poor prospects of employment after graduation, notes the brief.

"We can only speculate about the reasons for the changing popularity of one program or another," says the president. "Communication arts and early childhood education have become extremely popular, while other areas seem to have lost their appeal to students. We feel we cannot prescribe programs for unwilling students; we can only attempt to make those programs whose graduates are in high demand on the job market as attractive as possible."

FRANK MURRAY

Murray Re-elected

The Canadian Association of Broadcasters, an association of broadcast owners and managers who act as a watchdog for their industry, announced Wednesday that Henri Audet of CKTM-TV, Trois Rivieres, Que., will succeed W. D. McGregor of CKKW, and CKCO-TV, Kitchener, as president of the CAB board of directors for the 1971-72 season.

Frank Murray, general manager of radio station CJBQ, was re-elected to the board in the Central Canada region. Other members of the Central Canada region are Donald Hartford, CFRB, Toronto; Don Mantz, CFCF-TV, Montreal; Russ Ramsay, CJIC-TV, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. and John Radford, CFJR, Brockville.

Returned as vice - president of radio was D. M. E. Hamilton of CKLG, Vancouver, with Don Martz of CFCF-TV, Montreal, vice - president of television.

The Canadian Association of Broadcasters annual meeting is being held this week in Montreal.

Smelt Still Offshore

AMELIASBURG (Special)— Smelt, a tiny silver fish with a taste to delight any gourmet's palate are not expected to arrive in teeming millions off beaches in Lake Ontario for another week due to the backward season.

New Yorkers don't have to drool as long in the spring because local fish buyers ship king-sized species to the American market for more money. The smaller species is dropped by water around Scotch Bonnet Light in Lake Ontario south of Brighton. It's a job for a commercial fisherman with a seaworthy boat and proper equipment.

Usually the annual harvest attracts hundreds of local residents who react like prospectors racing to stake claims in a gold rush. Some oldtimers at the sport set up camp for the night making the occasion a celebration to remember until next year's run. They need no special equipment although a dip net assures success when the little smelt crowd about in huge schools.

Councillors Compare Home Heating Bills

All-electric heating for institutional buildings came in for a "plug" at Hastings county council yesterday as councillors considered the year's expenditure items for the various county departments.

Councillors at the time were considering estimates for Centennial Manor at Bancroft which is electrically heated as compared with oil heating at Hastings Manor. The estimate for the year's total electrical bill at Centennial Manor was set at $22,000 as compared to $15,000 at Hastings Manor where equipment is being changed from coal to oil.

In addition to the $15,000 fuel estimate, Hastings manor pays for electricity used in lighting and also the salaries of four stationary engineers.

Taking everything into consideration all electric heating costs at Centennial were comparable to costs at Hastings Manor, it was stated.

To overcome winter ice roof problems at Centennial Manor, homes for the aged committee members have decided that electric heating cables should be installed on the remainder of all roofs not now cabled and that additional insulation be placed in the west wing.

Since the erection of the Manor, ice buildup on the roof has caused a leaking problem.

At Hastings Manor, committee members have decided to go rid of still another reminder of their former country farm operation.

Farm property at the Manor was sold a few years ago, but some of the farm buildings were retained and it is recommended that the now unused hog pen be demolished or moved.

Also a county-owned brick residence at the front of the farm property on Highway 2 will be demolished or moved and the silo cleared.

Seminar to Probe Policeman's Lot

Relations between the police and the community will be the subject of a day-long workshop tomorrow at Loyalist College.

Sponsored by the college, the Kiwanis Club and Belleville Police Commission, the workshop will feature Professor Horace Krever QC of the faculty of law, University of Western Ontario.

Purpose of the workshop is to foster relations in the police forces with the community.

"People are confused about the role of the police," says Mark Dufour of the Kiwanis Club, general chairman for the event. "They don't see the police as one of the community's helping agencies."

Representatives have been invited to the sessions from social service agencies, health departments, police commissions, police forces and schools. Judges and police chiefs and officers will be in attendance to answer the representatives from most walks of life in the community.

Subjects to be discussed in small group sessions are: Is the law worthy of respect? parental and citizen involvement and acceptance of authority; drugs in society and the changing values of society.

Davis to Be Guest

PICTON (Staff — Ontario premier William Davis will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Prince Edward Lennox Progressive Conservative Association, May 17. The announcement was made this week by Norris Whitney, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox. Time and place of the meeting has not been confirmed although it is expected to be held in Picton.

Mr. Whitney has reportedly stated that he will reveal his plans concerning his future in politics during the annual meeting.

Two Boards Have Two Jobs

Despite the belief on the part of many county residents the Hastings County Planning Board and the Hastings County Land Division Committee are not one and the same thing.

In fact they are two entirely different bodies with completely different functions.

As the term would suggest, the Hastings County Planning Board, set up last year after months of discussion, has the responsibility of planning for the county, exclusive of Belleville and Trenton, the townships of Sidney and Thurlow, and the villages of Frankford and Stirling.

The county Land Division Committee deals with requests for land splits such as a farmer selling his farm but retaining the farm homestead for his own use.

"It is mostly requests for single land splits," commented county administrator Carl E. Bateman "plans of subdivisions still have to be approved by the Ontario Municipal Board."

But both bodies are costly to operate as it was revealed at yesterday's county council budget meeting.

Planning this year will cost $68,983, of which $60,000 will be paid to consultants Peters, Sims, Hubicki Associates Ltd. for this year's work on the county's official plan.

The new land division committee will cost an estimated $13,500.

Mr. Bateman said there was a heavy work load for the land division committee with requests for land splits mounting daily.

Parks Project Recommended

TRENTON (Staff) — The Parks Board here has filed a recommendation with town council that improvements to three municipal parks comprise the work package for which Trenton may seek a $14,000 provincial grant.

Consideration was given at Wednesday night's board meeting to various projects that comply with requirements for the new provincial-municipal employment incentive program of the department of municipal affairs.

Funds are available on a one dollar per capita basis for work to be completed by the end of June. Applications must be filed by May 1.

Clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry had urged parks board members to devise a scheme from which the town would derive the most benefit.

Decision was made that the money should be used to clean out unwanted brush and dead trees from Hanna Park, Meyer Pellon and Elmwood Acres.

County Council Passes Expanded Budget

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Increased expenditures in almost all departments will boost 1971 county taxes for most Hastings municipalities.

But due to a change in procedure resulting from the provincial government takeover last year of the assessment function, the individual townships and villages this year will have to set their own county rates in addition to levies for education and local municipal expenditures.

Spending estimates approved yesterday by county councillors at a one-day budget session will call for an expenditure of $5,714,402 as compared with an actual expenditure last year of $4,956,710.

After government grants and other revenues are deducted, the net amount to be levied against the local municipalities is $1,227,267 as compared to $1,122,094 last year.

This is an increased local levy of $105,173 or 9.4 per cent more than last year.

The new procedure adopted this year for arriving at the county levy had different effects on different municipalities.

Three of the local municipalities — Tyendinaga, Belleville and Tweed — actually will pay less in county rates this year despite the increase in expenditures.

On the other hand the remainder of the municipalities will pay increased amounts in some instances ranging up to 50 per cent more.

Two of the hardest hit municipalities are the combined townships of McLure, Wicklow and Bangor, and Tudor and Cashel, both of which had their county taxes increased by approximately 50 per cent.

The tab for Bangor et al will be increased from $12,800 to $18,254.50 or by $5,394 while Tudor-Cashel will be increased by $3,108.22 from last year's county rate of $6,684.

County Administrator Carl E. Bateman said the increases were due to the new provincial equalization factor used this year and also the county requirement for an additional $105,000 in local tax levy.

Mr. Bateman said last year's county rates were levied against a current equalized assessment of $36,150,355. This year the rate is apportioned among the municipalities on a percentage basis established by county council in September of last year.

This percentage was arrived at by giving a weight of 70 per cent to the apportionment of county rates in 1969 and a weight of 30 per cent to the provincial equalized assessment of each municipality.

The county administrator said he didn't know the details of the provincial equalization factor although he expected it was arrived at through a system of spot checks done by the assessment offices.

He said that under the new provincial assessment setup there was no longer county equalized assessments as had been the case in the past.

The administrator, in his budget report, said the county last year had a surplus of $48,344 despite an over-expenditure in the county welfare department of $27,724 (not county dollars).

The social and family services department foresees this year calls for an expenditure of $2,826,795, as compared with $2,709,802 budget of $2,252,750 add an actual expenditure of $2,480,474.

Included is an over-all Children's Aid Society budget increased from an actual expenditure last year of $413,014 to $463,645. The county's share will go up slightly from last year's costs of $249,508 because of a credit in 1970 operations the amount payable this year by Hastings will drop by $3,320 to $46,426.

This decrease is accounted for by the fact that there was a decrease in the number of children chargeable to the county.

Hastings Manor will cost $744,219 to operate this year as compared to last year's cost of $700,079. The cost of operating Centennial Manor at Bancroft will be $296,600 up from $265,535 last year.

After grants and other revenue, the net cost of Hastings Manor to the county will be $64,181 and that of Centennial Manor $50,500.

Actual welfare costs for the county (including Belleville and Trenton) this year are estimated at $1,806,790 as compared to a budget last year of $1,243,490 and an actual expenditure of $1,484,625.

The net cost of welfare to the county last year was $144,106, as compared to a budget figure of $116,280.

This year's net county welfare bill is estimated at $179,777.

Most welfare expenditures are subsidized by senior governments to the extent of 80 per cent.

General government this year is estimated to cost $689,061, up from an actual expenditure of $653,638 last year. The general govern-

Donald M. Soutter:

Complete Involvement Is 24-hour-a-day Job

Professionals in the fields of well being, health, education and recreation were told last night they were shirking their responsibilities if they restricted their community involvement to their normal work hours.

Donald M. Soutter, managing editor of The Intelligencer and a city alderman, told the professionals from the city's social service fields that solving of their day - to - day problems could be eased if "immediate goals are only a part of the total answer. Community involvement . . . can establish patterns that bring you closer to long term goals," he said.

Contending that the professional had a responsibility to mould public opinion, Mr. Soutter said: "The true professional hopes he is not going to win the war by engaging in pitched battles between nine and five. He recognizes that only by rallying out after duty, using guerrilla tactics, will he be able to assist in generating the community philosophy that is required . . . to improve the emotional, physical and mental well being of us all."

Mr. Soutter told the delegates that all too frequently "you are struggling with the casualties . . . attempting a medical specificity with isolated problems."

Inquest Set For Apr. 29

TRENTON (Staff) — April 29 has been set as the inquest date into the death of Trenton Police Constable William Houlden.

Presiding at the investigation will be Coroner Dr. David Lintern of Brighton, who determined in an autopsy that the constable's death July 29 was from natural causes.

Also on hand will be Bruce Affleck, crown attorney for Ontario County, and a five-man coroner's jury, members of which will be chosen at the coroner's discretion.

The Attorney - General's department decided that the inquest should be held only after charges arising out of the College St. altercation, following which the 29 - year - old constable died, had been disposed of.

The speaker told the social service professionals that it could be their turn to play a major role in plotting the course of society over the next decade. He said that the climate is already changing from the times when the social service employee struggled say a "necessary evil".

"Many of you have over years worked unheralded in efforts to achieve or maintain dignity for others, but before 'the pursuit of an improved quality of life' become the popular thing to do."

Mr. Soutter used taped interviews with the Hon. Bert Lawrence, minister of health, the Hon. R. T. Potter, minister without portfolio and Eric Runacres, director of education for Hastings county, to reinforce his argument that total involvement could lead to easier solutions to the daily caseload.

Closing out with a taped version of Johnny Cash's ballad Don't Take Your Guns to Town, Mr. Soutter countered the balladeer's advice by saying the professional must take his guns to town today and every night" in order to reach the goals which are in the community's best interest.

Power Squadron To Mark Tenth

TRENTON (Staff) — The RCAF Trenton Power Squadron will hold its tenth anniversary ceremonies here next month.

One of four squadrons in the Quinte area (others at Prescott, Picton and Belleville), the Trenton boating league was formed by a dozen men who took courses from Belleville's Bay of Quinte Squadron in 1960

The group began the next year to establish a power squadron's anniversary — and, to date, over 250 have taken courses at the CFB Trenton Yacht Club. Instructions are now given in piloting, seamanship, navigation, weather and marine electronics.

Two new trophies will come into use this year in mark the squadron's anniversary — the Molson Trophy for boat safety and the Meichers' Trophy for accuracy in predicted log competitions.

An anniversary banquet is slated for the CFB Yacht Club May 8, with guests attending from other area squadrons. Representatives of the Canadian Power Squadron are also expected.

Special guests are also scheduled to be arriving from Rochester, N.Y. — by water if weather permits. The American party will have to come via Picton because the Murray Canal will not be open until later in the spring.

Most budget does not include planning, which this year will cost the county $88,885.

The planning cost figure however will not reflect on county taxes to the amount indicated as there was a surplus on last year's operations and an anticipated provincial subsidy of $29,925 will reduce the net levy to $35,990, approximately the same as last year.

County roads depart m e n t costs are also up this year to $1,947,900 as compared with a budget figure last year of $1,839,500 and an actual expenditure of $1,797,615. The increase is mostly accounted for in the allocation to bridge construction and provision for payment on the new Glen Miller bridge over the Trent River.

County health unit costs are also up this year with the 1971 budget set at $503,309 as compared to last year's budget of $446,722 and an actual expenditure of $411,009. Hastings share of this year's costs will be $40,346 less a credit of $2,632 on last year's operations.

Adding to this year's general government expenditures is a $50,000 item for demolition of the old county jail which will go out of use with the opening of the new regional jail at Napanee, and renovation of the jailer's residence for office use.

Mr. Bateman said the $30,000 figure for demolition of the old jail was strictly a "ball park figure".

The budget as proposed by the county administrator was passed without changes although there was some discussion regarding the new system of appointing juries against the various municipalities.

Ald. Sidney Reeve Jack Bush objected to his township having to contribute to the costs of both the Hastings County Planning Board and the Quinte Planning Board.

In reply to both objections, the county administrator said he was carrying out policy dictated by the province.

He said no municipality could be relieved of paying its county rate.

Now on Job

The vacancy in the administrative staff of Ameliasburg township has been filled with the appointment of Brian Smith of Belleville to the position of treasurer and tax collector. He will assist clerk William Nightingale as well.

Big Brother Again!

The palaver in the United States over FBI surveillance of Congressmen and Senators, in fact just about everyone connected with Government, not to mention professional people, dissenters and goodness knows who else has spread into Canada. There is talk of RCMP dossiers on MPs and former Conservative Prime Minister John Diefenbaker is muttering darkly about the country heading for dictatorship.

Certainly citizens' privacy has worn pretty thin these days. But what has anyone to worry about really who is not furtively or actively engaged in pastimes prejudicial to the integrity of the State? We still have our basic freedoms and it would seem that unless and until the State reaches the point of embarking on Communist-style interference citizens have little to fear.

People employed in the Government service are automatically subject to security investigation and there are enough Communists running around to suggest there are dossiers on them too. But who else? Does the RCMP still maintain a file on Prime Minister Trudeau for example, harking back to his socialist days?

In any event, a dossier, file, or whatever, is only a piece of paper, or perhaps a piece of microfilm, or maybe dots in a computer system. It is a little disturbing to think that one may be under surveillance or investigation by one's fellow man, but then maybe he is being watched by some other Big Brother too. We may console ourselves with the fact that this sort of thing keeps people in jobs, while all the while the dossiers take up space in vaults — and for the most part, we suspect, gather dust. Who cares, so long as the police and the Government remember that this is a democratic society and that most of us observe democratic principles.

Strange Times

On Easter Monday The Kingston-Whig-Standard sent out members of its staff on what could be called a see-and-hear mission. What they saw and heard are reflections of our times. Little of it is encouraging.

Here are some extracts: "...Princess Street was a flowing mass of matted hair, scraping boots, profane youth pushing its way from nowhere to nowhere or sitting blase-eyed in that scruffy mini-park above Montreal Street listening to that rasping noise from little radios . . . there seemed to be that cockiness and scorn for others born of that abysmal ignorance of which they are so proud, a rejection of just about everything worthwhile. The middle-aged man in the hotel lobby must have been overhearing too, "I can't understand it. Honest to God, I can't. At 17 I cut wood in the bush with grown men to put money in my pocket. . ."

Or this, by another observer: "It's going to shock you, boss, but I never heard anyone mention Vietnam, Northern Ireland or Pakistan . . . It was hot pants, the difficulty highschool girls have in getting the Pill (said one girl: 'the pill was as far to come as pot, I wouldn't be so worried'), job security versus guaranteed wage, the trials and tribulations in walking the dog, and talk about city hall."

Well, perhaps some of the foregoing is harmless enough, but there is other aspects of our times. Speaking in Trenton recently, former Loyalist College president J. K. Bradford recalled a day 30 years or more ago when people were more concerned and he wondered if people's fibre had been eroded.

And early last year, in an interview with The Canadian Magazine's Frank Rasky, veteran comedian Tommy Hunter, then 77, said: "I don't understand this young generation. People were closer and more thoughtful 50 years ago."

Rasky was seeking some thoughts on the then departed sixties and the seventies just beginning, from some of the personalities of our day. There was Ma Murray for one, the 82-year-old publisher of the Bridge River-Lillooet News in British Columbia, who said: "People ain't got any concern for anyone but themselves. Nobody gives a damn about anyone but themselves anymore."

Happily though, we can still point to some bright spots.Two examples came recently in news from across the border — one about the 19-year-old bachelor seaman with four years service in the navy who has received court approval to adopt his nephew, aged four, his niece, 5. Their parents' marriage had broken up, then came their uncle Robert (Sturdevant) to the rescue.

The other story had to do with a U.S. sergeant in Vietnam who raised $30,000 from U.S. and allied forces to meet the skyrocketing medical expenses of a brother and sister back in the states. Their mother suffered from a kidney complaint which has already taken the lives of other members of their family.

Architect Erickson and the Modern Environment

Cities Represent Our Indifference to Man

Ottawa Journal

North Americans are seeing their cities becoming depressing instead of exciting because they have been treated carelessly.

The opinion is that of a man with a right to be heard — Arthur Charles Erickson, the widely travelled Canadian architect who this month won the $50,000 annual prize given by the Royal Bank of Canada to one Canadian of distinguished, internationally recognized achievement. In this distinction he joins such men as Wilder Penfield, C. J. Mackenzie and Cardinal Leger.

Mr. Erickson, a vivid young man of 46, talks as well as he builds. For some years now The Journal has been urging the planners of cities, and especially Ottawa, to give heed to the environment, in nature, to man's need of some space, some quiet, some enchantment. Never have we urged it so lustily as did Mr. Erickson a day or two after winning his award. Rather than paraphrase him we report him:

"In North America we have to realize that the city is everything. All that man has accomplished comes from the city. No one has ever turned up anything in the wilderness without contact with the city.

"The city is man's greatest work and in a sense his most perplexing accomplishment. If I didn't believe that I would not be a civilized man; I'd be a barbarian. I believe in civilization so I must believe in the city. The problem in North America is that we have never accepted the city. It has come by accident and default.

"Too often what cities are trying to do today is solve problems that are mere details such as the handling of traffic. Cities are reflections of our own civilization and they have always been good and bad. The good overbalances the bad aspects and this is their vitality.

"There is no ideal city. I don't believe in visionary cities. Man has always dreamed of ideal cities and when he has set out to build them the results generally have been disastrous, as in creating new capitals. You can't design a city like an act of God. It has to grow and develop, for it is no more than a reflection of its people."

"Cities represent our indifference to man. That's why Toronto isn't beautiful, for all the time people have lived there they have been indifferent to the real possibilities for enjoyment. Individuals have been concerned about where they have lived, but not the over-all situation. . .

"There are no universal solutions. The solution to an urban problem must respect the most intimate aspects of a particular place. This is the only way to create richness in our lives.

"We should build with the perception of what is unique and valuable about any place. But it is important to do this in context. In North America we have forgotten the context.

"A building is worthy only in context with its surroundings and the surroundings in context with the building. This reciprocity is absolutely fundamental."

Mr. Erickson would be an interesting guide in a walk around Ottawa. we'd like to hear him on the grossness of the new defence building that is blodgeoning its way into the heart of our city. We'd like to hear him on the paucity of really usable parks (as distinct from driveway lawns) in a city whose waterways should make it renowned for parks.

We don't accept fully his proposition that all that man has accomplished comes from the city, that no one has dreamed up anything without contact with the city. But what we have dreamed up for cities has had too much of nightmare in it and the heat and pressures ahead demand that we design cities for people rather than people for cities.

"I'll be a little late, folks."

Accidents to Children Can Be Prevented

Canada Safety Council

The year-round safety of children in the objective of a nation-wide Child Safety Week being observed from May 1 to 7 each year. This one - week awareness campaign is promoted across Canada by the Canada Safety Council.

In Canada each year, some 2,000 children under the age of 15 die from accidents and more than half a million are injured. Most of these accidents could have been prevented and should never have happened. A national summary of child fatalities has been prepared and although it is not complete, it shows major accident causes.

The population of Canada is younger than most people think. One out of every three people or more than seven million Canadians, are under the age of 15. The importance of protecting this age group can not be over-emphasized because they are Canada's greatest potential assets.

Today's children live in an increasingly complex world. An important part of their educa - tion is learning how to live safely in our modern, fast moving society. It is the responsibility of all adults to guide and protect children from the hazards that surround them.

Accidents do not just happen. A set - of circumstances which frequently with a little foresight, could have been avoided, all too often costs a child's life or results in injury.

Quebec PC Out on Limb

Montreal Gazette

The battle that is developing between Robert Stanfield and Quebec party president Fernand Alie over the origination of the Progressive Conservative party as one that Mr. Stanfield can not afford to lose. If he accepts Mr. Alie's advice to endorse the two nations theory, his party will be given the thorough trouncing in the next federal election that it richly deserves.

It is not really likely that Mr. Stanfield will allow himself to be betrayed by Quebec when he has travelled that route once already. He does face the problem, however, in keeping his Quebec wing down to earth.

While it may be true that Canada consists of two nations in the sociological sense, it does not consist of two nations in the political sense. There is no way in which it can be converted into two distinct political and constitutional entities except at great and probably fatal cost to its effectiveness under the federal system.

Mr. Alie, of course, is not the first man to say that the Quebec government alone is authorized to speak for the people of Quebec and that Quebec members of the federal Parliament are mere extensions of that voice who have no mandate to oppose the will of the Quebec government. "The government of Quebec is the true voice of the province of Quebec and the elected members in Ottawa can not ignore this fact," Mr. Alie says in his open letter to Mr. Stanfield. "They can not decently say no when Quebec says yes."

In other words, the Quebec members are emissaries of another government, another state, rather than fully responsible members of the Parliament in which they are serving and representatives of the people who elected them. What if Mr. Alie really believes this nonsense, why does he concern himself so much with the orientation of the party led by Mr. Stanfield? According to him, a Quebec Conservative MP should not say no if Premier Bourassa says yes.

English Popular Tongue

German Features

FRANKFURT — English is the favorite foreign language to be learned by West Germans, according to statistics here.

It is the first choice among school pupils, at night courses and in private language institutes.

"Over 60 per cent of our students choose English, French, Spanish and Italian in that order, come far behind," said the head of a language school in Frankfurt.

While every fourth person in west Germany has at least a rudimentary knowledge of some foreign tongue, most prefer English as the handiest means of communication abroad.

Student View of Cost Ceiling in Education

Editor,
The Intelligencer

: am a Grade 10 student in Centennial Secondary School. I am writing about a problem which affects me and half a million other students directly.

On April 22, 23,000 secondary school teachers vote as to whether they will follow a work-to-rule program or whether they go on strike.

The teachers are simply trying to demonstrate by their actions their disapproval of Premier Davis' proposed "ceilings" on education expenses. These proposals limit the amount a school board can spend per pupil on education costs. This will result in the suspension of several programs now offered in 40 per cent of our province. Hastings County will not be affected immediately by these proposals, as we have always been under this "ceiling". However, in the long run, technical and commercial subjects as well as the student-teacher ratio may be affected in our county.

(The teachers are not, as the popular misconception now has it, striking for higher wages.)

If a work-to-rule program is initiated (and it seems imminent) who will suffer? The students. Not the legislators, not the administrators, nor the teachers, but the lowest rung of the ladder, the students. A work-to-rule program will mean no after school activities for the students (such as band, athletics, or drama club), and it will mean that regulations will be scrupulously followed by the teachers (this will slow the system down greatly).

Some people (including my English teacher) have suggested that Mr. Davis has introduced these proposals purely as a political move, to appease public opinion, and ensure his re-election. They point out that, after all, it was Mr. Davis when serving as education minister, who perhaps encouraged the present high-spending attitudes of the school boards.

I must point out, in closing, that almost every student in my school agrees with our teachers in their unselfish and worthy cause.

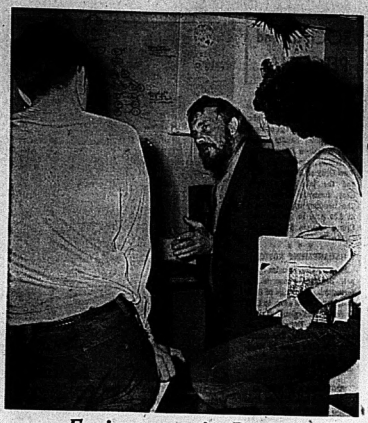
Inmates Produce A Movie

German Features



KASSEL — Inmates at a Kassel, West Germany, prison have produced a movie dealing with reintegration of ex-convicts into society.

The film is entitled "Rehabilitation", It was made by 11 prisoners at Hesse State's Wehlheiden and Cassel prisons of Munich film producer Bernd Doerrmeier, with the support of prison authorities.

One convict, who had never learned a normal vocation, and a former cook wrote the screen story. A gas-station attendant was cameraman and a mechanic was sound technician.

The movie team received permission to leave the prisons for short periods to make outside shots and conduct man - on - the-street interviews on the subject of society and the ex-convict.

The movie had its "premiere" at Wehlheiden Jail recently. If Hesse state officials now give their okay, the film may be shown in other prisons and eventually in public.

Environment in Review

Build up your knowledge, show concern and be prepared to change your life style in the fight against pollution, Moira and Centennial Secondary School students were told Wednesday by environmentalist and free lance broadcaster Jon Hopkins. Mr. Hopkins, who appears on CBC TV's program This Land, came to Belleville at the invitation of Moira student Sheila Jourard to discuss the threat to environment. He also spoke at Loyalist College.

Humane Society Service Described to Council

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward county councillors have agreed to consider animal control services provided by the Ontario Humane Society as a possible solution to the problem of dogs running at large.

Thomas Hughes, general manager of the Ontario Humane Society, Toronto, briefed councillors Tuesday concerning the cost and effectiveness of the proposed control measures. He explained that the OHS now operates 32 animal shelters in Ontario and provides services from them on a regional basis.

Through these shelters, animal control services are provided for the majority of municipalities in the province.

"The day you sign a contract with the society your problems will be over," remarked Mr. Hughes. He emphasized that animals running at large endanger the public since they can cause road accidents or possibly transmit rabies. Stray animals can also become dangerous to livestock.

The OHS representative noted that these animals often are "a general nuisance" since their owners do not control them and have no consideration for their neighbors.

He referred to "an explosion of animals in this country" and added that the old-fashioned system of employing a dog catcher to pursue speedy four - legged animals "doesn't work so well."

Mr. Hughes suggested municipal bylaws could place the onus of animal control on the owner. Animal control services for Prince Edward could be provided from the OHS shelter in Belleville, through a contract between the society and the municipalities. He said that there would be a series of services including animal control, hiring of equipment and animal wardens and humane destruction services. "Unwanted animals are better off dead," commented Mr. Hughes. Complaints of cruelty and neglect would be investigated through the program and cat control instigated.

Wardens employed by the OHS patrol by vehicle to see that all dogs are tied. A citizens' complaint system is considered inefficient in seizing strays.

The speaker observed that the OHS would pay all operating costs and insurance against liabilities which might arise. Animals taken to the shelter by wardens would be received, impounded and held for their owners. Dog licences would be sold through the OHS at no cost to the county and council would receive annual audit statements as well as monthly written reports.

In return, the contract asks Prince Edward to supply a sufficient guaranteed revenue which will meet at least half the cost of the services. The balance would be raised by the society through tag days, impoundment fees and other sources such as bequests. Unclaimed dogs are the property of the OHS and would be offered to good homes or destroyed.

A fee of $1 per capita was suggested by Mr. Hughes in estimating the cost of OHS services in the county. He said that if the entire county joined the program the cost probably would be 75 cents per capita.

Mr. Hughes observed that a new government bill specifying minimum standards for animal pounds will be in effect by May 3. This bill will make it essential for the OHS to spend approximately $200,000 for modernization of its buildings. Individual municipalities seeking to construct animal shelters could be forced to spend from $50,000 to $75,000.

"We are prepared to defray the cost among the municipalities," said Mr. Hughes.

Councillors questioned the OHS representative briefly then agreed, to discuss his brief at a later date.

Are Hounds Fair Game?

PICTON (Staff) — When does the hunter become the hunted? Thomas Hughes, a representative of the Ontario Humane Society Tuesday told Wellington reeve Douglas Marvin that a hunting dog separated from his owner is considered a stray and could be impounded. Mr. Marvin remarked that a hound chasing rabbits could be up to three miles from his master during a hunt.

Although Mr. Hughes commented, "We're very concerned about the proper disposal of hounds," he added that a dog three miles from its owner is not under control and could be picked up by a warden.

Resolution Endorsed

Prince Edward School trustees have voted to support a resolution forwarded by Wellington County Roman Catholic school board opposing any move by the federal government obligating school boards to remit the employers' contribution of the proposed teacher's unemployment insurance premium.

The resolution was based on the concept that "such a charge would increase the cost of education and thereby the taxpayers' burden."

Copies of the resolution have been sent to the minister of labor and local representatives P. R. Hales and M. Howe as well as to other school boards.

Business administrator of the Prince Edward county board of education Ernest Shortt told trustees that the board would pay one-half the amount to be remitted by the teachers or approximately $1,200 each month.

The board already contributes for employees who are not members of the teaching staff.

Trustee Everett Robinson commented "It's worth a try but I doubt if we will gain much."

Board member Douglas Caley added his support to the resolution remarking "$1,200 a month to subsidize the federal government?"

Mr. Shortt stressed the program has not yet been implemented but an act requiring teachers to remit premiums is now before parliament. Contributions also will be required from school boards.

He noted that the Prince Edward County Board of Education did not budget for this extra $1,200 a month.

The motion to support the Wellington county resolution was moved by Everett Robinson and seconded by Mr. Caley.

Pound Personnel Would Be Local

PICTON (Staff) —If county councillors decide to sign a contract for animal control services for Prince Edward through the Ontario Humane Society, animal wardens will be hired locally.

Thomas Hughes, general manager of the OHS, Toronto told Sophiasburg reeve George Foster that a local holding depot in the county also would be staffed by county residents. All animals would be held for a 24-hour period before being moved to the OHS shelter in Belleville. No dog would be released to his owner from the pound without a licence.

Mr. Hughes added that instead of impounding "the physical dog" it is taken to its owner who is invited to buy a licence and to pay a $5. ticket. "We recommend a new slant with permission to ticket owners whose animals are running at large," said Mr. Hughes.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Why do you girls always leave the bathroom in such a mess? Wet towels all over the floor and your hair curlers piled on the counter. I would be ashamed to have anyone see it."

Mother: "We always leave the bathroom neat for the next person. Hang your towels and washcloths on these low rods.and always pick up and put away things you take out of the cabinet."

Untidy teen-agers may have been drifting into their messy habits for years. Help children form habits of neatness and consideration at an early age. Four years old is not too young for a child to pick up and clean up after himself.

Home Care Program Outlined at WHA Meet

Designed to relieve the shortage of active treatment beds by co-ordinating community health agencies to facilitate early discharge from hospital and to forestall admissions, Home Care Program for Hastings and Prince Edward Counties was explained to the Women's Hospital Auxiliary at their monthly meeting by Mrs. Allison Kuglin, Nurse Administrator.

Organized by the Medical Special Services Branch of the Ontario Department of Health but directly responsible to the local Board of Health, this is one of 18 similar projects instituted since 1955 throughout the province. There are 22 more planned.

From an office at the Belleville General Hospital a staff of four, medically directed by Dr. R. Vaughan, accepts referrals from physicians of patients requiring the part time professional care of a rehabilitation therapist or a professional nurse. Services are provided regardless of ability to pay and are bought by the Program from such local agencies as the Red Cross (i.e. Homemaker and Loan Cupboard) and the VON for active nursing care. Public Health Nurses are used and volunteer societies and agencies of every description providing services such as those of the United Community Services are co-ordinated.

The decision for Home Care rests solely with the attending physician and involves his securing the understanding co-operation of the patient and the willing assistance of the patient's family. Further criteria for service is the suitability of the home environment from an emotional as well as a physical standpoint and that the patient reside within the area served. To date there have been inquiries regarding 21 cases considered unsuitable but 40 patients have qualified for this type of care and currently the active caseload is 24.

Mrs. Kuglin was introduced by Mrs. J. B. Durrant and thanked by Mrs. George Hume.

President Mrs. J. Nelles presided at the business meeting and reported on the District No. 8 conference of the Ontario Hospital Auxiliary Association which she and Mrs. A. Duffy and Mrs. E. Mac-Donald recently attended at Trenton where reports were considered and activities of district hospital auxiliaries explored. She also received a cheque from Mrs. F. Bowler on behalf of the Opportunity Shop for the month of March in the amount of $1400.

The meeting accepted the recommendation of finance committee chairman Mrs. H. W. Adams to invest $10,000 in a trust company investment certificate until required for fulfillment of auxiliary pledges to the hospital.

Volunteer Hospital Services chairman Mrs. J. B. Durrant stated that entertainment for patients on 3rd level and in the extended care unit has recently been instituted. She also reported that 1150 magazines and 626 books were distributed and that during the past month volunteers made 207 visits to patients. Mrs. Durrant also commented upon her attendance at a two-day training session of the Hospital Auxiliaries section of the Ontario Hospital Association in Toronto where current knowledges, skills and attitudes in volunteer programs were studied.

Holiday Treats chairman, Mrs. P. M. Till, thanked volunteers for assisting in the distribution of 300 plants to patients at Easter and expressed appreciation for the presence of members to a reception for hostess in anticipation of Mother's Day in May when the auxiliary greets those residents of maternity.

The 254 members, including 39 new ones, reported by 1st vice – president Mrs. B. B. Bochnek were well represented at this meeting where the tea and social hour was convened by Mrs. M. Tretina.

Astounded By Criticism

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — Mrs. George E. Tait of Toronto, national president of the Imperial Daughters of the Empire, said Thursday she is astounded that the monarchy is coming under criticism at a time when the Queen is coming to Canada.

Mrs. Tait said in an interview the IODE believes that if the parliamentary committee on the constitution is to assist in the development of constitutional reform in Canada, it should leave the monarchy question alone.

There is little evidence the monarchy system inhibits political reform and it affords a safeguard against the exercise of absolute power by any one party, she said.

The IODE has presented its views in a brief to the special joint committee of the Senate and House of Commons on the constitution.

Mrs. Tait is conducting the first tour of British Columbia by an IODE president.

Pepsi-Cola needs a partner to keep Canada beautiful:
You.

For a cleaner, more beautiful Canada Pepsi-Cola is doing its part. Here's the simple 1-2-3 way you can do your part — and save money on Pepsi-Cola, too.

1. Save the carrying carton. This not only gives you a convenient way to return your bottles, but it also reduces litter.
2. Please rinse out your Pepsi-Cola empties before returning the bottles. (In fact, do this with all soft drink returnables.) Naturally, these bottles are made completely sanitary at the Pepsi-Cola plant before refilling. But a simple rinsing before returning, however, is an extra little clean-up step your storekeeper will greatly appreciate while he stores bottles prior to our pickup.
3. Save money by returning bottles to your favorite store for your refund.

Another beautiful Pepsi-Cola idea!

The Most Relaxed Hostess Makes Preparations in Advance

By DORIS CLARK

One mother of six puts on a party for the kids at the drop of a hat. She says the most relaxed hostess is the one who leaves as little as possible to be done at the last minute.

She has a deep freeze and this simplifies preparation problems. She makes room for baked goodies which she can whip together weeks ahead of the shindig. Everybody helps.

Your hospitality is one of the best things you can give to those you like. When you open your home to your friends or your children's friends, you are giving them not only a good time—but also something of yourself.

* * *

Dear Doris: Please send me the poem which includes "not by eastern windows only, when daylight comes, comes in the light." — If you get it, I remember a speech of Winston Churchill's during World War II which he finished off with that verse.

That was good advice about throwing an informal party once in a while. Most of us worry too much about keeping up with the neighbors and are afraid to share what we have.

Let's loosen up a bit and enjoy life! — An Old Fan

Dear Fan: We found the poem. The quotation came from the fourth verse of "Say Not the Struggle Naught Availeth."

About easy-going parties — we could have a good many more celebrations if we didn't worry about everything being perfect. Who looks at the dust on the piano when good fellows get together?

* * *

Dear Doris: My parents will be having their 40th wedding anniversary this spring. My brother and I (he is 20 and I am 15) would like to honor them in some way, but we do not know how to go about it. How do you plan an anniversary party? — Not Very Rich.

Dear Not Very: Well, my leaflet on Twenty-Fifth's is on its way. But you can take your pick of whether you want to take them to a super restaurant for dinner or have their freinds in for an open house.

The meal out may take more of that money you haven't got especially if you throw in a corsage for Mother and a boutonniere for Pop. And when you consider that Aunt Tessie would help with sandwiches if you had a do at home!

Don't flinch when it comes to enlisting help from the relatives. Everybody wants to be in on the fun. You and Big Brother are not to take it on.

* * *

Confidential to Just a Sofie: Unless you lay down a few rules, you may hear the old boomerang, later: "Mother, I do wish you hadn't been so lenient with me. I should never have been allowed to hang around with that gang and stay out all hours of the night."

Shrimp Casserole Serves Six

By MARY MOORE

NOTE: In response to my request for the recipe for a Hard-Cooked Egg and Shrimp Casserole for Mrs. J. O'B., I received several letters from readers giving it. Last week I gave her Deviled Egg and Shrimp Casarole from Freda F. which we liked when we tested it. Since then I have tested three more for Mrs. J. O'B. and what follows is the one of our choice.!

Mrs. J. O'B. did not mention economy. She simply asked for this Lenten dish. I do not consider it economical but it does serve six. It makes an excellent buffet item for any time of the year.

HARD-COOKED EGG AND SHRIMP CASSEROLE

(Serves 6)

8 hard-cooked eggs cut in halves lengthwise
3 cups scrubbed, sliced small mushrooms
Two 10-oz. cans fresh frozen shrimp soup thawed
Two 8-oz. cans shrimp (4½ 1½ cups of fresh bread or, drained weight) crumbs

Dinner Menu

FRIDAY

SUNDAY

Roast of Lamb; Mint Sauce; Savory Rice; Brussels Sprouts; Dilled Cucumbers (see Tuesday); Chocolate Souffles (see Thursday); Coffee.

If desired you may devil the eggs but we did not consider this to be an advantage.

Arrange the hard - cooked egg halves, cut side up, in bottom of large shallow baking dish. Cover with layer of mushrooms. Pick canned shrimps including their liquid evenly over the mushrooms. Spoon the thawed shrimp soup over all and smooth the top. Sprinkle evenly with crumbs and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 20 min. Do not overcook this or cook it at a higher temperature or the egg whites will become rubbery. The fresh mushrooms are a delicious ingredient. Do not be tempted to use canned. If when baking time is up, crumbs are not brown, pass them under preheated broiler for about a minute to tinge them with gold.

I feel that this dish will please our hostesses and that it is worth all of the time I spent testing it.

Weight Watcher Gives Interesting Test

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wonder how many people realize that those of us who eat too much have a good deal in common with those who drink too much. This fact struck home with stunning force when I read your column "A Self-Test For Alcoholism."

I have rewritten a test with appropriate alterations — substituting food for booze. Like the original test, anyone who answers "Yes" to six out of eight questions is in trouble:

1. Do you resent it when a person suggests that perhaps you eat too much?

2. Do you try to get extra food at a social affair — more than the other guests are getting?

3. Do you ever help yourself to a piece of pie or cake, between breakfast and lunch as a "picker-upper" for extra energy?

4. Do you ever have a snack just before leaving to go to a party where you knew food would be served?

5. Do you envy people who can eat second helpings of everything plus rich desserts and chunks of butter on hot breads without gaining an ounce?

6. Has overeating created a problem between you and your spouse?

7. Do you make excuses for overeating and blame it on your thyroid or abnormal body requirements?

8. Despite existing evidence, do you keep insisting that you can go on a strict diet, and stay on it, any time you feel like it?

There it is, Annie. Interesting, isn't it — MIDWEST WEIGHT-WATCHER.

DEAR MID: It certainly is, but even more interesting is the fact that at least a dozen readers recognized the similarities between compulsive eating and compulsive drinking and drew up similar tests. Thanks to all of you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm writing about my mother-in-law, but, please don't toss this letter aside yet. I love my mother-in-law — even more than I loved my own mother. I want to help her.

The poor woman has been suffering with the menopause for three years. It has made her nervous and depressed. She is really a sick person.

My husband says menopause is natural and there is no reason for a woman to get sick from it. According to him, it's all in her head. He ridicules her when she gets a hot flash, which, of course, makes her feel worse.

I am in my late 30's. In a few years I will be going through the change. It frightens me to think that one day I may need my husband's understanding and not get it. Can you set him straight? I can't get through to him. — SHAKY.

DEAR SHAKY: The menopause does not affect all women in the same way. Some sail through it with nary a symptom. Others have a miserable time. It's not "all in their heads." The menopause produces definite chemical changes which affect not only the body but sometimes the personality.

Medical science has made great strides in this field these past several years. Some highly effective drugs have been developed to help women through the menopause. I hope your mother-in-law is under a physician's care.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"I'd better not dream about you and that blonde husky again tonight!"

Candidates Flood Ontario Liberals

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Liberal party faces a rare dilemma: a bonanza of candidates anxious to win a Liberal seat in the next provincial election.

In the past elections, the Liberals have had difficulty finding enough candidates to run for the 117 seats in the Ontario legislature.

With an election looming this year, the party so far has had bids from more than 200 persons who want to be candidates. About 40 candidates have been nominated so far.

"The reason we're getting a lot of people to run is because for the first time in three decades, they believe the Liberals can win," says F. D. (Don) Rosebrugh, the party's election campaign manager.

"And what is even more significant, they believe they will not only win a seat but also be part of a new government."

He credits this attitude to four main factors:

—Robert Nixon's maturity as party leader.

—A new confidence within the party in Mr. Nixon's leadership.

—The change in the leadership of the Progressive Conservative and New Democratic parties, and —The favorable public reaction to the federal Liberal party's handling of the recent Quebec crisis.

"It's really a whole new ball game in Ontario politics," Mr. Rosebrugh said. He said the party has also been encouraged by recent polls which he said show the Liberals neck-and-neck with the Tories in popularity.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 52 and I look and feel healthy with one exception. Lately, I have developed trouble in one of my hands. There is a burning sensation and the fingers tingle and feel numb. This occurs especially at night and the first part of the day. The pain has also been extending up into my arm and shoulder.

A few weeks ago I had X-rays of my upper spine and shoulder. Everything was all right. But my hand trouble is beginning to get me down. What do you advise? — Mrs. W.

• • •

COMMENT: Ask for consultation with an orthopedist (bone specialist). Occasionally symptoms like yours are caused by pressure on a large nerve as it passes through the "tunnel" of bones and ligaments in the wrist. It produces what we call the carpal-tunnel syndrome. Sometimes the pain is referred up the arm and into the shoulder, too.

The tingling, numbness and pain you describe are certainly nagging, stubborn complaints. I think it's time to find the real cause. (I can only guess.)

Let's suppose the trouble is in the wrist. Your doctor will make the diagnosis either by special electrical tests, or by exaggerating your symptoms when you are asked to keep your wrist flexed for awhile. In fact, the reason why some patients like yourself feel worse at night is because they sleep with flexed wrists producing unnatural pressure on the median nerve as it passes through the wrist. Some patients are relieved by wearing a splint at night.

• • •

More women than men have the carpal - tunnel syndrome in about the ratio of three to one. It is more common at or near the menopause. Sometimes it occurs in the latter months of pregnancy. In some cases diabetes accompanies the syndrome. There may be other reasons. So you can understand, Mrs. W., why I suggest you visit a bone specialist — and perhaps an internist as well.

As for treatment, this will depend upon the underlying cause. As I said, splinting sometimes helps — temporarily. So does injecting cortisone or using other medication. However, if nothing else seems to help, then operation to relieve pressure on the median nerve in the wrist is the treatment of choice.

What are the chances for improvement? According to Dr. George S. Phalen of the Cleveland Clinic, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association of May 25, 1970, "I am convinced that few operations indeed are as successful and rewarding both to the patient and to the surgeon as the operation for carpal - tunnel syndrome."

You might endanger lives— simply by digging a hole.

This mother can't reach the doctor because a contractor cut a telephone cable. So her child could die.

But if the contractor had called us, we would have told him, at once and without charge, how to avoid this tragedy.

All it takes is one call to "Repair Service". Our people there know the locations of all our underground telephone cables—whether they are buried along streets or highways, under private yards or vacant lots.

As you know, we are burying more and more cables; it improves the appearance of our cities, and it also reduces damage by natural causes to our cables—that is, to your communications lifelines.

So, please remember to call Repair Service before you start any excavation at all. One phone call is no trouble—but it can avoid a lot of it.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, APRIL 28, 1972

Chicago Black Hawks' forward Cliff Koroll (20) shoots puck at the New York Ranger cage in first period of Thursday night's game at New York's Madison Square Garden. But puck was wide, and goalie Ed Giacomin (1) didn't even have to stop it. (AP Wirephoto)

Early Goals Pay Rangers

NEW YORK (CP) — The quote is getting a little grey around the temples, just like Ed Giacomin, but it served to explain how New York Rangers defeated Chicago Black Hawks 4-1 Thursday night in a National Hockey League Stanley Cup semi-final series.

"It helps to get an early goal or two," Giacomin said after the Rangers took a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Giacomin, Vezina Trophy winner during the regular season, had a relatively easy night of it as the Rangers scored three goals in the first period and outplayed Chicago throughout the game.

Vic Hadfield, Jean Ratelle and the other Ranger forwards controlled the play, outshooting Chicago 32-17 and taking some of the pressure off the 31-year-old Giacomin, who was the big man for the Rangers during the season and in the cup quarter-finals against Toronto Maple Leafs and in New York's first-game 3-1 victory over Chicago.

Hadfield scored three goals and Ratelle assisted on all four Ranger goals to break a club record for assists in a playoff game.

Rod Gilbert scored the other Ranger goal with Stan Mikita scoring for Chicago. The next game in the series will be played in New York Sunday afternoon.

"Several games we didn't score any goals," Giacomin said of the Rangers, refereeing to the low-scoring performances of the team in cup play so far.

"For a while, it looked like we didn't have any lines out there," the Sudbury, Ont., native said. "You can't play strictly defence without putting the puck in the net."

Gilbert, who scored his 16th playoff goal of his career to tie a club mark held by Frank Boucher, added: "The team that gets the first goal has a definite advantage. Whenever you score in the first period you get added momentum."

Hadfield opened the scoring at 3:53 of the first period, Mikita countered for Chicago at 5:16. Gilbert scored at 13:37 with Hadfield closing out the period with a goal at 15:50. The second period was scoreless and Hadfield got his third goal at 16:09 of the third period.

After Hadfield's third goal, some of the 17,250 fans at Madison Square Garden showered the ice with hats honoring Hadfield's three-goal night.

ED GIACOMIN

"I'm not a hat wearer," said Hadfield, a 30-year-old Oakville, Ont., native who has been with the Rangers since the 1961-62 season. "But they can throw them down at me at every game."

Hadfield said he didn't really think about going after three goals after he had put two past Chicago goalie Tony Esposito, but "it's certainly the thrill of my career."

"As a matter of fact I had a kind of lousy feeling before the game," he said, adding that the Rangers knew they would have a tough game against the Black Hawks.

With his four assists, Ratelle broke a club record that goes back to 1940, when Phil Watson had three assists in a playoff game.Don (Bones) Raleigh had the same number in 1950.

Fergy in Snit After 6-3 Loss

MONTREAL (CP) — Most of the Montreal Canadiens trooped off the ice muttering to themselves Thursday after their 6-3 loss to Minnesota North Stars, which evened their best-of seven Stanley Cup semi-final series at 1-1.

John Ferguson had preceded his team-mates to the dressing room, 24 seconds before the final siren wailed. The native of Vancouver, B.C. was angry.

Throughout the third period, Montreal coach Al MacNeil kept the 32-year-old left winger on the bench and used Bobby Sheehan. Ferguson banged his stick on the boards each time his shift came up.

A couple of times he turned around and snarled something at the Montreal coach and then, after the North Stars scored their sixth goal at 19:36, he stormed off the Montreal bench and into the dressing room.

On his way to the dressing room, he smashed his stick, rammed his fist into the stick rack and once he entered the room, stomped around for a few minutes before the door was finally closed by ushers.

Finally, when reporters entered the Montreal room, Ferguson and several other Montreal players were nowhere to be seen.

"I have no comment to make on benching Ferguson," said Montreal coach MacNeil. "I set up three lines I thought were going to pull us through. If I think a guy is going, I'll put him out.

"I have got to do things the way I feel they should be done."

The Ferguson incident overshadowed a fine display by the North Stars, who jumped into a 4-0 first-period lead and were in front 5-2 after the second.

Their victory was the first playoff victory for an expansion club over an established National Hockey League team after 17 straight losses in four years.

Jean-Paul Parise got the North Stars on their way with a power-play goal at 5:14 of the first period with Ferguson off for tripping.

Jude Drouin, Ted Hampson and Lou Nanne scored before the period ended and Minnesota was on its way.

Peter Mahovlich snapped Montreal out of its lethargy with his third playoff goal at 6:17 of the middle period and the Canadiens started to carry the play to Minnesota.

Guy Lapointe's goal at 16:41 made it 4-2, but Murray Oliver scored for the visitors just over a minute later to take some of the drive out of the Canadiens.

Jean Beliveau pulled Montreal to within two goals of Minnesota at 4:59 of the final period which Minnesota netminder Cesare Maniago protested.

Beliveau Climbing

Jean Beliveau moved past Chicago's Bobby Hull and to within two points of team-mate Frank Mahovlich in the Stanley Cup's individual scoring race despite Montreal Canadiens' 6-3 loss to Minnesota North Stars Thursday night.

The veteran Montreal centre picked up his third goal of the playoffs for 11 points, two fewer than Mahovlich who failed to hit the scoreboard. Mahovlich, with eight goals and five assists, is the leader.

Habs Gave Bucyk Ulcer

BOSTON (AP) — Johnny Bucyk, the Boston Bruins' 36-year-old forward who scored 51 goals and collected 63 assists during the 1970-71 National Hockey League season, hoped to be discharged today from Massachusetts General Hospital.

Bucyk, who complained of abdominal pains after the Bruins were eliminated by Montreal from the playoffs Sunday, was taken in a police cruiser to the hospital from his home Tuesday.

X-rays were unable to locate the ailment, and tests for a possible ulcer have been taken.

Bruins Deny Million-Orr

BOSTON (AP) — Few people doubt that defenceman Bobby Orr soon will become the highest paid player in National Hockey League history, but the Boston Bruins claim any report of his signing is premature.

In a story by D. Leo Monahan, The Record American says that it has learned that Orr signed a five-year contract for $1 million "several weeks ago."

The Bruins promptly denied the report, claiming that the story was based on "rumor."

The agreement, the newspaper said, was reached after several months of talks between Orr's lawyer, R. Alan Eagleson of Toronto, and the Bruin's top executives.

Eagleson was reported vacationing in Europe and Orr in Florida, neither available for comment.

Orr, then 18, was signed to a rich contract out of the amateur ranks in 1966, and became an immediate sensation. He signed a second contract for three years, the agreement expiring June 1.

The young star's contract is said to contain many complex clauses, involving everything for deferred payments, for tax purposes. Orr is involved in many private business enterprises and Eagleson has said he probably will be a millionaire by the time he is 25.

Orr led the NHL in scoring with 120 points in the 1969-70 season, leading the Bruins to the Stanley Cup.

He scored 139 points, smashing every record for a defenceman, but had to settle for runnerup honors as teammate Phil Esposito set a league high of 152.

Meanwhile, the Braves are back in Boston—in the American Hockey League.

The new team announced Friday the choice of its nickname, made popular in baseball when the city was represented in the National League. The ball club moved to Milwaukee in 1952, then to Atlanta in 1965.

The AHL's newest entry, owned and operated by the Bruins, said the name was chosen from more than 100 suggested.

The hockey Braves will be coached by former Bruin Bep Guidolin, wear cardinal, black and white uniforms and play most home games on Tuesday nights at Boston Garden in the 1971-72 season.

With the Bruins sold out at home for every National Hockey League game, the Braves figure to do a brisk business at the gate.

Ontario's streams are bound to see more elbow rubbing than fish catching Saturday when the trout season opens in most of the province.

Because of the size of the province and variations in fishing regulations, anglers have been asked by the department to consult local offices for specific advice.

Openings for other fish also vary. Bass is generally June 19 or June 26 and pickerel anywhere from May 1 to May 15.

CAPE TOWN (AP) — Premier John Vorster announced Thursday a slight relaxing of South Africa's color bar in sports.

Vorster told parliament that ranked competitors would be able to take part in international tennis, track and field, swimming and all Olympic sports in the country regardless of race or color.

Domestic sports on the national, provincial club level will continue to be segregated, Vorster said.

South Africa has been kicked out of the Olympic movement and a variety of international sports because of apartheid.

Stargell Still Pounds Braves

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After giving up eight home runs in six games, Atlanta Braves have finally learned how to pitch to Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh Pirates.

Very carefully.

The Pittsburgh fence-wrecker continued his siege on Atlanta Thursday night, ripping his 10th homer of the young season to tie a major league record for circuit smashes in April. The Pirates won 7-4.

Stargell, himself, wasn't overly impressed.

"I'm not even going to let myself think of records," said the bull-strong leftfielder.

"What happens when I break a record, other than it goes into the record book? Do they make a statue of me?"

Stargell's fourth-inning clout carried over the centre field fence—more than 460 feet away.

St. Louis Cardinals beat Philadelphia Phillies 5-2 and Houston Astros topped Chicago Cubs 5-1 in Thursday's only other National League games. In a light American League card, Chicago White Sox downed Milwaukee Brewers 4-2 and Oakland Athletics drubbed California Angels 7-3.

"I've hit longer drives," said Stargell after joining Baltimore's Frank Robinson and Cincinnati's Tony Perez in the record books. Robinson hit 10 homers in April of 1969, and Perez, last year.

Team-mate Richie Hebner appears to be more excited about Stargell's hitting than Stargell.

"Stargell's homers mean we're winning . . . and that's important," said Pittsburgh's third baseman, who also helped out things Thursday night with three RBI on two triples and a single.

Pittsburgh broke it open early, scoring six runs in the first four innings. Steve Blass pitched seven strong innings, but needed eighth inning relief help from Dave Giusti after three straight Atlanta singles.

Left-hander Steve Carlton, off to his best year ever, handcuffed Philadelphia on six hits to give St. Louis its third straight victory.

Carlton gave up single runs in the seventh, when the Phillies scored on only one hit and in the ninth, when the Phils reached him for three straight singles.

Larry Dierker pitched a five-hitter and Bob Watson crashed a two-run homer against a stiff wind in the sixth inning for Houston. Dierker took a three-hit shutout into the ninth, but the Cubs broke through for their only run on Glenn Beckert's double, a walk, Ron Santo's single and Joe Pepitone's sacrifice fly.

Carlos May drilled a three-run homer in the eighth inning to bring Chicago White Sox their victory. Milwaukee had just taken a 2-1 lead in the seventh inning, with Mike Hegan scoring on Dave May's sacrifice fly.

Vida Blue pitched a five-hitter, winning his fourth game of the season, as Oakland beat California and completed a sweep of their three-game series. Blue struck out eight and had a comparatively easy time of it after the Athletics scored five runs in the fifth inning against Andy Messersmith.

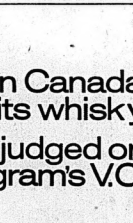
Will Ali Use Ladder?

HOUSTON (AP) — Muhammad Ali was prepared to sign for $1 million but Wilt Chamberlain's demand for a $500,000 tax-free guarantee cancelled Thursday's contract signings for a 12-round match between the former heavyweight boxing champion and the basketball great.



Even before the blowup, boxing and basketball officials had said the match originally conceived as a title bout would make a joke of boxing or basketball or both.

Walter Kennedy, National Basketball Association commissioner, also said NBA club contracts prohibit players from participating in boxing or wrestling.

Jack O'Connell, the Astrodome executive who had been working on the fight since January, said there was a 50-50 chance the unexpected complications for a July 26 match still can be worked out.

All appeared on schedule for the Thursday news conference and talked freely about contract details while waiting for the arrival of the seven-foot-two Chamberlain, who has never even had an amateur fight. Chamberlain never arrived.

The news conference went into recess and, an hour later, O'Connell, obviously shaken, appeared and said, "We do not have a fight to announce."

Kinsmen Junior Baseballers Plan First Rate Product

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Officials of the Belleville Kinsmen Junior Baseball team plan on touching all the bases in an effort to put a first - rate product before the local fans.

The junior baseballers have assured the sponsorship of the Belleville Kinsmen Club for the second year in a row and will be competing in an eight-team Eastern Ontario Intermediate League.

Murray "Moe" Hunter will handle the duties of field manager this season. The senior baseball veteran looked after the managing duties for the Kinsmen in their inaugural year.

Aiding the manager with the on-the-field duties will be Russ Soule and former Joyces Seniors hurler Joe Hasslams, who will serve as coaches.

Last year's Belleville Minor Baseball Association president Garth Bradshaw will assume the position of club president with Don Thomas as vice - president and Cy Bochnek as secretary - treasurer. Les Williams, who was active in the Oshawa baseball scene for the past few seasons will be in charge of public relations.

One of the prime jobs of the executive will be to attract fans to the 14 home games to be played at the Belleville Fairgrounds with most of them falling on Wednesday nights. The group is currently working on a number of promotional ideas.

The team hopes to have the right - handed pitching tandem of Garnet Adams and Terry "Midge" McTague available for mound duty again this season, possibly bolstered by the addition of midget all - star Stan Brooks.

The team will lose only about four players from last year's team because of age qualifications and hope to balance this by the return of hard - hitting catcher Paul Hall who missed virtually all of last year with a broken hand, and a number of graduates from the midget all-stars.

"Last year we had players involved with softball, South Hastings League baseball, minor ball and a number of other things", noted Hunter. "If they plan to play for us this season they're going to have to put junior baseball first."

Certainly the Kinsmen won't lack for competition in their Eastern Ontario league schedule. The Kingston senior baseball team will be one of the entries after dropping out of the regular season picture last year. The seniors will take advantage of the regular season play as preparation for the OBA playdowns.

Intermediate entries will come from Kendall, Oshawa, Port Hope and Bowmanville, while Oshawa and Kingston will provide the Kinsmen with junior competition.

Only Belleville and Kilgston will be eligible to play off at the season's end to decide the OBA junior representatives.

The Kinsmen will hold their first open practice of the season at Parkdale Saturday at 1 p.m. Following another workout session Sunday at 11 a.m. their first regular season game will be played May 26, when they are at home to the Kendall intermediates.

Contented Kinsmen

Members of the Belleville Kinsmen Junior baseball team seem to be pretty happy about prospects for the upcoming season. The Kinsmen will be competing in an eight-team Eastern Ontario Intermediate league before meeting the Kingston Juniors for the right to enter the OBA playdowns. Standing are president Garth Bradshaw and vice-president Don Thomas behind coach Russ Soule and manager Murray "Moe" Hunter.

'Mr. Baseball' Honored

By GEORGE CARVER

Jack Carson, Eastern Ontario's "Mr. Baseball" has been singularly honored by the Province of Ontario.

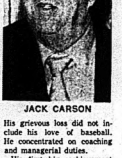
The "Ole Redhead" will be a special guest at a banquet given by the Ontario Sports Achievements Awards Committee on Tuesday, May 4th at Queen's Park.

There he will be presented with a scroll and pin for outstanding achievements in Ontario baseball by the Hon. William Davis, Premier of Ontario.

Carson, 51, is the only double amputee in Canadian sports history to receive provincial recognition. In addition he has been nominated for similar honors by a Federal Sports Commission.

Jack, who, a friend quips "has never trumped a partner's ace at bridge" has also aspirined many an income tax headache", lives at 310 Dundas Street West where he is almost a legend in Ontario baseball circles.

The story of Jack Carson's rise from a starry young third baseman to the top echelons of baseball administration, has a Horatio Alger touch.



Following his emergence from a terrible railroad accident that cost him the use of his legs, he proved himself a man of courage and determination.

Four years later at the age of 27 he piloted a club to the OBA provincial intermediate championship.

The diamond proved the young redhead's best friend. He and a younger brother "Mack the Red" haunted playing fields, mingled with older players.

His first big moment came when he was named to the Kiwanis Junior Baseball Club, from there he rose to intermediate and senior playing ranks. At 23 he was a star.

Then came the accident that almost cost him his life.

JACK CARSON

His grievous loss did not include his love of baseball. He concentrated on coaching and managerial duties.

His first big achievement was piloting the Lasta Baseball Club to the OBA intermediate finals.

He managed the Belleville Batas senior club for four years taking them to the OBA championship finals in 1954. Hurricane Hazel caused the deciding game to be cancelled and the Batas and Oakville Oaks were named co-champions.

Now in interim his baseball "know-how" had not gone unnoticed. In 1952 he was named to the OBA exeqtive a post he held until 1960 when he was elected president. He held the "throne" for two years and in 1963 was made a life member of the senior organization.

But baseball's "old soldiers" never die, nor as in Jack's case do they "fade away".

A year or so later, feeling there was a need for an Eastern Ontario organization, Carson consulted top baseball men of the area. From this parley emerged the new Eastern Ontario Baseball Association.

He held the presidency of the new body for two years and helped it grow in proportions that rated it pair with the Western Counties body, then the second largest baseball organization in the province.

When Jack retired the EOBA embraced some 53 teams of all categories.

Baseball men of the province agree the provincial honor is befitting a man, who despite a tremendous physical handicap, has made such a notable contribution to baseball in Ontario.

Here's where a little thinking can save you a backache... weeks from now.

There are two basic ways to fertilize a lawn. The standard heavy-weight, short-term method, or the long-term Lawn Green method.

Lawn Green contains a balanced formula with special UF nitrogen that releases slowly into your grass. That way it keeps on feeding your lawn for weeks after initial application. You get a greener, better nourished lawn, and you get to spend more sunny afternoons with a caddy cart than your fertilizer spreader.

Another thing to remember is that 22 lbs. of concentrated Lawn Green equals 40-50 lbs. of conventional fertilizer. And one 22 lb. bag of Lawn Green covers a full 5000 square feet. So Lawn Green makes light work of things.

It's your summer. Enjoy it.

LAWN AND PLANT CARE

Why a lightweight fertilizer?

If you were to put a "pure" fertilizer on your plants or grass, it would burn them badly. So all dry fertilizers are thinned out with a carrier or "extender". The choice of thinner is pretty important.

Sand vs. vermiculite

Sand is cheap. And it is used in many heavyweight fertilizers to provide bulk—at about 80 lbs. per bag. If you have the muscles for it, fine. On the other hand, fillers such as vermiculite do the same job (or better) at 20-25 lbs. a bag.

Easier to spread

In fact, most lightweight fertilizers are highly concentrated, with analyses like 20-10-5, and contain up to three times more nutrient than ordinary heavyweights. The reason is that lightweight fertilizers are easier to spread over larger areas.

Buy coverage

It's all very simple. Weight is not a good yardstick to use when buying fertilizers. Instead, go by convenience and the "coverage area" of the fertilizer.

Buy results, not dead weight.

For Flower Beds

After transplanting annuals, wait 2 weeks until they become well established. How to remove any weeds, then treat with Granular Weed Preventer containing Trifluralin.

Restrictive Investment Rules Said Curbing Mining in Yukon

OTTAWA (CP) — Restrictive investment provisions and higher royalties in a proposed new mining act for the Yukon already are scaring off capital, the Commons was told Thursday.

Gordon Ritchie (PC—Dauphin) said it may be time to give the Yukon and the neighboring Mackenzie District of the Northwest Territories provincial status.

As provinces, they would control their own resources—a wealth of mineral ores in the Yukon and oil and gas potential in the Mackenzie District.

Under debate was the government's Yukon minerals bill, which would supplant the Yukon Quartz Act and impose new rules and higher royalties. Among the rules would be a provision for 50-per-cent Canadian ownership of future mining developments in the Yukon.

A motion by Erik Nielsen (PC —Yukon) to kill the bill was defeated 82 to 51. The 77 Liberals present drew support from the New Democrats, while seven Creditistes voted with 44 Conservatives.

Standing in the 364-seat Commons: Liberal 150, PC 72, NDP 3, Creditiste 13, Independent 1, vacant 5.

After second reading, possibly today, the bill will be referred to the Commons northern development committee for detailed study.

The other Commons development Thursday:

—Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer again refused assurance that telephone calls by MPs aren't monitored electronically by the RCMP.

The Yukon mining debate was marked by contrasting philosophies. Conservatives forecasting destruction of the industry if heavy federal involvement continues, New Democrats calling for more government control.

Ran Harding (NDP—Kootenay West) said federal incentives have brought about mining exploration in the North. Yet foreign ownership remained heavy, employment of Indians, Metis or Eskimos was light though they made up 43 per cent of the North's population and little processing of ore was done in Canada.

Mr. Harding and Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni) criticized Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien for failing so far to bring down regulations under the Territorial Lands Act.

Mr. Chretien said the trouble is with territorial councillors, not the mining industry, after Mr. Barnett suggested the industry is delaying the regulations.

Conservatives Ritchie, Stan Schumacher (Prallsier) and John Lundrigan (Gander-Twillingate) all criticized the federal aproach to mining.

Mr. Ritchie said that Mr. Chretien, after going to Dallas to encourage U.S. investment, had come up with a bill that restricted foreign ownership.

Anvil Mining Corp. Ltd., big new lead-zinc producer northeast of Whitehorse, had cost $130 million to get into operation and had yet to make a profit, though the outlook was favorable.

The 50-per-cent requirement might limit Anvil's future exploration program, since it is 80-per-cent U.S. owned.

When the mining bill's provisions were added to federal proposals to limit tax exemptions for mines, the result was great hardships for the Yukon.

Mr. Schumacher asked federal proposals to allow tax write-offs on machinery and building costs won't make up for loss of the current three-year income tax exemption for mines.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson's further proposal that the federal tax abatement for mines be increased to 35 from 16 per cent wouldn't apply in the territories.

Therefore mining in the Yukon would pay higher royalties as a result of the mining bill, and possibly higher taxes as a result of tax proposals.

Mr. Lundrigan recalled that William Mulholland, new president of British Newfoundland Corp., had said that if present tax uncertainty had existed a few years ago, Brinco might never have started its Churchill Falls hydro-electric development in Labrador.

OHSIP to Ban Second Billings

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan will pay 90 per cent of the Ontario Medical Association's new fee schedule and doctors who bill the plan directly must accept 90 per cent as payment in full, Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence announced Thursday.

The schedule includes an increase in total fees of 4.5 per cent during a two-year period from May 1, 1971, to April 30, 1973.

Mr. Lawrence said all doctors will be asked to choose between billing the plan for all patients' accounts or billing the patient directly.

The choice will determine the billing procedure a doctor uses for all future billing. Mr. Lawrence did not give a deadline date for declarations by doctors, who are compelled to choose one of the methods of billing.

If a doctor chooses to bill the patient directly he must notify the patient in writing if he proposes to charge amounts higher than the scale of benefits.

This notification should be made prior to rendering the service unless the particular situation makes this impractical."

Mr. Lawrence also announced that OHSIP is designing a computer program to provide profiles of the patterns of doctors' practices and their use by patients in an attempt to improve the detection of "irregular, peculiar and unreasonable or fraudulent conduct" by patients or doctors using Ontario's health insurance plan.

The Ontario Medical Association will be asked to help program the computers and analyse the data.

Both OHSIP and the College of Physicians and Surgeons, the doctors' governing body, will get investigatory powers and sanctions in the attack against improper medical and financial practices, the minister said.

In other legislature business:

Highways Minister Charles MacNaughton, who told the house the ban on studded tires will become effective April 30, said: "In my opinion the overall standard of safety on the paved road system in Ontario is lowered by the use of studded tires in winter, and on this basis alone the prohibiting of studded tires is justified."

Public Works Minister James Auld said the provincial treasury board has relaxed its freeze on the bulk purchase of motor vehicles. He said the ban was relaxed to buy 140 vehicles which are "urgently required" by the provincial police.

A bill providing for amalgamation of the highways and transport department into a department of transport and communications was given first reading. The proposed department was outlined in the throne speech March 30.

Leo Bernier, minister of mines and northern affairs, said the government has been illegally collecting taxes from natural gas producers for a number of years. He said the government is taking steps to eliminate the tax.

Licence Plate Sale Defended

TORONTO (CP) — Highways Minister Charles MacNaughton Thursday defended what opposition members described as $3 million worth of political patronage in dispensing motor-vehicle licence plates.

"I'm satisfied at this time that the delivery of services to the people of this province is being conducted in the most efficient and economical way possible," he told Vernon Singer (L —Toronto Downsview) in the Ontario legislature.

Mr. MacNaughton was quoted in published reports as saying "there is a certain element of patronage" in allocating licence-distribution agencies.

Premier William Davis was quoted in the same report as saying it wasn't significant that about 10 per cent of the agents were active members of the Progressive Conservative party.

In the house Thursday, the premier said the system of using agents who are not civil servants is "efficient and economical."

However, he said the system would be reviewed.

Mr. MacNaughton said he doubted the system of paying an agent 50 cents for each set of plates he sells could be improved.

He said a decision on the possibility of purchasing the plates through Queen's Park would be made by 1973.

Mr. Singer said that in large cities with provincial buildings, auto licences could be dispensed with less cost and more efficiency. He asked whether the minister "still believes that $3 million worth of patronage is part of the way of life in Ontario."

Jobs Planned Outstrip Money

OTTAWA (CP) — State Secretary Gerard Pelletier expressed determination Thursday to challenge young Canadians with his Opportunities for Youth program, but he admitted he could use more money.

Mr. Pelletier told the Commons his department has had proposals under the $14.7 million summer-job program that would create 148,000 jobs.

Unfortunately, he said, they would cost $150 million if they all were approved.

Outside the Commons, he said he is canvassing his fellow cabinet ministers to see whether they have some extra money within their budgets to help him out. The response had been positive.

He was talking in terms of a few million dollars, he said.

The deadline for proposals was April 15. The minister said the government was picking and choosing proposals, and those who had submitted them would be informed of their luck before mid-May.

Mr. Pelletier said proposals submitted included rehabilitation services for blind children, medical and dental assistance to remote areas, economically unprofitable communities, and establish contact with the disadvantaged, similar projects for transient youth and elderly people, and scientific and sociological research of immediate community benefit.

The government was pleased with the motivation and values revealed, Mr. Pelletier told the House. Now it intended to challenge the proposers to see whether they have the stamina and self-discipline to follow through.

David MacDonald (PC—Egmont) said Mr. Pelletier had brought to himself a public embarrassment by offering nothing concrete on the objectives of the program, the qualifications for proposals or other such secrets.

One was led to believe, he said, that proposals would be accepted on the basis of influence or accident, rather than merit.

There have been reports of administrative chaos within the program, Mr. MacDonald said, which was to be expected in a plan that was brought in far too late.

He said the government could only blame itself if it came up with an inadequate response to the obvious enthusiasm and interest of young people, if it added to cynicism, unrest, disillusionment and even violence.

The mention of violence drew jeers from the Liberal benches.

Obstruction Charges Upheld In Computer Centre Sit-in

MONTREAL (CP) — Roseveit Douglas, Ann Cools and Brenda Dickonson-Dash were found guilty Thursday and face up to five years in prison for wilful obstruction of the use of the Sir George William s University computer centre during a 1969 sit in.

Sentence will be passed April 30.

The three are expected to apply for renewal of their bail today following the end of the week-long trial.

Douglas, a 28-year-old Dominican, has been on bail of $14,000. Miss Cools, 27, of Barbados and Canadian-born Miss Dickonson-Dash, 25, were on $3,000 bonds.

All three still have to face 11 counts arising out of the 13-day occupation of the computer centre which ended with the arrest of 95 persons Feb. 11, 1969 after fires and a computer-smashing spree left $1.5 million in damages.

The jury deliberated for two hours before convicting the accused of the obstruction charges.

Mr. Justice Kenneth Mackay of Court of Queen's Bench termed the jury's verdict "well-founded."

He had told the jury in his charge Thursday that to acquit the accused the jurors had to be satisfied that they had acted with "legal justification and with color of right."

The jury returned once to ask the judge to repeat his remarks on color of right, defined by Mr. Justice Mackay as an honest belief by the defendants that there is a legal, not simply a moral, justification for their acts.

Mr. Justice Mackay also said in his charge that the jury had evidence before them that the university was unable to use its computer centre during the occupation.

Prosecutor Fred Kaufman said in his summation Wednesday the three accused should be found guilty if it had been proved that they obstructed the computer centre's use for even one day.

Defence lawyer Bernard Mergler said the university administration gave tacit approval to the demonstration. Witnesses testified the university never informed the demonstrators during the sit-in that the occupation was illegal.

Testimony from previous trials connected with the affair established that the three accused were present at various times during the sit-in and were arrested Feb. 11. The three did not testify.

The testimony, admitted after joint acceptance by the defence and the Crown, also established that at least one policeman failed to tell the occupiers they were acting illegally.

No Crown witnesses were called.

Besides the three convicted Thursday, 74 people have passed through the courts since computer cards showered from university windows and a sit-in turned into a rampage. Most have pleaded guilty to illegal occupation and been fined $1,000.

During an eight-week trial of 10 Trinidadians early last year, black power spokesmen in the Caribbean threatened a civil uprising unless the 10 were acquitted.

The demonstrators staged the sit-in to protest what they called inaction by the university in dealing with a charge of racism against a biology professor.

The professor, Perry Anderson, was later cleared of the charge by an independent committee of university teachers.

Louis Riel Diary Sold For $26,500

MONTREAL (CP) — Louis Riel's diary, lost on the battlefield of Batoche in 1885 and reported found in Winnipeg last year, was sold Thursday for $26,500 plus tax.

Purchaser of the diary, Gene Rheaume, former Progressive Conservative MP for the Northwest Territories, said that he and his associates in an Ottawa consulting firm—Bill Lee and Bill Neville—made the bid so that the document would remain in Canada.

"My grandfather, A. G. B. Banatyne, served in Riel's provisional government," Mr. Rheaume said, "and I bought it both as a Canadian and as a Metis," Mr. Rheaume said the diary would be a public document.

Bernard Antman, director of Montreal Book Auctions Ltd., who handled the sale warned earlier of the possibility of Americans buying the document.

Sydney J. Harris Says

One Must Learn from Young

Somebody wanted to know how I manage to maintain such good rapport with college students, and young people generally, in my frequent contacts with them. Especially since I'm about the age of most of their fathers.

The only honest answer to that is a rather vain one. It is one of my conceits that I keep learning as much from my children as they have learned from me, and the process is a continuing one, from decade to decade.

What stimulated this somewhat self-congratulatory line of thought is a recent book that came across my desk: "Sons and Daughters of Mom," by Philip Mylie. It is a mad and sad and bad book; more sad than anything, for once Mr. Wylie was right up there with sensitive and sensitive critics of American scene, and now he is just nowhere at all.

His rancid attacks on young people today are as dumb as anything I have read. The book is a total failure in understanding, and the blame must be put on Mr. Wylie for not having changed in the last quarter-century, while the world has marched right past him. This is what he is mad about: that the vanguard is now dragging in the rear.

But this is what inevitably happens when a man gets fixated on his own ideas and cherishes them so lovingly that he is unwilling to re-examine or reject them in the light of new conditions.

This does not mean that everything old is bad; far from it. But it does mean that everything old that no longer applies must be cast off, and everything old that still holds good today must be reaffirmed within a new structure of significance.

And this is the real test of a man's intellectual and moral development — to separate the eternal verities from the passing crochets in a way that makes his thought useful and creative rather than just recriminatory and resentful. If you can't do that, you're no good to yourself or to anybody else.

"Education," in its fullest and deepest sense, is a lifelong process. There is as much (perhaps more) necessity for a man over 50 to keep re-educating himself as for a lad of 18. But we get rigid, we get tired, we get busy, we fall in love with our beliefs because they are comforting and familiar — and so we end up like Mr. Wylie, shrilling pelanally against long hair, and not seeing our own absurdity.

The sons and daughters of Mom have done a lot better, and come a lot further, than Mom may have deserved. That Mr. Wylie cannot perceive this obvious fact is the mark of his retardation, not theirs.

Split Level Minimum Wage Plan Dropped

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal and provincial labor ministers Thursday gave short shrift to a proposal that the federal minimum wage level should be allowed to vary regionally across the country.

A spokesman for federal Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said the idea was raised by unnamed provincial ministers seeking to offset political pressure at home to match the rate set in the federal jurisdiction.

"They didn't discuss it for very long," the spokesman added as he summed up the exchange at the first day of the two-day conference.

The federal minimum wage is to rise July 1 to $1.75 an hour from $1.66. Ministers from the less-developed provinces have argued that such raises put them under unfair pressure to raise provincial minimums.

Jury Finds New 'Pen' Like Motel

HAMILTON (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court grand jury toured the new Millhaven penitentiary near Kingston this week and found it "more like a grand motel than an institution."

"I would rather stay in a motel any day, mind you," Aubrey Asselstine, 57, a farmer from Maribank, Ont., and one of the seven jurors, said in an interview Thursday.

It was to Millhaven that most of the 500 prisoners involved in the four-day rebellion at Kingston were taken following their surrender and the release of five hostages.

Millhaven also was partly the cause of the rebellion, since prisoners feared they would be under constant electronic surveillance at the new prison. They were to have been transferred in cages to Millhaven over the next four months.

The grand jury toured the new prison Wednesday at the suggestion of Mr. Justice William Henderson, presiding at the spring sitting of the Supreme Court at Napanee, Ont.

Millhaven Warden J. D. Clark took them on a tour of a cell-block area but no prisoners were in the cells at the time.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 24

Your birthday today: Most of the upcoming year is spent seeking fresh starting points, getting ventures under way in directions you have not explored before. Tentative methods, deferred rewards are to be expected. Today's natives usually are extremely good at arranging complicated schemes and schedules.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Close out your work week as best you can without extending tasks beyond their usual hours.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Home, family and friends claim more attention or upset earlier plans. Placidly straighten matters out.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The neater you operate today, the better you and your own set of people thrive.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Keep your patience while things resist being settled. Look at it as though reality is having a lantern and, therefore, you are not at fault.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Long projects draw to stopping points. See that your eagerness to get done doesn't lead you into poorly planned, last minute changes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Doing for others at the moment promises to serve your own goals and welfare better later on.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You do some trivial thing by surprise, without intending it, and trigger strong reactions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Routines must be tended diligently throughout. Let tempting new projects wait for another review and more planning.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): This promises to be a day of stirring action which goes in circles and achieves little until later hours.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Unfinished business should get first priority. Better results are promised if you can avoid adding new complications.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Take the day off from your normal routine and chores. The details you try to fill in now are not in harmony with your long-range goals.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your relations with children and younger people are almost certain to improve late in the day after quite a range of discussion.

Hint Comes Soon

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough brings down his first budget Monday, one likely to produce a small deficit with no tax increases.

Although remote, chances of some tax relief cannot be ruled out, particularly with a provincial election looming this year, possibly in June.

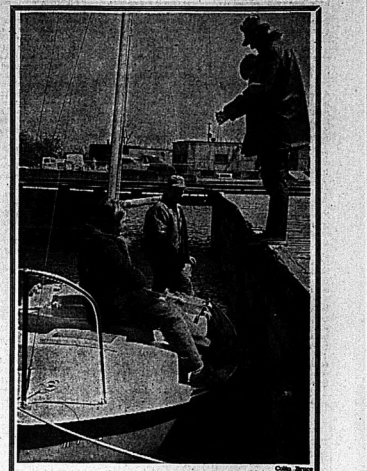
Mr. McKeough could adjust the corporation tax rate or lower the five-per-cent sales tax on some goods to stimulate further the Ontario economy, which is showing some signs of recovering from a winter of high unemployment.

Shortly after taking over as minister March 1, Mr. McKeough blamed Ontario's economic slowdown on federal fiscal policies which he said give the province little room to acquire much-needed additional tax revenue.

Selected tax relief would be a bold step, but one that could give new Premier William Davis the impetus to seek a mandate in the spring.

Mr. McKeough starts reading the budget speech in the Ontario legislature at 3 p.m. CBC-TV will carry the presentation live on the Ontario network.

With budget spending approaching the $4,000 million mark, Mr. McKeough will have to move carefully in keeping any deficit to a manageable figure, particularly since the government has already cracked down on education costs by placing specific limits on school boards.



But welfare and medical-care insurance costs have soared to the point that the predicted $11 million surplus forecast for fiscal 1970 already has vanished.

Money also will have to be found to finance the record capital fund to aid small businessmen and the massive housing program to provide 132,000 jobs announced in the throne speech last month.

In fiscal 1969-70, Ontario raised $2,867 million from provincial sources and received $881 million in federal grants, which included $285 million for medical care.

Ottawa retains 72 per cent of total income taxes raised in Ontario and Mr. McKeough would like a piece of action in the form of greater provincial leverage in the income tax field. In 1969-69, the federal government drew off $1,400,000 million in financial resources from Ontario for distribution to fiscally-weaker provinces.

Mr. Davis already has indicated that some of these drawoff funds, should be returned to assist the have-not areas in Ontario.

Soviets Ready to Link Up First Orbiting Space Platform

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soyuz 10 spacecraft, carrying three Soviet cosmonauts, moved into position today to link up with the unmanned scientific station Salute and form the world's first orbiting space platform.

The Soviet news agency Tass announced that the two craft were making final preparations to rendezvous and dock in early orbit.

Tass said that as of noon Moscow time—4 a.m. EST—Soyuz 10 had made 22 orbits of the earth and Salute 86 orbits.

"During the joint flight," Tass said, "scientific and technical experiments were conducted and the work was done for linkup and undocking of the manned spaceship and the orbit station Salute."

Tass added that rendezvous and docking equipment on the spaceships were checked, and the "radio technical equipment were perfected."

The brief dispatch also said that the three cosmonauts aboard Soyuz 10 "feel fine" and that all the systems aboard their craft and the unmanned dummy ship Salute "function normally."

Soviet cosmonauts have docked two Soyuz craft in a previous space mission, but the Salute craft, launched last Monday, is a new item in the Soviets' catalogue of space hardware.

Soyuz 10 streaked into orbit early Friday morning and began pursuing Salute around the earth. The crew made two slight adjustments in the craft's orbit Friday and zeroed in for the rendezvous.

At last report, Soyuz and Salute were in parallel orbits, but the manned craft was slightly higher and would have to throttle down a bit to drop into lower orbit.

This manoeuvre apparently was carried out today.

The linkup of the two craft would be a major step toward the declared Soviet goal of building the world's first orbiting space laboratory.

Three-time cosmonaut Vladimir A. Shatalov, an air force colonel, is command pilot of Soyuz 10. With him are Alexei S. Yeliseyev, also a veteran cosmonaut, and rookie Nikolai Rukavishnikov.

Washington Girds for Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government's law-enforcement and military forces girded for 100,000 demonstrators expected to crowd downtown streets of the U.S. capital today in a promised peaceful protest of the Indochina war.

Through the night and early hours, demonstrators by the thousands moved through Washington streets in a jubilant flow.

Meantime, jeep convoys of rifle-toting military police sped into the underground garage of the new Executive Office Building one block from the White House.

While sponsors of the protest vowed non-violent civil disobedience, many capital store owners, victims of vandalism in past demonstrations, had boarded their windows.

At the justice department—in response to directives—all window blinds were lowered and carefully shuttered to deflect any thrown objects.

And for the first time in memory, hastily-erected barricades blocked access to the West Front of the Capitol, where demonstrators planned to end their day-long parading.

Capitol police said the wooden-and-wire fencing was merely "to protect the flowers" and not to bar the marchers.

President and Mrs. Nixon are spending the weekend in Camp David, Md. The White House was closed to visitors.

The National Peace Action Coalition called the mass demonstration to protest the war, and to demand "freedom for all political prisoners" and a guaranteed $6,500 annual income for a family of four.

T-D Bank: Economic Recovery Continuing

TORONTO (CP) —The Toronto-Dominion Bank's quarterly review says a recovery in the Canadian economy, reflected in last year's fourth-quarter pickup in economic activity, is continuing.

The bank's researchers predict the gross national product will rise to almost $93 billion this year, a gain of more than nine per cent in current dollars an dof five to six per cent in real constant-dollar terms.

The figures compare with 1970's current-dollar rise of 7.5 per cent and a real 1970 gain of only 2.25 per cent.

"There is now firm evidence, based on gains in employment, incomes and production that last year's fourth-quarter pickup in economic activity was extended through the first quarter of 1971.

"First-quarter employment gains were large, providing good support for personal incomes. Total real output contributed to rise and industrial production registered a further significant advance."

The review cites several optimistic signs, including a sharp rise in new orders in a number of manufacturing industries and a moderation in the size of wage settlements.

Demolished Bell Symbol of Prisoners' Frustrations

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — After the prisoners at Kingston penitentiary took control April 14, they demolished the bell that jangled 32 times to open or close the 32 rows of cells radiating from the dome—central control-area.

A prisoner's committee last week identified the bell as among the main frustrations of daily life at the 130-year-old penitentiary.

"Instead of ringing a bell for breakfast, we'll have to go around and knock on the doors," John Moloney, regional director of penitentiaries, said Friday.

The 509 prisoners who controlled the institution and held six guards hostage for four days left their philosophy on the walls and their frustrations in the wreckage.

They left the three chapels in shambles, bending out the Roman Catholic altar as a barricade, ripping down the Jewish tapestry, bashing chalices, ripping hymn books, scattering files, overturning pews, smashing two organs to pieces.

In cell block 1-D, on the ground floor where the undesirables—rapists, child molesters and stool pigeons—were herded, bloody mattresses and sheets were mute evidence of mayhem.

A rancid stench rose from the sticky floor Friday, five days after the prison was brought under the control of authorities, despite the chill wind that has blown through the smashed windows for a week.

The body of Brian Enjor, who was beaten to death, was found either in a service duct just outside 1-D or in the mop room, formerly cell No. 1, just inside.

In blue paint, slogans on the wall ranged from peace symbols to White is Beautiful to Pigs Eat Little Children and Liberated Zone.

"To all who participated in this riot: Our sincere thanks," proclaimed a hand-written sign.

Others proclaimed the epitaph of Kingston, the grey father of Canadian prisons. Although the $300,000 in damages was mostly superficial, it was the end of Kingston as a maximum security penitentiary.

Most of the 500 involved in the outburst have been transferred to other, newer prisons, among them Millhaven, 17 miles away, which was supposed to replace Kingston later this year.

Mr. Maloney told a group of reporters who toured the prison Friday that only about 150 of the close to 600 cells will be restored.

The psychiatric wing, the prison hospital, the kitchen and the dissociation unit—better known as the hole—weren't affected by the riot and still are in operation.

Mr. Maloney warned the reporters about wandering along the upper tiers through ribbons of torn-out electric wiring.

"It may be booby-trapped," he said. "We don't know what's up there. Go at your own risk."

He also warned television cameramen against using electrical outlets, which also hadn't been checked.

Nothing had been moved, awaiting the visit earlier Friday of a board of inquiry, except Enjor's body and the prisoners.

The three-man board of inquiry is led by Toronto lawyer J. William Swackhamer. The other members are H. E. Pope, federal director of custody, and W. T. McGrath, executive director of the Canadian Criminology and Corrections Association.

The board of inquiry will report to Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer on "the immediate causes and on the assessment of responsibilities" for the outburst.

Mayor Critical of Downtown Renewal Plan

Mayor J. Russell Scott has indicated the proposed Belleville Urban Renewal Plan, presented by the Toronto firm of Proctor, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon was a waste of money. "For $85,000 we would have been well advised to spend $10,000 locally. With the balance we could have bought a Rembrandt to decorate city hall."

"Despite the fact it is a good plan, it offers great encouragement for people to go into the planning profession."

The mayor's comments came in the wake of a letter tabled at Thursday night's meeting of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board by planning director Bert Kenny.

Mr. Kenny expresses "reservations on the feasibility of the plan" and said "this whole question of feasibility has got to be shown".

"The plan is a good plan, if it will work. If it won't work, it's not worth the paper it's written on," he stated.

He told the members of the planning board he "didn't set myself in a position to damn the plan. The concept is good, fairly simple, when you boil it down."

The mayor felt the federal and provincial government were right in not providing funds under an urban renewal grant system because, he said it was uneconomic. According to Mr. Kenny, the plan is based on the assumption that the two governments would participate in the urban renewal scheme, a sharing program they discontinued approximately 1½ years ago.

Mr. Kenny described in his letter to Allen Brass, consulting engineer with the Toronto firm, that "this aid is not forthcoming, then private initiative will be required in order to implement the plan. The encouragement and initiatives which will be provided by the public sector I presume will have to lie primarily in the legislative field in the form of zoning to implement this plan."

With the plan calling for two thirds of the city business employment to be housed in a 2½-block downtown area, Alderman Arnold Orr asked, "are we putting limits on this thing in such a way as to damage downtown Belleville no matter how large the community gets."

Chief worry expressed by members of the planning board are the far - reaching plans required to bring the urban renewal project into existence.

Mayor Scott said the municipality had the power to consolidate by expropriation of whole sections, but only if these plans include part of the city's official plan and work put up for public tender.

"Politically it might be impossible to expropriate . . . it depends on who you expropriate."

The mayor said the plan would have to be undertaken in stages, with sections developed step by step. A big concern would be getting the acceptance of the plan from absentee owners and he suggested that the plan migh collapse if there was much objection, a situation he predicted would occur.

Planning board member Horace Knight said "I don't think there is enough labor on Front Street for the proposed apartments. Workers need to get out to the outskirts, close to their jobs. I think Belleville is getting too many apartments; it's hard to drive a car or don't bump into them.

"Belleville is becoming a city of apartments."

Mayor Scott predicted there would have "to be a great deal of slack taken up throughout the whole area before these plans can take place" and "slack is taken up, for rapid expansion or land values have to be brought down to make land purchases possible."

He said these steps would have to be implemented if "Belleville wants to see the downtown area rejuvenated."

Mr. Kenny informed the planning board that the Toronto firm would indicate the steps required to bring their plans into effect over the next 20 to 30 years.

Planning board officially accepted the Proctor, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon but, recommended that Church Street not be considered for main artery development.

Trenton Co of C To Receive Award

TRENTON (Staff) — Mark Kelloch, president of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday the Trenton Chamber will receive a 1971 President's Award "for initiating programs for the betterment of the community and area in the social services and business field".

The award will be presented to Trenton Chamber of Commerce president, John Davidson, at the Ontario Chamber's 59th annual convention in Toronto May 2.

It acknowledges "special contributions" made to the community by the organization. These include sponsorship of the retarded workshop, ARC Industries, support to the intensive care unit of Trenton Memorial Hospital, redecoration of a hospital lounge and institution of the current drive to build a senior citizens' drop-in centre.

Stirling Youth Killed in Crash

TRENTON (Staff) — A 14-year-old Stirling boy died last night and three others are in hospital today, following this area's first fatal traffic accident of the year.

The dead youngster, Dennis Garfield Little, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Little, RR No. 4, Stirling, was one of five passengers in a car that careened off the highway at Highway 33 and the CNR station lane north of here at 9:20 last night.

The car, driven by Melvin Dempsey, 21, of 70 Brown St., Port Hope, was travelling south into town along Highway 33 but turned off onto the station lane, proceeding 65 feet before it rolled, landing on its roof in an eight foot deep ditch.

Dennis Little, suffering severe head injuries, was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital, where decision was made to transfer him to Kingston for intensive care. He died on the way to Kingston in an ambulance, as Trenton physician, Dr. C. D. Murphy, fought to save his life.

Hospital spokesmen report this morning the other teenage passengers are being treated for injuries.

They are Robert Lawrence, 15, of RR No. 2, Port Hope, who sustained severe facial lacerations, Earl Minnie of Maynooth, an 18-year-old with head and facial injuries, and John Dempsey, 14, of RR No. 4, Stirling, receiving attention for leg wounds. The driver of the car did not require medical care.

The accident is still being investigated today by Corporal Roy Gordon and Constable Howard Cochrane of Brighton detachment, Ontario Provincial Police.

Canteen Contract Awarded

Local food caterer Douglas Jackson will operate Parks board canteens at the Belleville fairgrounds, Zwick's Island and at the Alemite field this year.

Parks board members awarded the canteen contract to Mr. Jackson Thursday after deciding his tender was the most satisfactory of the three received. Others submitting tenders were Tobe's, who bid only on the Zwick's Island canteen, and R. J. Alexander.

The contract for operation of the fairgrounds canteen is for one year and for three years at Zwick's and Alemite field.

Mr. Jackson's offer was $1,000 for the fairgrounds canteen, $700 per year for Zwick's Island and $280 per year for Alemite field.

Parks authorities said weather would be the determining factor for opening of the Zwick's canteen, but May 24 the expected opening date at Alemite Field.

Opening of the fairgrounds canteen will be determined by the first harness racing date.

New Law Is Not Popular With MDs

Members of the Belleville General Hospital Medical Association haven't formally discussed the new Ontario Government legislation which will force physicians either to bill the Ontario Health Services whether they billed the patient directly.

Under the new regulation, doctors will no longer have the option of using one method for one patient and the other for another.

"We haven't discussed it (the new regulation) as yet", stated Association president Dr. R. S. Berry of Tweed.

A senior official of the Ontario Medical Association predicted yesterday that more physicians will bill their patients directly as result of the government's move.

Under the old scheme, a physician could bill OHSIP directly for some patients, bill other patients directly, and if they wished, bill patients for the 10 per cent of the OMA fee schedule not paid by medicare.

Dr. Berry said that under the former scheme it was up to the individual physician's choice whether they billed the patient or OHSIP.

At his own office, Dr. Berry said the policy was not to bill the patient for the additional 10 per cent.

But he said there were doctors who did.

Director Replies To Critics

Air pollution, including odors that may result from the burning of garbage, does not come under the control of the Hastings county health unit.

This is noted by Dr. C. R. Lenk, medical officer of health for Hastings county, in reply to a Marmora woman, Mrs. H. Perkins, who told Marmora village council that complaints of garbage burning made to the health unit failed to get any action.

Dr. Lenk said that air pollution lies in the field of the provincial department of energy and resources management.

The medical officer of health said that to his knowledge, Mrs. Perkins had never contacted the health unit.

Also at the Marmora meeting, one councillor claimed that some new buildings in the area had not been properly inspected by the health unit.

To this, Dr. Lenk says that all septic tank systems to be installed require a building permit licence which is given only after proper inspection.

If there are any systems that have not been legally inspected, Dr. Lenk says he would be grateful to learn of their location.

"I believe it is the duty of every citizen to inform the health unit of the existence of unlicensed septic tank installations," the medical health officer said.

Drugs Topic of Meeting

BRIGHTON (Staff) — "Whether we like it or not, we have a drug problem," says a circular inviting parents to attend a seminar being organized by the Brighton Public School Home and School Association.

The seminar slated for 8 p.m. Tuesday in the school auditorium is part of the association's public education program, says Mrs. Terry Simpson, the Home and School president, explains that "invitations have been sent to all the schools in the area".

Participants in the dialogue will be John Metcalfe, department of education health consultant, from Kingston William Robb, a Peterborough social worker; Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, Mrs. Bernard Rapley, physical education teacher at East Northumberland Secondary School and Brighton physician, Dr. David Lintern.

Mrs. Simpson told The Intelligencer yesterday a drug questionnaire had been given the 120 grade seven and eight students in the school and answers were "revealing".

These senior students are also invited to attend the seminar, if accompanied by parents.

Mrs. Simpson said results of the student survey will be discussed during the evening. She contended "knowledge is the best solution to whatever problems exist here."

Standards Increasing

Roy Higgins, director of the youth musical Move It! said at the visual art display at the Ben Bleecker auditorium that the standards of the Artsfest are increasing every year. Luv, the play directed by Larry Ewashen will complete the activities. Mr. Higgins said that it will provide a great evening of entertainment to finish the festivities.

PA System, Time Clock May Wait

Belleville's new Dick Ellis Rink in the city's west end may have to get along for its first season operation without its planned public address system and time clock.

At least the city council recreation and arena committee members have decided that their 1971 department budget will not permit the expenditure this year.

But that will not prevent local sports-minded organizations coming up with enough funds to make the $5,000 installation possible.

Already the committee has nearly $2,500 in special funds available to go toward the project.

Wilson Concrete Products Ltd., contributed the $950 cost of plans for the structure, while Miner Sports, in cooperation with the Red Barn, raised $900 to go toward the cost of the rink.

Committee members feel, however, that the intention of the donations was that they be used for the installation of special equipment rather than to help reduce the overall capital cost.

Accordingly the committee will retain the $1,850 in a special fund, hoping that other sports-minded organizations may come up with the balance to still make the installations possible this year.

"APOSTASY

You must realize that in the last days the times will be full of danger. Men will become utterly self-centered, greedy for money, full of big words. They will be proud and contemptuous, without any regard for what their parents taught them. They will be utterly lacking in gratitude, purity and normal human affections. They will be men of unscrupulous speech and have no control of themselves. They will be passionate and unprincipled, treacherous, self-willed and conceited, loving all the time what gives them pleasure instead of loving God. They will maintain a facade of "religion", but their conduct will deny its validity.

Police Put Priority on Public Relations

Thanks to the Knights of Columbus, Belleville is observing an official Law Enforcement Appreciation Week. Ed Buckley, a high official with the Knights of Columbus, said at their Monday night banquet for local police officers, "we hope these thoughts we sponsor are being shared in the community".

Mayor J. Russell Scott, president of the Municipal Police Governing Authority, predicted future police work would be closer to the people. The officer is being returned to a position where the public can have a "sense of identity with the policeman on the beat. The public will identify with him and get to know the man".

On the Belleville force, a Community Services Division, headed by Inspector Ralph Blatchford, attempts to meet closely with the community from the infant stage on up. Safety officer Corporal Robert Hall and youth officer Corporal Harry McKee, bring the police officer's role to the classroom.

In this manner, the child learns to trust the man in blue and yet comes to understand he is a firm guide, one who will correct.

Cpl. Hall explained he enters kindergarten classes and introduces the youngsters to Elmer the Safety Elephant, together with the policeman's equipment.

"They're not afraid, but fascinated when I show them my handcuffs and whistle," said Cpl. Hall who attempts to show the youngster he is a protector, one to look up to for assistance and one who can give it.

Up to grade seven and eight Cpl. Hall relates the rules of the road, shows the youngsters proper traffic concern and frequently meets with them simply to renew acquaintances.

It's paid off! said Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie this morning, "our safety officer is well accepted."

Other members of the force accompany the safety officer on these visits. "We let the youngsters see that he's not a stinker. The fellows get exposed to kids and they can see they're human too."

In this manner, the officers of the community services division serve a dual role. "The police force is being represented, not the officer."

Started by Sgt. Dennis "Robbie" Robson in 1969, the department was taken over by then Sgt. Blatchford. The division grew in 1963 to a two-man operation when first-class Constable Hall became safety officer. Under Inspector Blatchford, the office has grown to a three - man operation with, Cpl. McKee meeting with older youth.

In the past two years, Cpl. McKee has acted as a liaison between the police department secondary schools and various agencies which handle juvenile problems. As the Juvenile and Family Court Officer, he works closely with the Children's Aid Society, United Community Services and Ontario Welfare agencies.

Inspector Blatchford explained that Cpl. McKee "goes into elementary schools in the same capacity as the safety officer, acting as a councillor and dealing with individuals."

Counselling is offered to both parent and child and in some instances, referrals are made either to the aforementioned agencies or the mental health unit. This person-to-person relationship has reaped benefits, "Sometimes people come in here as a last resort, they come for advice," said the inspector.

All three officers are family men; all three have a kindly, yet firm nature which wins them the obvious respect of scores of area youngsters. Whether this is shown in the laughing eyes of young children or the confidence shown by an older youth who seeks advice, the accomplishments are there to be seen.

Corporal Hall said physical results can be shown in the reduced accident rate among youngsters compared to the increased traffic in the city. "I would like to know the statistics of how many lives that have been saved . . . people saved from getting into trouble because they had been informed properly. The picture is getting worse, but people come to us because they know they can come for answers to their problems."

Extra manpower "would make our job more efficient and decrease the space between our visits . . . it's better if a guy goes all the way to the top with the same kids," said Cpl. Hall.

Chief Crosbie backs up the need for a larger community services division.

"Next year we're going to have to look very closely at expansion," the city's senior police officer said.

"The case load is big" and sometimes it is difficult for the officers "to get out among young people. We're going to have to have more men, with specialized training."

The chief did say that any expansion might very well come from within the present force.

"Next year, we're going to have a long look at having a policewoman, but all this depends on the 1972 budget."

Chief Crosbie had nothing but high praise for the three officers. "We're starting to get people to come for help . . . they're gaining respect and acceptance for the officer."

Inspector Blatchford predicted changes somewhat along the line Mayor Scott indicated Monday night.

"Family conflict intervention units are going to come into their own; other units will deal precisely with juveniles," he said.

In agreement with statements made by the mayor at the Knights of Columbus police officer appreciation banquet, Inspector Blatchford predicted "traffic problems are going to be handled in the police structure, but in a different context than what it is now. Automation devices will take over a lot of the traffic movement."

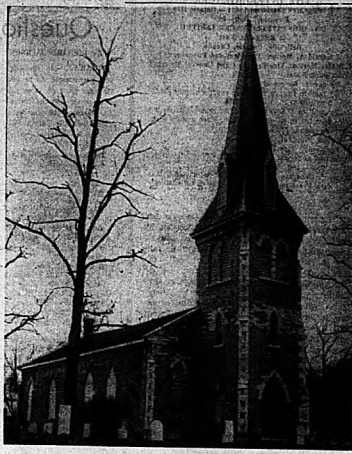
Mayor Scott referred to the policeman as "a professional" and commented the officer may be in "an adverse position on the four corners directing traffic and bawling people out."

The inspector said "a number of people who work in the traffic field will be civilians and others will be a different type of specialist. Traffic forces may be a psychological training ground for police."

And with the changing role of the officer, a change in appearance is necessary. "Young people look at the police uniform and know what it means. If you don't get among them in uniform, they ask why not . . . why would you be different up here."

Inspector Blatchford predicted a move away from the military uniform. "We're not going to kid the young people," but the officer's role will be changed."

"The training process has to be upgraded; the selection process will be updated and upgraded.



"This doesn't mean we'll simply be social engineers, change will simply make us better policemen."

Mayor Scott referred to Belleville's police force as "crackerjack." Mr. Buckley called on the citizens to share in their appreciation program.

Concluded Chief Crosbie, "the greatest way citizens can appreciate us is to help us . . . call us if they see anything the least bit suspicious; it's amazing what we can do if we get some help."

This morning a floral display was delivered to the police station. The enclosed letter from Whalen Real Estate Ltd., joined the Knights of Columbus and the citizens of Belleville in saluting the men in blue.

Church Under Change

Picton's oldest church, built in 1825, to serve Anglicans in the area, is now the Prince Edward county museum. Slowly being repaired and renovated, the old building will get a reconstructed rear stone wall this year.

New Wall Approved For Church-Museum

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County councillors have voted to reconstruct a stone wall at the back of the new county museum.

The museum, under slow repair by the county for some time, originally was an Anglican church built in Picton in 1825 by Rev. William Macaulay. It is the oldest church in Picton and among the oldest in Upper Canada. When the church opened parishioners paid fees for their pews. Costs ranged from one pound, five shillings to 15 shillings a year. This charge, whether by accident or design eliminated the common working man from joining in church services.

Records show that in 1830 there were 29 parishioners paying 34 pounds, 15 shillings a year for their pews. At his death in 1874, Rev. Macaulay was buried in the Anglican churchyard.

County council has taken "first things first" according to warden Allen Anderson, in repairing the former church for use as a museum. Councillors have included $5.000 in the annual budget for repairs to the old stone building.

Putting Their Hand in the Hand of the Man

It was traffic appreciation day Thursday for kindergarten students at Georges Vanier School on Tracey Street. At an early age, Belleville police Corporal Robert Hall, leads youngsters to trust the police officer and teach them safety measures. Crossing the road is an enjoyable pastime for Kim Soles, 6, of 19 Jones Street, and Steven Ryan, 5, of 51 St. Charles Street.

Green Turf Helps Make Life Better

Treat your lawn tenderly—it has more going for you than you think.

Property - proud homeowners who have made their smooth green turf a status symbol and the envy of their neighbors can congratulate themselves on their civic - mindedness. They have been in the forefront of the anti - pollution fight all along, says a University of Maryland official.

Those who despair over the raking, cutting, fertilizing and weeding of lawns and dream of fence-to-fence green concrete get short shift from A. J. Powell, the American university's turf specialist.

The lowly blade of grass is a front - line fighter in the pollution battle, he says.

First, grass releases oxygen into the air. One averagesized home lawn can replenish the air with enough oxygen for eight persons.

Secondly, grass absorbs and detoxifies one of the most critical air pollutants — sulphur dioxide — present in a high ratio in city air.

And grass, says the turf specialist, is more tolerant of polluted air than many other plants.

If that isn't enough, grass can be credited with being an antidote for eye, heat, and noise pollution.

Green turf eliminates glare and is supposed to be the most restful color to the eye. Because of evapo - transpiration, a lawn helps control heat pollution. It is usually 20 degrees or more cooler than pavement or artificial turf and even at 5 feet above the surface the temperature may be 10 degrees cooler above turf than above pavement.

Turf deadens sound — a patch of lawn should properly be considered as a block of acoustical material, says Mr. Powell. It deflects, absorbs and muffles many sounds that make city life unbearable.

Undervegetation of cities is now being investigated as a factor in their dwindling oxygen supply and many planners regard greenbelts as essential for survival, not just esthetic appeal.

So pamper your lawn. According to the experts, you are supervising a small oxygen generating plant of your own, that enriches and purifies the air around you.

In Color

Retiring NDP leader Tommy Douglas has been presented with a color television set by his party faithful. We suppose this is more appropriate than say a gold watch while failing short perhaps of something really extravagant.

Appropriate though in these days of electronic communications and because Mr. Douglas is favored with as much television exposure as any of the luminaries on Parliament Hill these days. Some would say even more which may cast some light on the politics of those who run the news services of the CBC. Now Mr. Douglas will have the opportunity of seeing himself in glorious technicolor, because although he is giving up the leadership he hopes to continue as the member for Nanaimo — Cowichan — The Islands.

The CBC, we notice, continues to come under fire from many sides on the matter of content and political bias — too much violence and all the rest of it. But the television people seem to be able to shrug it off. Nothing really is done to curb this sort of thing, although we would say that in recent months programming is less anti-American, for example, less blatantly in favor of dissent and potential enemies than in times past.

If anything, American news programming seems even more virulently anti-administration and anti-Vietnam war than the CBC. For instance NBC gave great play the other night to the protest of the Vietnam veterans and to one of their spokesmen in particular, a threetimes wounded young man who was appearing before government representatives. One sees or hears little on U.S. news programs that would indicate support for the nation, its government, or the men still engaged in an ugly and universally-condemned war which the U.S. nevertheless is attempting to conclude honorably.

We hope Mr. Douglas will exercise the same discrimination in his judgment of TV programming as we have been urging on the general public, for what one sees and hears must be taken with a grain of salt, being only a fraction of the total picture.

Why Such Doubts?

After all this time, that is since people in large numbers started smoking marijuana, not to mention indulging various other drugs virtually unknown, or at least ignored, a decade ago, we should have thought there would be some unanimity among researchers about the effects of pot.

Yet there is disagreement on the subject among U.S. doctors. Two psychiatrists, in a report published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, say they have found that young people who smoke marijuana in moderate to heavy amounts develop serious psychological problems.

For our part we have read several other reports, some by young people who have experienced pot for themselves, which afford ample confirmation that it can seriously affect their mental functioning.

The AMA report said that 38 pot smokers studied "consistently showed very poor social judgment, poor attention span, poor concentration, confusion, anxiety, depression, apathy, passiveness, indifference and often, slow and slurred speech."

Why should there be any doubts then? Well, some do exist, as witness the fact that two other leading psychiatrists — from Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore and Boston University respectively — question whether the study presented sufficient evidence to prove a direct connection between marijuana smoking and mental illness.

From a lay standpoint, we are inclined to place the most credence on the findings of the study. We cannot believe that constant manipulation of the mind processes by means of marijuana smoking or by any other drug, to the point that the user is not under the full control of his own senses, can be considered anything else but harmful. The same may be said for alcohol which, indulged to excess, is simply another way of "copping out."

Ricky's Trip

Ricky Nelson Abrams ,13, of Kingston, may have disobeyed his mother, hitchhiking to Boston for a Stanley Cup playoff when he should have been minding no further than the corner store for bread and milk and to the barber for a haircut. But the youngster showed initiative nonetheless and he met some nice cops down there in the States, policemen who fed him, gave him money and got in touch with the Canadian consulate so that he could get home again. And you do not often hear this side of the U.S. policemen, or indeed anything that is good about anyone or anything. He sounds all right this kid, and we hope his mother has not been too hard on him.

Voters Rap Policy on Many Fronts

Questionnaire Brings Unhappy Tidings for Government

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — In the life of any government, there comes the age, going on three years, when public disenchantment begins to cloud the election day which, last time the voters went to the polls, was so sunny and bright.

The coming election is starting to show low on the political horizon.

And along sometime next spring, it should reach the High Noon of Voter Decision — for or against sending Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau back to the control room of the levers of federal power in the East Block.

Well, what is the long-range forecast?

It has been made by a Liberal MP who is in a unique and strategic position. Cool, cautious, lawyer Gordon Blair.

He represents the Ottawa suburban constituency of Grenville-Carleton, populated largely by federal civil servants, a very special and select classification of voters who routinely, over the years, election through election, support the Liberals.

For the last 30 years and 11 federal elections, every Ottawa-Hull riding but one traditionally has gone Liberal. Usually with whacking majorities.

That one exception was Carleton, now a part of Grenville - Carleton, and last election even it — because of redistribution which brought in a heavy Civil Service vote — went Liberal.

This, then, has to be the true Liberal heartland.

It only makes good sense.

Because in the last 11 elections, the Liberals have won eight and ruled for all but six of 36 years.

The Government proposes and disposes — even in the matter of jobs in the supposedly non-partisan Civil Service — and unquestionably in contracts and the spending of its huge $14-billion-plus tax income.

The Ottawa - Hull — and suburban National Capital constituency Grenville - Carleton, a "company town" if there ever was one — works for and lives by the Government.

Almost always the Liberal Government.

And if by enormous upset, the Conservatives win, as happened in 1957, '58 and '62, then the Civil Service, the way the Tories swear they saw it happen, works to undermine them and return the Liberals to power.

So there is Gordon Blair speaking for the company town workers in this company town where loyalty to Liberalism is a way of life.

And how does he see the election sky?

Overcast. Storm clouds climbing up from the east that by the High Noon of Voter Decision come next Spring could build into thunderheads.

He has sent out a questionnaire to 21,000 homes in his Civil Service Riding, and received answers from 7,200 of them.

The return, a "fantastic," as he describes it, 37 per cent.

And fantastic it truly is, not only because the average return for an MP to a questionnaire runs 10-15 percent, but for the unique reason that the huge majority of respondents to his poll have to be Liberals, and presumably supporters of the Trudeau Government.

Well, what is this select audience saying about the performance of its Government?

The answers to Gordon Blair's questions are so startling — jarringly frightening to the Liberals — that he has fled them with the Prime Minister's office, members of the Cabinet and the Government Caucus.

Perhaps you missed, or skimmed over the Liberal news reports of the Brian Blair poll, and missed its shock impact.

Then consider these results and ponder how you would react if you were Prime Minister:

By four to one, Gordon Blair's constituents say taxes are too high and call for cuts in the costs, in descending order, of Liberal Civil Service priority: bilingualism; equalization payments to the provinces, especially to Quebec; welfare; — and how startling can a shotgun get in the federal payroll — Government office building construction; the Prime Minister's staff; royal commissions; Information Canada; the Senate; and Foreign Aid.

Other voter opinions in Liberal bellwether, Grenville-Carleton?

By five to one they call for cutting Government staff as long as "essential federal services" are maintained.

By three to one they condemn Finance Minister Benson's White Paper on Taxation.

By three to one they would deny civil servants the right to strike, given them six years ago by former Liberal Prime Minister Lester Pearson.

By five to one, they would forbid public service pickets in such essential services as transportation, a federal responsibility.

By three to one they question the wisdom of bilingualism.

By three to two they blame the cutting of the Canadian commitment to NATO and NORAD.

By three to two they blame the programming of CBC.

By almost six to one they favor the use of the War Measures and the Public Order acts to smash the Quebec Terror of the FLQ.

There were more questions and answers, but these were the key ones. And an eight out of nine the Government comes out on the short end of the count.

Here in Liberal suburban Ottawa, too.

April 23 is the day of England's patron saint, St. George, an apt choice of a heroic figure by a truly heroic people, who with their Allies defend world democracy today. The spirit of St. George throbs through Britons of their cause of doing the utmost for mankind. St. George was born in 270 A.D of noble family at Lydda in Palestine; tradition says his father, a soldier, had been a martyr to his Christian faith. At 17 years of age, the son became a soldier of Rome and served as tribune under Diocletian. He tore down the edict of the emperor ordering Christian persecution and was martyred for his act of faith and courage at the age of 33 years. In the reign of King Edward the Third, St. George was adopted as the patron saint of England.

Not to Mention Unemployment and Welfare

A High-priced and Artificially-stimulated Economy

Richard Needham in
The Globe and Mail

How can a country, i.e. Canada, have at one and the same time substantial wage increases and substantial unemployment? Shouldn't unemployment be pulling wage levels down, as for example was the case during the great depression of the 1930s? This paradox puzzles a lot of people, yet to me it's easily explained.

As I noted last week, Canada's two million union members now have a tight monopoly over most of the high-paying industrial jobs. This monopoly has been given the unions by politicians of every party over the last 25 years: it is now so strong and so solidly entrenched that there's no way of breaking or even modifying it. Furthermore, this monopoly is backed up by physical violence and the threat of physical violence — rights and privileges also given the unions by politicians of all parties.

In these circumstances, unions can easily win big increases every time their contract comes up. The employer has no choice but to grant them — or see his plant tightly shut down for weeks, months or years. There are other factors involved, however — factors absent during the 1930s — and let's look at them in the order of their importance:

(1) Canada's adult unemployed are not the way they were in the 1930s, desperate to get work. They can support themselves and their families by other means — for example, by taking welfare. During the 1930s wages were often low, but welfare was a mere pittance. In relation to wages, welfare payments are substantially larger today than they were during the prewar depression: indeed we keep hearing of cases where a man can do better for his family by going on welfare than he can by working. Unemployment insurance payments also give jobless adults a source of income they didn't have in the 1930s.

Given this situation, our employed won't compete for work — not, at least, in terms of accepting lower wages. And even if they were willing to do so, they're effectively frozen out of industrial employment. A man might be willing, for instance, to go on the assembly line at Ford for 50 or 75 per cent of the going wage rate, but there's no way on earth Ford can hire him.

(2) The young unemployed are under no great pressure to work. They can stay in high school and be supported by their parents; they can go on welfare and be supported by the taxpayers; they can go to university and be supported by grants and loans; they can wander around the country, as many are doing and as many more will do, living by their wits, by whatever (or whomever) turns up. Industrial wage rates are in no way endangered by them.

(3) There's an economic law that if your wages go too high, your prices go too high: people refuse to buy from you, and then you — and your workers — are in trouble. But modern governments have found ways around this, such as foreign aid, defence contracts etc. The manufacturer who can't sell his products in the market, at market prices, gets a government contact which enables him to bypass the market. What happens here is that when private individuals and companies, domestic or foreign, refuse to pay high prices based on high wages, Ottawa steps in, compelling Canadian taxpayers to pay those same prices, those same wages.

A good instance of this is the CF-5 jet fighter contract enjoyed by Canadair in Montreal — a political contract in essence, whose prime purpose is not to defend the nation against enemies unidentified, but to support the Canadair wage and the wage levels to which they have become accustomed. It's a make - work project, and one of many thousands all over the country.

Again, there's that $14-million interest-free loan Canada is giving the East African Community (Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania). The EAC will use this money to buy 35 diesel locomotives from MLW-Worthington of Montreal. A $35-million interest - free loan is also going to Nigeria for the purchase of 33 locomotives from the same company. The loans, spread over 50 years, may never be paid back; the locomotives may end up rusting in the African jungle; that's not the point. The point is that the MLW Worthington workers have been guaranteed high-wage jobs for a long time to come.

(4) To all this, it might be added that our various levels of government employ far more people, absolutely and relatively, than they employed during the prewar depression. I doubt that any of them, in a period of high unemployment, will cut back on employment; it's more likely to increase it — and are able to do so at will, because (another contrast with the 1930s), our various governments, notably that in Ottawa, have almost unlimited powers to levy almost unlimited taxation. They are now taking one-third of the average citizen's income; they could and doubtless will take even more.

That's how things are as I see it; and that's how they will continue to be. It's a setting in which wages and prices — cannot come down; they can only go up until something catastrophic happens. It could be a taxpayers' rebellion — but to what political party could the rebels turn? It could be a complete economic collapse like that of the 1930s, but that's being staved off with makeshifts, evasions and conjuring tricks like the ones stated above. Perhaps a nice little war would solve everything, as it did in the 1930s. But please count me out of this one; it's where I came in.

Day of Worship Is Observed In St. Thomas' Anglican Church

A day of worship for the entire family was held today at St. Thomas' Anglican Church for all the Anglican parishes in Belleville.

Designed to appeal to everyone over the age of eight, the programs were geared to the interests of the clergy, church guilds, choirs, Sunday school teachers and confirmation class members as well as general church members.

Mrs. John Garrett, wife of the rector of St. Peter's, Brockville, organized the program and Mr. Garrett began the day's observances with the celebration of a choral eucharist at 10:30 a.m.

Before the day ended at 4 p.m. with an Evensong of contemporary music with Rev. Peter Teti of St. Thomas in charge, a program on symbolism in the church, church music, embroidery of fair linen and slides on the Holy Land had been presented.

Rev. John Utley of North Augusta, east of Brockville talked of his visit to the Holy Land in February and John Wilson, organist of Christ Church conducted a class in church music.

Church, Theatre Called Prophetic Institutions

TORONTO (CP) — A former Baptist minister turned playwright finds no conflict between church and theatre because for him both are "prophetic institutions."

"I have a very strong feeling of the prophetic nature of the theatre and the prophetic nature of Christianity, and so in these two things I have no contradiction at all," says 29-year-old Rex Deverell.

Mr. Deverell, who has masters' degrees in both theatre and theology, was a pastor for three years in the southwestern Ontario of St. Thomas before giving up the ministry last year to devote all his time to theatre.

His most recent work, The Brothers, a collaboration with Toronto director Ernest Schwarz, was presented earlier this year at Mr. Schwarz's Studio Lab Theatre, where more recently Mr. Deverell has appeared on stage with his wife in a musical revue.

By his definition, prophecy "is not a thing of telling the future, particularly."

"It's telling it like it is. It's helping us to know what we're involved in.

"While the theatre we take the various kinds of images of our culture—the pain, the laughter, the crucifixion, the resurrections—and we bring them together.

"We bring the ugliness and we bring the beauty together, and somehow in the midst of all that there begins to shine through some light, some glimpses, some visions, and I think those visions are religious in the same way that the visions of the church are."

He says that both church and theatre bring both "glimpses of what the real important things are, sometimes beyond the things that we think are important."

Mr. Deverell has no hesitations about writing in the earthy vernacular that characterizes much of today's theatre, saying that both the language of the church and the language of the theatre is the language of God.

"Although I may choose several different languages to write in I still can't write as any other than myself, which happens to be a pretty committed Christian.

"But who am I to decide in this snobby way I'm going to refrain from using language that people use. God can speak through that language too.

"It's sometimes very disbugged of us to try to take ourselves away from that kind of ugliness into just the pretty-pie-in-the-sky kind of stuff, because what really might be happening is that we're taking ourselves away from the word of God."

He emphasizes that he didn't leave the church out of anger or discouragement.

"I'm not mad at the church. I didn't stop being a pastor because I was really discouraged with the church or anything. I stopped because I had gotten very involved with my desire to write plays.

"Depending on what kinds of opportunities there are within the church I will still try to be as involved as I can.

"I would like to try to work through a lot of the theatrical hunches I've got in the back of my mind, and once I've seen where they lead then I can make up my mind a little bit more whether or not I'll go back to preaching."

Mr. Deverell, who was born in Toronto, raised in Orillia, Ont., got his bachelor of arts and bachelor of divinity from Hamilton's McMaster University and did his post-graduate study in New York, wrote his first play as his divinity college thesis. A one-acter, entitled The Invitation and concluding "All Roads Lead" symbolized behind it," the play later won a university playwrights' competition.

In addition, he has written a one-act play that was produced in New Jersey, a Christmas play, several small sketches, some of which have been performed professionally, three church collages, two of which were performed at conventions of Ontario and Quebec Baptists in 1969 and 1970, and currently is working on "a very nationalistic play."

He met his wife, Rita, who comes from Houston, Tex., at Columbia University in New York, where she also was taking a degree in religion.

"I'd come to it from the religious standpoint; she'd come from the theatrical standpoint," says Mr. Deverell.

They were married in 1967, the night before he graduated. She is a regular member of the Studio Lab Theatre company and played the title role in the theatre's highly successful production of Dionysis 70.

In that play, Mrs. Deverell appeared completely nude — something both Deverells consider fully justified if it is in context with the play and not used for sensational purposes.

MAJORCAN MEMO

"With the almond in blossom — a basket of flowers floating on the sea to the open world — Majorca." — A. C. Vidal-Isern.

* * *

To leave March wintry skies for sunny blue ones of the Spanish Isle of Majorca seemed too good to be true — and so it was. For our jet from London landed at the Son San Juan international airport in a blinding rain storm!

Like all storms, however, it soon passed, and though our visit had cool, windy days, there were sunny ones, as well, in the 60's to amply enjoy the scenic Mediterranean setting of Palma, the beautiful capital.

The atmosphere this city of 215,000 population is one of contentment and happiness. It seems to spring, as one walks about, from the palm-tree-lined boulevards, the splashing fountains and graceful monuments. From stately homes and magnificent cemeteries - old architecture dominated by the great cathedral and the castle of Bellver, the large windmills and fine hotels; from side-walk cafes and shop-filled narrow streets; from gracious, hospitable people; from grass and flowers which abound everywhere as do lemon, apricot, olive, fig cactus, pine, cypress and almond trees. (Seven million of the latter were in bloom throughout the entire island. Three-fourths of Spain's almonds come from Majorca.)

Small wonder, then, this "Isle of trees" lured the Carthaginians, Romans, Vandals and Moors in centuries past, not to mention the more than four million yearly turnover of tourists from every part of the world.

To accommodate and welcome them, the Majorcans have ready and to-be-making high-rise apartments and hotels situated along the lovely shoreline that flanks the capital. All of which was most apparent to my husband and me being driven from the airport eight miles east of Palma to our hotel some 10 miles west of the city of Nova Palma. Rising as if from the sea, "The Hawaii" Hotel with modern in appearance is delightfully Spanish in feeling— in spite o fits name—and placed at our disposal an exquisite expanse of the blue sea view from our balcony.

A contrast of a tourist welcome comes to mind by words of one of Majorca's first tourists back in 1838, who wrote: "In Palma it is necessary to make reservations several months in advance with a score of reputable persons to whom one has been recommended to avoid having to sleep in the street . . ."

The writer, from France, was among the first to take advantage of the first regular service inaugurated in 1836 (between the island and the Peninsula (Spain) which hitherto had been non-existent), provided by the packet - boat "El Mallorquin". The issue from the writer's fruitful visit was a book giving news of the island's great beauty and attractive climate. From that time on the tourist trade grew to expand into today's proportions — thanks to the famous French novelist and poet, George Sand, and her book, "Un Hiver a Majorque" (A Winter in Majorca.)

Describing a rural scene, she writes:

"It is a surpassing picture . . . in the background by the rounded hump of hills which the setting sun gilds with the warmest shades and on whose crests one can still distinguish from a distance of a league, the microscopic outlines of trees, as fine as the antennas of butterflies, as black and distinct as a trace of Chinese ink on a backdrop of sparkling gold. . ."

Our arrival in Palma was made doubly enjoyable due to the fact a friend lives here, another Belleville, was on hand to greet us, namely Miss Leona Riggs who was in Majorca while on a European trip. There is nothing more heartwarming than seeing a friendly face in a strange place far from home.

Next week we shall speak of tours taken on the island. See you then, si?

MR. AND MRS. STEPHEN C. W. NORMAN

Norman — Boudreau

Eastminster United Church was the setting on Saturday, April 10, 1971, when Carolyn Ann Boudreau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Benoit Boudreau of Belleville was united in marriage to Stephen Charles William Norman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Norman, CFB, Petawawa. Rev. Alexander McDowell officiated at the ceremony and Mrs. R. J. McGugan rendered wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length white brocade satin gown featuring a Peter Pan collar and an empire waistline encircled with satin ribbon. A bouffant scalloped edged shoulder length veil was caught to a bandeau of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of yellow shasta type pompon yellow 'mums and sweetheart roses.

Maid of honor Miss Beth Schwager wore a floor length gown in mauve satin with flowered nylon overlay on bodice. She wore a mauve bandeau in her hair and carried a nosegay of pompon yellow 'mums. Bridesmaids Miss Hermina Brak and Miss Norma Boudreau in mauve and yellow respectively. Each carried a matching bouquet of pompon 'mums.

Paul Norman attended his brother, while the ushers were Robert Boudreau, brother of the bride, and Bert Reymond.

A reception was held at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a sleeveless coat and dress ensemble with mint green chiffon over taffeta with bone colored accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Assisting the bridegroom's mother was a yellow linen dress and jacket with black accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

For the honeymoon trip to Nigara Falls and the United States, the bride chose a navy and white crimplene dress with navy and white coat, white gloves, red accessories and a corsage of red carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Norman will reside at 33 Holloway Street, Belleville.

Woman's Status Debated

A panel of University Women consisting of Mrs. C. N. Wilson, Mrs. M. E. Thompson, Mrs. E. A. Manderville and Mrs. R. S. Burtt, presented a brief summary and their interpretation of four of the ten sections of the report on the Status of Women at this month's meeting of the Canadian Federation of University Women of Belleville and District.

Mrs. Wilson considered the roles of women in society. Though women are generally more expert than men in the care of children some mothers must work part time to help support the family. Thirty-two per cent of the labor force is women and one half of these are married. Women should be given equal pay with men for the same job performance. Many married women want to work part time when there are no young children.

Mrs. Thompson discussed the day-care centres. Other countries have successfully set up day-care centres (England, Sweden and Denmark). With one million children under 14 with mother's working there is a definite need for day-care centres. Should they be incorporated into the school system or made flexible enough so the Government can absorb part of the cost? There is also a definite need for trained staff for these centres so that more may be set up.

Mrs. Burtt's topic was taxation, and the dealt with various exemptions.

Poverty was discussed by Mrs. Manderville who noted that: one in every five Canadians is poor. Many of these lack education and this in turn makes it difficult in finding a job. There are often large families and inadequate housing is the result. Dealing with the Eskimos, Indians and Metis. Mrs. Manderville stated that it has been recommended that the Federal Government set up "friendship centres" in co-operation with them in order that they may obtain help and make their own decisions.

A business meeting preceded the panel. A potluck supper is planned for the May meeting. Interest groups are planned as a follow-up to the questionnaire which had a 68 per cent return.

Dreams Are Said the Seedlings of Realities

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Some years ago, when I was passing through a sudden and devastating sorrow, a friend sent me a leather-bound book which was very inspiring and helpful. There is a passage which runs:

"Dream lofty dreams and as you dream so shall you become. Your vision is a promise of what you shall one day be; your ideal is the prophecy of what you shall at last unveil.

"The greatest achievement was at first and for a time a dream. The oak sleeps in the acorn; the bird waits in the egg; and in the highest vision of the soul a waiting angel stirs. Dreams are the seedlings of realities.

"Your circumstances may be uncongenial, but they shall not long remain so if you but perceive an ideal, and strive to reach it. You cannot travel within and stand still without."

Now Doris, which one of us at times has not lost our ideal, and sometimes felt hopeless to reach it? It takes a strong personality to travel within when all without is going backwards or standing still.

I often wonder, and I don't mean this sarcastically, if the people who write these inspiring things and the ministers who preach those lofty ideas, have ever really suffered. I know we all have to have a haul and strive towards it. — Petunia.

Dear Petunia: Some have suffered maybe some haven't. But I think we can tell the difference in the quality of what they write.

Your doubts spring from those times when your own confidence was shaken; and I don't blame you. Yet you say the little book helped?

It helps us, anyway, I'm glad to be able to repeat those lofty sentences. "Man's reach must exceed his grasp, else what's a heaven for?"

Dear Doris: Is there anything wrong in liking a boy younger than myself? He's just 16 and I'll be 18.

His parents and most of the kids at school treat him rough. When he asks me out we take our car since his dad won't let him have theirs. And to go out he has to plead with them; to be able to, even, to go to a movie by himself. His parents want him to go to university and if he gets any low marks he's scared stiff to take his marks home.

Once in a while he gets to feeling sorry for himself and I'm the only one who will say around and listen to him. Would you believe he's thought of suicide many times? He thinks deep as he really isn't much sense left in living.

What can I tell him to try and perk him up? I'm terrified to think what he'd do if he failed any of his June exams. — His Only Friend.

Dear Friend: Let's hope that all your life you will have friends from 15 to 60 and older. Just don't get so you mistake your regard for him for mature love.

A boy has to talk to someone. Make sure you as a sort of older sister — and do I detect a little of the social worker in you?

But he needs an older person too. His parents want all things of him; but they don't seem to be giving him much encouragement. Help him find someone to unload to, at church or school or YMCA.

Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CHRIST CHURCH ACW EVENING BRANCH

A regular business meeting of the Christ Church ACW, Evening Branch, was held recently in the Parish Hall.

The Diocesan annual meeting will be held in Kingston on April 27. At present there is no bus going, but it is hoped enough cars will take all those who wish to go. All members are asked to bring their Thankoffering to the next meeting, so that the delegate can present it at the annual meeting.

Plans for the euchre party were discussed. Mrs. Mason reported that the tickets were selling well. Everyone is asked to bring groceries for the hamper, on which tickets will be sold at the party. Each member is to bring one dozen muffins, and/or jam. Donations of candy for the candy table will be welcomed.

The next meeting will be held April 26 and any guests for the Blossom Tea in May are to be discussed.

Mrs. Gilbert thanked all for the rose bowl she had received while in hospital.

The president thanked Mrs. Nix and Mrs. Rose for serving lunch, and the meeting closed.

YOUR ANTIQUES

by Jack Jamieson

In the last century, the major lines became noted for the regularity of their train schedules. "Railroad time", both for accuracy and as the standard of local time became an accepted fact. Watches and clocks made for the railroad were considered to be particularly accurate.

One type of clock became especially associated with the railroad. It was originally listed as a drop octagon but rapidly gained fame as a "Regulator". As a clock style it was used in most government offices, post offices, railway stations, schools and public buildings were "official" time was kept. It continued to be manufactured up to the introduction of the electric clock.

In rural areas and many schools there are still Regulator clocks in use that were made in the 1930's.

Most old Regulators bear the label of the New Haven Clock Company or the Waterbury Clock Company. The New Haven Regulator has a paper face with a centre logo consisting of a red star and the dates 1817 and 1853. Neither date has much to do with the company which started at an undetermined time in the 1850s. Their clock, which is illustrated is numbered 230 on the case.

The Waterbury clock, whose antecedent are about the same as the New Haven clock was sold by both Eaton's and Sears Roebuck. Clocks were marked with superimposed initials W C on the face. Eaton's numbered their clock 226 and Sears 62974. Both sold for a little over $3.

There was also a larger type of clock advertised as "Regulator" which may have the name on the pendulum case. The drop of the octagon was larger to accommodate a wooden pendulum rod. It was supposed to be more accurate because it had a wooden rod with "unaffected by temperature."

It included a sweep hand that told the date and sold for about $6 at the turn of the century.

Most Regulator clocks had eight-day movements, a week plus one day if the regular winding fell on a holiday. Many continue to run and probably will for, years to come. Almost all are oak or have a veneered case which might be any wood. They were made economically with a single hinge on the face to support the glass face. With long use, both the hinge and the glass have probably disappeared.

Drop octagons or Regulators are quoted as high as $75. The clock market is a changeable one and manufacturers' add much to the value of a clock. Clocks are worth more in running order, especially if they are selling to a private customer. Dealers are more interested in selling points and know where to get an old clock repaired economically.

If you are buying, make sure the clock works. If you are selling don't worry, somebody will fix it if it doesn't go.

Ann Landers

Teeners Mode of Dress Upsets School Teacher

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a teacher in a school that has no dress code. This is, please note, not a high school — it is a junior high school.

There are 12-and 13-year-old girls who wear pants that are so tight I don't see how they sit down. The sweaters on some of the girls fit like paper on the wall. No bras.

Some of the girls wear false eyelashes and paint their eyelids green, purple and what have you. It looks hideous. I sometimes wonder if they leave the house looking like that and, if so, whether their mothers see them.

I have discussed this with our principal. He says the school authorities can do nothing. It's up to the parents. Apparently most parents don't care. Will you print this for the benefit of the parents who do care? Thanks. — ST. LOUIS.

DEAR ST.: Parents who do care don't need to see this letter. They and 13-year-olds are not going to school looking like chorus girls. The parents who don't care are unreachable.

The best hope for these sad little chicks is to be set straight by the girls in their classes who want to help them.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please educate parents who insist on butting into their children's arguments instead of letting kids settle things in their own way.

I grew up in a small neighborhood where we all fought our own battles. Nobody's Pa or Ma got into the act. We are raising our children the same way.

Everything was fine until this new family moved on our block.

They have telephoned every parent on this street to tattle. Last week the father was over here and my husband told him to get lost. He invited my husband out in the alley. My husband told him in plain language where to go and what he could do when he got there.

Please print this letter for all parents to see. You might be able to get through since you have no ox to gore. Thanks. — TROUBLES IN NEW ORLEANS.

DEAR TROUBLE: Wise parents stay out of their children's fights. Kids must learn how to handle their own problems. If Mom and Dad intercede, the kids are denied valuable learning experience.

Most kid problems blow over and the next day all is forgotten. But when parents get into the act, the trouble gets blown out of proportion.

I am glad you wrote. It gave me an opportunity to say something that needed to be said.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am only 16 but I feel like 90. I was one of those dingalings who scuttled a guy because he was "too nice." I couldn't stand him because he was so pleasant. While he was knocking himself out being considerate, I had my eye on another guy who was indifferent. When Mr. Indifferent finally asked me for a date I broke a date with Mr. Good Guy and treated him rotten. He stopped calling me and began dating my best friend.

Mr. Indifferent turned out to be a rat — interested in only one thing. We had a big fight and I kicked him out. Now I wish I had Mr. Good Guy back. I could really appreciate him but it's too late. He and my friend are hitting it off and I am — EATING MY HEART OUT.

DEAR HEART: No experience is a total loss if you learn from it. I suspect you've learned plenty from this one, so consider it tuition in the school of experience and carry on. Doll.

Red Cross Blitz Proves A Success

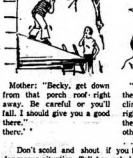
MARMORA — The Marmora Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society has announced that the recent blitz was successful in collecting, to date, 98.6% of the 1971 objective for funds. Mrs. George Wisti, campaign chairman, announced that $543.53 had been contributed.

The Red Cross in Marmora actively and financially participates in the assessment and water safety program conducted by the Recreation Committee. They also operate a well-stocked loan cupboard which contains hospital beds, wheel chairs, walkers, crutches and other sick room needs. These are supplied free of charge.

The branch also assists in time of need or disaster.

A sincere thank you is extended to everyone who helped to make the 1971 appeal so successful. The final results reflect on the interest of a lot of people and the branch is grateful to all those who donated so generously and to the canvassers, for the fine job well done.

UCW Return with Report



This did not just happen but was due to the planning and work of the executive, the excellent resource people they had to lead them and the support given by them when 43 made the trip. Beginning on Friday night the group divided into pairs, continuing through Saturday they enlarged until they worked in groups of eight.

In the absence of the Presbyterial president, the president - elect, Miss Helen Sexsmith was in charge. The following leaders were present: Mrs. Errey, associate secretary of the Board of Women; Mrs. Grace McFarlane, chairman of the Board of Women; Miss Nora Neilson, editor of materials for children and youth in the United Church Department of Education and Rev. George Anburey, district secretary of Christian Education. Rev. and Mrs. George Young of Five Oaks gave valuable assistance.

The basis for Bible study dealt with "Face to Face". Free and spirited discussion in the groups contributed to the involvement of all.

Reader Had 'Awful Waffle' Problem

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: So much trouble did I have in my early waffle-making days with batter sticking to the iron that my mispronunciation of the finished produce — "awfuls" — was more apt than they knew! I eventually learned to prevent sticking by placing a sheet of wax paper between the hot plates at the end of a waffle-making session, leaving it there until the iron had cooled. Come next waffle day, no sticking! I should very much like to have the recipes which you have given from time to time for teenagers to try. Would you be so kind? I have counties MM recipes in my files, the MM dishes I have served to family and friends are equally countless. Many thanks! — Mary Ann B.

ANSWER: I loved the "awfuls". Your tip about interfacing wax paper between warm waffle grids will help some of our readers with awful waffle problems. I have mailed the requested recipes to you.

Haiti Power Transfer Takes Place Smoothly

PORT AU PRINCE (AP) — Described by his son as "the soul of his fatherland," Francois (Papa Doc) Duvalier received the final homage of his family and friends today.

The frail former doctor who ruled Haiti for nearly 14 years will be buried a few blocks from the palace which was his home and power base in the black republic.

Following a service in the palace conducted by Roman Catholic Archbishop Francois Wolff-Ligone and a 101-gun salute, the funeral procession will move to the national cemetery and Duvalier will be buried in the family crypt.

Jean-Claude Duvalier, 19, successor to the 64-year-old president who died Wednesday of heart complications and diabetes met Friday night with fellow students at the University of Haiti. Palace officials said the chubby teen-age president repeatedly described his father to them as "the soul of the fatherland."

Complete calm was reported throughout the nation as Jean-Claude, his new 10-member cabinet and 13 special advisers worked at continuing what appeared to be an orderly transfer of power.

There are no signs of the challengers to the Duvalier rule which observers both inside and outside the country predicted might bring turmoil in the wake of Papa Doc's passing.

Thousands of mourners stood in line outside the stark white presidential palace Friday to view the body in the glass-topped coffin as it lay in state in white tie and tails.

There were no reports of any foreign head of state or other dignitary making the trip to attend.

Consumers' Home Purchase Puts It in Unique Position

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers' Gas Co. of Toronto has bought important interlocking interests in the production, transport and marketing of natural gas through its purchase Friday of control in Home Oil Co. of Calgary.

Through Home Oil, Consumers' gets a significant say in TransCanada PipeLines of Toronto, the major buyer of Alberta gas and sole wholesaler of that gas to Ontario utility companies such as Consumers'.

Home Oil owns 6.6 per cent of TransCanada. R. A. Brown, Home Oil president, is a member of TransCanada's policy-making board of directors.

Thus, at least indirectly, Consumers' in effect will be selling itself gas in Alberta and buying the gas back from itself in Ontario.

In the world of integrated, international petroleum operations, there is nothing unique about companies trading with themselves.

But the deal consummated in Calgary gives Consumers' a unique position among Canadian gas-utility companies whose main business is the retailing of natural gas.

Consumers' and Union Gas Co. of Chatham, Ont., both have production interests in southwestern Ontario and Lake Erie, Northern and Central Gas Corp. of Toronto, another utility, owns Canadian Industrial Oil and Gas Ltd., an Alberta producer.

But energy authorities in Ottawa believe Consumers' is unique in obtaining a significant interest in the wholesaler, TransCanada.

Ironically, Consumers' has been placed in a position of fighting its own, newly-acquired interests in a protracted current hearing before the National Energy Board about wholesale gas rates.

Consumers', in league with other utility companies and customer interests, has been arguing every step of the way since TransCanada opened pleadings for higher rates Feb. 9.

Consumers' Gas also is a party to a case before the Exchequer Court of Canada challenging the constitutional legality and contractual propriety of TransCanada's rates bid. That case is scheduled to be heard May 25.

Whatever the outcome of the board hearing and the court case, the rates levied by TransCanada would be determined by geographical zone, not by customer companies.

But with a subsidiary company represented in TransCanada's boardroom, Consumers' will be in a position not shared by other customers of TransCanada.

Inter-corporate mergers are subject to scrutiny by the federal combines investigation branch, but an official said any action would depend on the degree of impact on competition.

Tenant Sit-in Is Repulsed

TORONTO (CP) — Two dozen Metropolitan Toronto police dragged screaming children and shouting mothers from the Ontario Housing Corp. headquarters Friday, thwarting an attempt by OHC tenants to occupy the building.

About 40 tenants, mostly school-aged children led by a few adults, failed to get past the front lobby, where they decided to sit and wait to be ejected.

The protesters used an electric bullhorn, chanted obscene nursery rhymes and handed out mimeographed press releases.

They were protesting last month's refusal of the OHC board of directors to budget $50,000 for improved recreation facilities at a public housing project.

They ripped up papers and pulled up the lobby carpets. Refused access to the building's washrooms, some children used the circular reception desk as a toilet.

A young boy kicked a detective in the side of the face, sending him to hospital for treatment. No charges were laid.

As police officers picked up about 30 children in the lobby and moved out on to the street with them, adults shouted obscenities at them.

OHC officials tried to talk with the tenants but the tenants refused.

Billy Bishop's Medals Fail to Excite Elite

OTTAWA (CP) — A hockey stick signed by Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League brought $150 in an auction Friday to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Save the Children Fund.

K. R. Marshall of Toronto set the record for the gala evening at the French embassy, paying $300 for a copy of the Canadian Bill of Rights signed by former prime minister John Diefenbaker.

Mr. Marshall also paid $275 for personal passes to three international conferences donated by another former prime minister, Lester B. Pearson.

In all the 18 articles auctioned drew $1,952.

The surprises of the auction were the low bids submitted for the wings and ribbons of First World War air ace Billy Bishop and a miniature compact donated by silent screen star Mary Pickford.

Bishop's medals went for $200 to Mrs. Mary Watson, a wartime womens auxiliary air officer.

Miss Pickford's compact, accompanied by an authenticating letter in her own hand writing, was picked off by Adolf Schmidt, United States ambassador to Canada.

An original comic strip by Charles Schulz had a final bid of $280—which auctioneer Marcel Prudhomme described as "peanuts."

Before the auction got under way the 400 formally-dressed invited guests—described by some as the flower of Ottawa society—danced to the music of a seven-man orchestra in the foyer of the elegantly-decorated embassy.

A fashion show competed with the auction as the main event of the reception.

Originals from the Paris salons of Valentino, Dior, and the last collection of Coco Chanel featured the display.

The most expensive garment was valued at $900.

Perhaps the most interesting fashion exhibition was among the guests. Mimi Stanfield, who belongs to a famous Canadian garment manufacturing family and is the daughter of the leader of the Conservative opposition, wore a bra-less full-length formal made of purple and yellow tie-dyed fabric. Her waist-deep neckline was held together by loose lacing.

The males were uniformly rather drab—only a few departed from tradition and sported hot pink shirts beneath their black jackets.

When the purpose of the evening was remembered, it was pathetic that the transparent Save the Children Fund donation boxes, discreetly placed along the bar, remained less than full. The containers in the men's washroom received not a penny.

Next? Dam the Channel

LONDON (AP) — Dam the English Channel?

Engineers dreamed of tunnelling under it or building a bridge over it.

Now the respected British scientific journal Nature proposes damming it.

Nature saw it this way Thursday:

"Does it not make sense to ask whether the time has now arrived for getting rid of the English Channel, preferably by a dam that would yield electricity as well as a means of transport?"

The Nature editorial viewed with dismay the chaotic ship traffic on the channel, the busiest waterway in the world. It pointed out that 800 to 1,000 ships each day ply the polluted waters of the Strait of Dover.

"The result is that the problem of predicting collisions in the channel is not so much like predicting collisions between billiard balls on a smooth billiard table as that of predicting collisions between motor vehicles without brakes at road intersections without traffic lights."

In the last few months three vessels have sunk, two have been damaged and one was grounded on the Goodwin Sands in the straits.

"In short, the time will come when the best way of avoiding mutual shipping damage in the Channel will be to do away with the shipping" says the editorial.

"But, even as things are, much of the shipping exists only because the channel exists. If there were a dam from Dover to Calais, so if the natural causeway which disappeared 6,000 years ago with the melting of the ice were still intact, cross-channel traffic would go by dry land."

Hornets Use Second Period Sting to Take Series Opener

GALT (CP) — Galt Hornets scored three quick goals late in the second period to defeat Grand Falls Cataracts 4-3 Friday night in the opening game of the best-of-five Allan Cup Eastern final series.

Second game between the Hornets, Ontario Hockey Association Senior A champions, and the Cataracts, Newfoundland champions, will be played tonight and the third Monday. All games will be played here.

Cec Hoekstra, Dave Cresaman and Bruce Reier counted the goals which overcame an early 2-1 Grand Falls lead. Ron Smith was the other Galt scorer, connecting in the first period.

Jim Beckman and Alf Ellis scored for Grand Falls, who had many supporters among the near-capacity crowd of 2,961. A large number of Newfoundlanders live in the Galt area.

Hornets had a 37-26 shooting edge as both goalies Jean Guy Morrissette of Grand Falls and Boat Hurley of Galt turned in alert performances. Hurley also picked up an assist on Galt's fourth goal, scored by Reier.

Left winger Tom McCarthy of Galt, a playoff pickup from Orillia Terriers, suffered an ankle injury at the four-minute mark of the first period and was carried off the ice on a stretcher. He was taken to hospital for x-rays.

Galt also lost centre Dave Cresaman late in the third period when he tripped while skating near the Galt bench and limped to the dressing room.

Cataracts took three of the five minor penalties handed out by referee Blair Graham of Toronto, but neither team got its power play functioning in a game which, after the first period, was close-checking.

Hornets had to overcome a pair of one-goal Grand Falls leads. Beckman picked Jim Temple's pass out of the air with a knee-high swat and directed it behind Hurley at 8:20 of the opening period.

Galt finally made its 14-6 shooting edge pay off at 14:37 of the opening period when Smith used a Grand Falls defenceman as a screen and ripped a 40-footer past Morrissette.

Grand Falls gained the lead again in the second period when Ellis cashed his own rebound at 13:26. He was uncovered in front of the net to take Bern Fitzpatrick's pass.

Galt erupted for three goals in four minutes and seven seconds, starting at 14:19 of the period. Hoekstra started it when his pass through the crease hit Morrissette's skate and deflected into the goal.

Galt gained the lead for the first time one minute later when Cresaman picked a corner with a low shot from 35 feet directly in front.

Reier doubled Galt's margin to two goals at 18:17 when he took John Nickerson's pass in full flight at the Grand Falls blueline and broke in alone on Morrissette, flipping the puck over the goalie as he dropped to the ice.

Galt took two of the three third-period minors but still managed to stymie the Cataracts outshooting them by a 12-10 margin.

Team officials said later McCarthy had a broken leg, but Cresaman's injury was not believed to be serious. The pair had been playing on a line with Pete Panagabko, a playoff pickup from Galt Hornets.

The Old Hat Trick

Rangers' Vic Hadfield displays three pucks in the dressing room after he fired three goals to help beat the Chicago Black Hawks, 4-1, in Thursday's game in New York. The victory gave the New Yorkers a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven NHL Stanley Cup semi-final series.

Team Effort Key to Success

No Stars On North Stars

MINNEAPOLIS (CP) — Rugged Ted Harris says the current Minnesota North Stars are misnamed.

"The North Stars are improperly named," said the Minnesota captain Friday after his team went through a light workout prior to meeting Montreal Canadiens tonight in the third game of their National Hockey League semi-final.

"We have no stars. This is just a team, in every sense of the work, of guys who are willing to work."

Harris was commenting on the 6-3 upset the North Stars inflicted on Montreal in their second series meeting Thursday night to square their best-of-seven series at a game apiece.

"We don't have any Bellveaus or Richards or Mahoviches on our team," added the former Canadiens defence ace. "We knew what we were up against going into this series.

"Our aim was to become the first expansion team to beat an established club in Stanley Cup play. Now we'll go on from there."

In beating Montreal, the North Stars broke a winless drought of 17 games for West Division clubs against the established East in playoff since the 1967 expansion.

The string included 12 straight by St. Louis Blues in the Cup final. Chicago Black Hawks, who moved from the East to the West in league realignment this season, then commenced to polish off Philadelphia Flyers in four straight in the 1970-71 quarter-finals.

In the divisional cross-over for the semi-finals, Minnesota lost the first game at Montreal, 7-2, before performing their upset.

"We found out we can play winning hockey against Canadiens," said Harris, adding "if everyone gives a maximum."

The win at Montreal gave the North Stars a psychological lift after they had been bearing about "a four game series" for three or four days in Montreal, said Harris.

The Canadiens arrived here late Friday and went immediately into seclusion.

Coach Al MacNeil and winger John Ferguson, known to have clashed verbally after Thursday's loss in which MacNeil benched the right winger for the third period, apparently made up any differences.

MacNeil said Ferguson will play a regular shift in tonight's game. The player was the last one on the team at Montreal's International Airport when the Canadiens left.

Minnesota coach Jack Gordon said he's going with veteran Gump Worsley in goal for tonight's game despite Cesare Maniago's heroics in Montreal, thereby sticking with his playoff plans to alternate goaltenders.

MacNeil is expected to counter again with rookie Ken Dryden who was victimized by four North Star goals in the first period Thursday but put in a solid effort over the final 40 minutes.

Both coaches are expected to go with the same lineups, with the exception of Minnesota's changes in the goalies. Gordon reported wingers Lou Nanne and Danny Grant ourwing minor ailments picked up in Montreal, but both were expected to play.

Still out of the Minnesota lineup for the weekend games at home tonight and Sunday will be defenceman Doug Mohns.

North Star veteran Murray Oliver, who had stops in Toronto, Boston and Detroit before this year, said Friday he has never seen a club as high psychologically as the North Stars.

"I've been around the NHL for a dozen years, but this is the finest bunch of men I've ever been associated with," said Oliver, whose checking line has been Minnesota's surprise offence in the playoffs.

TED HARRIS

Playing with Nanne, a converted defenceman on right wing, and centre Charlie Burns, the unit collected 18 points, including nine goals, in the six game, quarter-final series against St. Louis Blues. It has picked up two points so far against Montreal.

Oliver said the North Stars could surprise a few observers who expected them to go out early against the Canadiens.

"Now we have three balanced lines, each capable of scoring key goals. Just as important, we're all checking well," said Oliver. He added words of caution, however, that the Minnesotans must continue to skate.

"The Canadiens have so much speed and shooting that no team can let them get a full run at the defence. That's what happened in the first game there Tuesday."

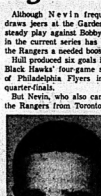
Horton Provides Key To Ranger Defence

NEW YORK (CP) — Tim Horton, at 41 the second-oldest player in the National Hockey League, has emerged to provide a key contribution for New York Rangers in their Stanley Cup semi-finals against Chicago Black Hawks.

With the Rangers carrying a 2-1 lead over the Hawks in the best-of-seven series, New York coach Emile Francis took time out Friday to laud the veteran defenceman for his role in holding off the high-scoring Hawks.

"Tim has been outstanding, game in and game out," said Francis, "He is as steady as the Rock of Gibraltar. I can't say enough about that guy."

Horton, who came to the Rangers from Toronto Maple Leafs last season, sometimes seems to be overlooked among New York's youthful defencemen such as Brad Park and Rod Selling.



But Tim, who ranks behind only Gordie Howe in age among current NHL skaters, has drawn raves from Francis for his sturdy checking game against the Hawks.

"Horton is a real pro," the coach said. "He works as hard as any young guy in the league. You'd think he was trying to win a job on our club."

Francis was asked what made Horton such a good defenceman.

"He's as strong as a bull," Emile replied. "He plays the man first, the puck second. He's never out of position."

The Rangers, who take on the Black Hawks in the fourth game here Sunday, have also been getting valuable defensive play from Bob Nevin.

TIM HORTON

Although Nevin frequently draws jeers at the Garden, his steady play against Bobby Hull in the current series has given the Rangers a needed boost.

Hull produced six goals in the Black Hawks' four-game sweep of Philadelphia Flyers in the quarter-finals.

But Nevin, who also came to the Rangers from Toronto, has held Hull scoreless while checking him in the semi-finals.

The Rangers have also been getting outstanding goaltending from Eddie Giacomin, despite a variety of physical troubles.

Giacomin, who shared this season's Vezina Trophy for fewest goals allowed with teammate Gilles Villemure, took five stitches in his left hand after receiving a skate cut in the first game. Then he was left sprawled on the ice in the third game after a whack on the leg from an opposing stick.

But in Sunday's fourth game, Giacomin will be back in the Ranger nets.

The Vezina was won with the Rangers employing a new approach to their goaltending. Until this season, Giacomin has been an iron man. He never played less than 65 games. Then, with Villemure promoted to the varsity this year, Giacomin's work load was cut to 45 games.

"I wasn't too happy about splitting the job," Giacomin admitted. "But it worked out and you can't complain. I do feel more rested now than I ever have before this late in the season."

Giacomin has played in six straight playoff games now and Sunday will be No. 7. Meanwhile, Villemure sits on the end of the bench, waiting for a call that may never come.

"As long as we win, it's OK with me," he says.

Dim Future for World Hockey Forecast by American Coach

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — Unless there are at least two major changes made in the present structure, the future of the world hockey championships is not bright, says U.S. national hockey coach Murray Williamson.

Williamson, a municipal bonds broker visiting Bismarck on business, found time to talk hockey.

He contended that if they are to have a future, the world hockey championships will have to be:

—Restructured to make the world's best hockey players, amateur or professional, eligible.

—Rescheduled to make the world's best hockey players available to their national teams.

In essence, the first change would open the world championships to Canadian and American hockey players at present playing professional hockey.

The second change would move the tournament back about a month, enabling the North American nations to make use of these professional players. Tournament dates now conflict with the professional hockey seasons.

"At present teams such as the Swedes, Swiss and Russians are composed of highly skilled professional athletes," said Williamson. "No matter what you call them, you can't get around the fact."

He added: "Canada's hockey system is developing the type of hockey player that is capable of beating the Russians, but Canada is not able to use their players in the world tournament."

This inability to use her best is one of the primary reasons Canada withdrew from world competition two years ago, and is entertaining no plans of returning as long as present conditions prevail.

"The tournament now is geared to the schedules of the European national teams, when it should be built around the professional scheduling in the United States and Canada," observed the veteran U.S. coach.

Williamson, who returned from the 1971 championships in early April, asked: "After all, what are world championships without the best Canadian and American skaters? As things now stand the tournament lacks both gate appeal and prestige."

Fever Runs High at Race Tracks

OTTAWA (CP) — A meeting of federal government officials and harness horse racing associations Friday decided to study further the high incidence of swamp fever at Canadian racetracks.

More intensive investigations are planned before the department of agriculture will consider compulsory testing of all horses with the new Coggins test.

Swamp fever, or equine infectious anemia, is incurable but most horses whose test results are positive are only carriers and will never become clinically sick.

Dr. Kenneth Wells, veterinary director-general of the agriculture department discussed methods of controlling swamp fever with officials of the Canadian Trotting Association and the Quebec Harness Horsemen's Association.

Some horsemen want compensation for the forced life-long quarantine of positively-tested animals.

Dr. Wells disagreed with some horsemen and track officials who say the Coggins test is unreliable.

While the government and the CTA, which regulate harness racing, do not subsidize the testing, most major North American racetracks will not allow horses to be entered in events without proof of negative results.

Feud Finished

MONTREAL (CP) — Al MacNeil, coach of Montreal Canadiens, said Friday an incident which saw left winger John Ferguson storm from the team bench during Thursday night's National Hockey League playoff game against Minnesota North Stars is closed.

MacNeil said he met Ferguson before the team workout Friday and "as far as I'm concerned, the incident which took place last night is considered closed."

Ferguson, benched during the third period of the game, stormed from the bench into the team dressing room with 24 seconds of play left in the period. On the way, he rammed his fist into the Canadiens' stick rack.

Pittsburgh 'Stone-d'

Expos Stop Houston But Fans Don't Mind

BY HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

It has been a feast or famine week for Pittsburgh Pirates, but for Houston Astros fans, it was one big yeast feast night.

The Pirates, who socked Atlanta Braves' pitching for 17 runs in two days earlier in the week, were blanked for the third time in eight games Thursday night when San Francisco Giants' Steve Stone beat them 2-0.

The Astros, meanwhile, dropped a 3-2 decision to Montreal Expos, but the Houston fans, guzzling up beer at a nickel a cup, hardly noticed.

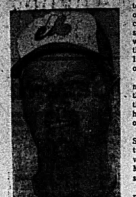
Elsewhere in the National League Friday, New York Mets struggled to edge Chicago Cubs 7-6, Philadelphia Phillies topped St. Louis Cardinals 8-6, and Los Angeles Dodgers shut out Cincinnati Reds 3-0. San Diego Padres game at Atlanta Braves were rained out.

Stone scattered five hits against the slugging Pirates and evened his first major league victory. He also drove in one of the Giant runs when he coaxed a base-loaded walk from loser Dave Walker.

Stone's victory came with 22 of his friends and relatives looking on. They made the 2,000-mile drive from Euclid, Ohio, for the game.

This is as probably a gratifying moment as I've ever experienced," the 25-year-old rookie said. "And to have it be a shutout yet. It's super exhilaration. I don't know if it could be duplicated."

Astro fans were exhilarated too by the Houston promotion offering beer for five cents a cup. Fans flooded the stadium switchboard all day asking when the gates would open, and they were still on line for beer 15 minutes after the game was over.



"It meant 16,000 more fans tonight," said Wayne Chandler, the Astro publicist, conveying the crowd of 25,439. "Yes, I have to thank them. They have another nickel-beer night."

As for the ball game, Rusty Staub rocked for Willard for a two-run homer and Carl Morton, with last out help from Mike Marshall, set Houston down on six hits for Montreal's victory.

Joe Lis and Willie Montanez ripped solo homers in the first two innings and Philadelphia topped St. Louis. Lis' homer, which broke a 6-6 tie, was his third hit of the game. Deron Johnson and Denny Doyle also homered for the Phillies and Joe Torre connected for the Cardinals.

Cleon Osteen limited Cincinnati to five hits and pitched the Dodgers past the Reds. Manny Mota, Willie Davis and Richie Allen bunched singles in the fifth inning for the only run Osteen needed. Tommy Moss and Alie walked and Steve Garvey's eight inning double produced a pair of insurance runs.

Ken Singleton's 12th inning single drove home the Mets' winning run against the Cubs. Singleton had tagged a two-run homer earlier in the see-saw game that ended with his first major league homer for Chicago.

McLain Ejected from Game

Denny; 'I Know It Was Nothing Nasty'

BY KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Denny McLain says umpire Art Frantz needs an eye examination. However, there's nothing wrong with the umpire's hearing.

The Washington pitcher chided Frantz for his calls before the plate in Friday night's game with Milwaukee and had to take an early shower.

"He used abusive language," said Frantz. "I told him to watch his language or I would throw him out. He didn't . . . and I did."

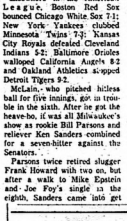
McLain's uneasy exit came in the sixth inning after the Brewers scored all the runs in their 4-0 victory.

Dennis simmered when he thought Frantz missed a strike call on a 3-2 pitch to Mike Hegan that put runners on first and second with two out. Dave May then followed another walk with a two-run double. McLain smoldered after another questioned call on Roberto Pena, who drilled a two-run single.

After the hit, McLain was banished.

"It wasn't any one pitch that got me mad," said McLain, no stranger to hot water. "Frantz was mistaken all the way from the first inning. The guy is taking money out of my mouth when he misses them in critical situations. If he's a major league umpire, he should be able to hear down when the pressure's on, just like a player does."

The controversial McLain said he "never said anything directly to Mr. Frantz until he threw me out."



What did he say then?

"I remember what I said and I know it was nothing nasty," said Dennis the Menace.

After their tete-a-tete, the exasperated right-hander strolled off the mound and fired the baseball into the stands.

That last gesture will be included in Frantz' report of the incident to baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, the umpire assured McLain, who's still on probation for other difficulties with Detroit Tigers.

The former Cy Young Award winner was traded to Washington during the winter after suspensions for involvement with gamblers, splashing sports-writers with water-and carrying a gun. He was reinstated by Kuhn after psychiatric tests showed McLain was "not ill-but "was subject to emotional stress."

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston Red Sox bounced Chicago White Sox 7-1; New York Yankees clubbed Minnesota Twins 7-3; Kansas City Royals defeated Cleveland Indians 5-2; Baltimore Orioles walloped California Angels 8-2 and Oakland Athletics stopped Detroit Tigers 9-2.

McLain, who pitched hitless ball for five innings, got in trouble in the sixth. After he got the heave-ho, it was all Milwaukee's show as rookie Bill Parsons and reliever Ken Sanders combined for a seven-hitter against the Senators.

Parsons twice retired slugger Frank Howard with two on, but after a walk to Mike Epstein and Joe Foy's single in the eighth, Sanders came into get Howard and Tom McCraw.

George Scott gave Boston a quick jump with a three-run home run in the first inning, giving the Yankees a 3-2 lead, poked a run-scoring single in the fifth and knocked out Twins' starter Bert Blyleven with a seventh-inning triple, boosting his batting average to .385.

"He just wasn't getting the curve over," said Murcer of Blyleven. "He was getting behind and had to come in with the fast ball."

Kansas City scored three fourth-inning runs, all on bases-loaded walks by Sam McDowell. Steve Kline pitched a five-hitter for New York.

Murcer slammed a two-run homer in the third inning, giving the Yankees a 3-2 lead, poked a run-scoring single in the fifth and knocked out Twins' starter Bert Blyleven with a seventh-inning triple, boosting his batting average to .385.

"He just wasn't getting the curve over," said Murcer of Blyleven. "He was getting behind and had to come in with the fast ball."

Kansas City scored three fourth-inning runs, all on bases-loaded walks by Sam McDowell, and pulled away for its victory over Cleveland. Midfielder Hewell knotted Kansas City at 1-all on his hit, but departed in the sixth after being struck by a pitch.

Dave Johnson's second home run of the game triggered a six-run ninth for Baltimore. Dave McNally scattered seven Angel hits.

Vida Blue pitched a six-hitter for Oakland, which won its 11th game in the last 12. The Athletics broke open the game in the seventh when they scored a season high of six runs. Dick Green hit a three-run homer in the big inning.

Argos Peddle Pair To Western Division

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League announced two trades Thursday that sent quarterback Tom Wilkinson to British Columbia Lions and centre Bob Swift to Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

In return, the Argos will receive a player to be named later from the Lions and centre Paul Desjardins and linebacker Pete Palmer from Winnipeg.

Wilkinson, 28, a native of Ottumwa, Iowa, joined Argos in 1967 and last season was platooned with Don Jonas in coach Lee Cahill's two-quarterback system.

Argos this month signed All-America quarterback Joe Theismann from Notre Dame, a fourth-round draft choice of Miami Dolphins of the National Football League.

Wilkinson was fifth in passing yardage among Eastern Conference passers last season with 80 passes completed out of 127 attempts for 1,289 yards, six touchdowns and a .584 percentage.

At 6-foot-3½, Wilkinson started his professional football career with Toronto Rifles of the Continental League where he was Rookie of the Year in 1966.

Swift, 26, a native of Shawinigan Falls, Que., played centre and offensive guard from Argos' the last five years after coming here in a trade from B.C. He stands 6-foot-1½ and weighs 235 pounds.

Desjardins, 6-3, 235 pounds, is a University of Ottawa graduate and has played six years with the Bombers. An Argo spokesman said the team was particularly interested in acquiring the 27-year-old centre because of his size and ability.

Palmer, a 24-year-old Toronto native, was traded to Winnipeg by the Argos at the start of last season. He can play at either linebacker or offensive and positions.

Sandra Post Elliott of Oakville, was among six players deadlocked at 74. Also at that mark were Miss Haynie and Chako Higuchi, one of three Japanese girls on the tour this year.

Bids For Squaw Valley

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A son of the late Adlai Stevenson offered to buy Squaw Valley, site of the 1960 Winter Olympic Games, from the State of California for $25,000 Friday.

The bid, the only one received, was submitted by John Fell Stevenson, a San Francisco investor and avid skier. The state can reject it.

It was well under what state officials had hoped to get for the Olympic centre, consisting of 1,220 acres of choice valley and ski run lands, the former Olympic village hotel and other buildings.

The area just west of Lake Tahoe comprises Squaw Valley State Recreation Area, run by the state at a loss of $200,000 to $300,000 a year since the 1960 Winter Games.

Lucy Casper Says:

Golf's Million Dollar Winner

ARM EXTENSION

Keeping the left arm relatively straight although not rigid, is an integral part of the correct golf swing. I'll point out a couple of advantages.

For one, the straight left arm coupled with hinging wrists serves to build up centrifugal force at impact. If you allow your left arm to collapse at any point, you will lose this "twist" at impact and also lose distance.

A second advantage of the straight left arm is that it preserves the arc of the swing. Swinging in this manner will give you the best chance of making solid contact. If you start out this way and leave the left arm comparatively straight, it will be naturally to bring the clubhead directly into the back of the ball. Let the arm collapse and you'll probably top the shot.

Jack Paces Pack

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, tied for the lead for the second consecutive days, is far from satisfied with his performance in the $ 85,000 Tournament of Champions.

"I've got to believe that I'm going to start playing better," Nicklaus said Friday after managing a one-under-par 71 for 140.

He was tied at that figure with veteran Miller Barber, who also had a 71. They had been tied at the end of 18 holes at 69.

One stroke back, at 141, was South African Gary Player, who also had a 71. Masters champ Charles Coody, who had the day's best round, a 68, and Australian Bruce Devlin, 70, were tied at 142.

Gene Littler, Dave Stockton and defending champion Frank Beard were at 143, leaving only eight players under par on the tough La Costa Country Club course, a 7,116-yard layout featuring extremely deep rough.

Toronto's George Knudson, who had a 70 Thursday, ballooned to a 76 Friday but at 146 was still tied for 11th place, just six strokes off the pace.

Arnold Palmer got into rough several times en route to a 76 including a four-over-par 40 on the front side. He was five strokes off the pace at 145.

Lacrosse Loop In Offing

The Quinte Junior Lacrosse league may have a juvenile counterpart this summer depending on the decision of a proposed Kingston entry.

"It would be a lot better than having the juveniles compete against the midgets", noted junior manager Roy Payne, "and it would be a good source of talent for our junior team."

Entries would come from Belleville, Kingston, Middleton Park and Campbellford.

Waffle Beaten Back at Convention

OTTAWA (CP) — The five and candidates made their final pitches Friday night and today one of them will become leader of a New Democratic Party that has rejected left-wing suggestions for sweeping nationalism and self-determination for Quebec.

On the eve of voting for a successor to retiring T. C. Douglas, 55, party delegates successfully turned back the thrusts of the radical Waffle group, both in policy matters and elected officers.

But Waffle's influence, which at this convention is built around the candidacy of James Laxer, 30-year-old Queen's University lecturer, is clearly evident.

Votes on several key issues indicated that the group's delegate strength has grown beyond the 20 per cent claim which it has credited generally.

On the delicate issue of Quebec's future in Confederation, a policy area that worried party officials because of high emotions and organized factions, delegates rejected by a vote of 853 to 422 a motion favoring self-determination for Quebec.

It had been strongly backed by the Waffle group, along with the 36 delegates from Quebec ridings.

There was no recorded count when the convention voted overwhelmingly to reject the Waffle suggestion for sweeping nationalization of Canadian industries. But the show of hands left no doubt about the outcome.

Delegates turned down their unquestioned support to a motion calling for the public ownership of the country's resources industries, particularly oil and gas.

With the exception of the leadership contest—which is clearly dominating this four-day biennial convention—the Quebec and public-ownership issues had been widely billed as the key issues to come before the 1,683 delegates who had assembled by late Friday.

Another 200 or so were expected before voting began on the leadership at 2 p.m. EST today.

The Quebec issue was also a key one for the five candidates who Friday night had their final opportunity to make their positions clear. All of them took part in the afternoon debate when the motions were on the floor.

As expected, Mr. Laxer came out firmly in favor of self-determination for Quebec. He was given rousing applause when he called for a new alliance between labor and the people of Canada.

But the cheers were even louder when David Lewis, now the party's deputy leader, told the convention it would be a disservice to both the party and to Canada to pass any resolution questioning the desire of all Canadians to live in harmony together.

John Harney, former party secretary for Ontario, also came out strongly against the amendment on self-determination. What Quebec really wants, he said, was covered in the main motion, which was later approved.

This motion, a compromise resolution, called for a united Canada and instructed the party's federal council to draw up an unambiguous and lasting agreement on relations between French and English Canada.

This main motion was passed, by a ridgetop majority, with a show of hands.

Ed Broadbent, MP for Oshawa-Whitby, said the union of English and French must be maintained, but added that, in the final analysis, the people of Quebec must have the right to decide their own future.

The fifth candidate, Frank Howard, MP for Skeena, said he did not question Quebec's right to make its own decision. But approval of the Waffle-sponsored amendment came close to supporting separatism. The Quebec tail would be wagging the Canadian dog.

Found Any Treasure Lately?

The most notorious treasure collector of them all, Captain Kidd, sailed from New York in pursuit of pirates and instead became one himself. He captured great riches made the mistake of sailing back to New York where he was caught and hanged in 1701.

People are still looking for Captain Kidd's treasure. Find another type of treasure by selling the family's no longer used things with an Intelligencer Want Ad. It's as easy as dialing 962-2171, matey!

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks at Life"

Starvation Diets Cause Frustration

Using the term loosely, for years I have been allergic to the periodic "diet crazes" that spread across the United States. Human nature demands quick cures. We look for and accept promises that special diets will painlessly and surely remove excess poundage. Therefore, I find it extremely reassuring to receive such letters as the following from a sensible reducer.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Hats off to the lady who realizes that it takes time and patience to take off weight. I am in the process of taking off 20 pounds that have been sneaking their way onto the scales during eight years of marriage and three children.

I started dieting last year and now six months later I am proud to say that I am three-quarters of the way on to my goal. I not only enjoyed it, I loved it. And I didn't starve myself, either. I merely had one helping of everything instead of two.

I had open-faced sandwiches for lunch with diet-soda, and instead of eggs and bacon for breakfast, I switched to a high protein cereal and fruit juice. I found I could lose two to five pounds a month. When I lost the first 10 pounds I even took a week or two off and managed to stay the same. Then I went right back to cutting down again, and continued to lose.

My feeling is that starvation diets only lead to frustration. Eventually, rapid losers return to their old eating habits and regain everything — sometimes more. The key to losing weight is changing your eating routine, automatically resisting anything edible that you know you don't need, and that you know will result in extra pounds.

I love to eat and I'm a good cook. But I have never had such a thrill as I did when I went to try on a bathing suit and didn't even have to look at the size 16s and 18s. This year I slipped into a size 12. I'll tell you, my spirits soared.

Everyone is looking for "instant" weightlessness, which is such a big mistake. If you're overweight just cut out eating things you shouldn't be eating. And don't be in a hurry!

When people realize that they can lose weight without fussing with special recipes, maintaining proper weight will cease to be such a nightmare in the American people.

For Mrs. Y.: Is knuckle-cracking seriously harmful? My husband has this awful habit. — Mrs. S.

COMMENT: Probably more harmful to the nerves of bystanders than to the joints of the knuckle-cracker.

For Mrs. L.: Unless your doctor has found some specific condition which contraindicates its use, I don't believe that six to eight glasses of water daily is "excessive drinking." In fact, I believe that most people take less liquids than they should.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My friend is worried sick because she has a positive tuberculin test. Her doctor has taken X-rays of her chest and made other examinations and all are negative. Still she is extremely anxious even though he told her: "Don't be alarmed. All it means is that you have been exposed to TB at some time in your life and have overcome the infection. Many healthy people have positive tuberculin tests." Shall she believe him? — Mrs. S.

COMMENT: Yes.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 25

Your birthday today: Your intuitive faculties and emotional sensitivity evolve in the coming year so that whatever happens means a great deal more to you and is experienced on many levels. Be stranger or unusual events are indicated, merely more intense reaction and self-indulgence in expressing it. Today's natives often do better under assumed names, and frequently are in highly confidential professions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Get an early start and put in a full day of reasonable diligence while the way is clear. Quite a few small personal home chores need your attention.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): It may seem to you that plans undertaken are not complete or headed in the right direction, but make sure before you make a fuss.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Whatever compulsive urge you have is apt to come out sporting and strong today.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Overcommitment, overscheduling come fairly easily now, with just a little impulsiveness, a bit of negligence. Find some way to cut yourself out of the usual circuit of habit.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): There are people you haven't seen for a while who would very much like to hear your voice again.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Celebrate this Sunday with as large a change of scene and mood as your situation permits.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Today brings a test of your relationships, and you'll know more of your friends. Have the charity to forgive them their shortcomings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov 21): Outward appearances are only a part of the story — look a bit deeper, express yourself a trifle more carefully.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your strength and spirit can reach out and shelter others you care about this Sunday. Share what you have at hand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Personal politics and projects fare better if left out of sight and discussion today. It's time to look and listen and learn, then ponder what you observe.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Leadership comes more readily where you do not strain for it — possibly it's better to let others carry the laurels for the time being.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): This is a splendid time for changes of habit, putting new ideas and furnishings to good use.

For April 26

Your birthday today: Setting limits and getting around previous barriers provide an undercurrent for this year's normal progress. Many vivid moments and pleasant contacts are promised, chances to make clear your beliefs and philosophy, so you will not have to rush matters — just be ready to speak when the time comes.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your luck in getting on with the world improves today, particularly if you start early and make the best of minor inconveniences along the way.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Faraway places, abstract ideas take the center stage in your thoughts. Actually, if objectively presented, some of these matters are not so farfetched after all.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Optimism rides high just before minor stumbles, can be recovered quickly. Keeping an even perspective is more important than usual.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Doubts are out of season — gather your figures, references and press resolutely forward with your main ventures.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Not all confusion is real — part of it is muddling through, and motivation. Intuition will help you thread your way through the conflict of opinions on all sides.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Nothing demanded, nothing received, so pitch in with your bid. Keep at it, concentrating on things that you know very well, high skills.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Family and social ties now come first in your life. There seems little choice to make, and nothing to fret about.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Reach for whatever you feel you have earned. Seeing everything in buoyant, broader perspective comes naturally. Move up!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Today's challenge is to present a coherent image of yourself and your program to those who are needed in its fulfilment — organize yourself and speak up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Combining your time and attention as capital resources, some old habits and present activities can be skipped with a net gain in achieving something you want to do.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Taking things for granted is so easy and likely the worst attitude to take, as well. Ask yourself what you are about, where it leads, and whether you really wish to go that way.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Open your mind and heart to old friends, share the exploration of fresh interests, new pastimes, perhaps a different job.

Americans Warned Off

Riel Diary's Future A Mystery

OTTAWA (CP) — The precise future of Louis Riel's tattered diary was as much a mystery Friday as the Metis author has been for historians since he led two rebellions on the Prairies in the last century.

The only apparent point of agreement between Dominion Archivist W. I. Smith and former MP Gene Rheaume, who bought the book at auction Thursday for $25,500, was that the diary would stay in Canada and be available to all Canadians.

Dr. Smith said in an interview the federal archives had helped to make sure of that partly by warning off potential American buyers from as far away as Texas.

He also said a group that backed Mr. Rheaume had assured him the diary would go into the archives.

Mr. Rheaume, a descendant of Metis, insisted it was his bidding at the auction in Montreal that assured the diary would stay in Canada. He said it would not be locked up in a private collection, but "there is no final word on the disposition of the diary."

Then he took off for Regina, the place where Riel was hanged in 1885. But he declined to say whether he was taking the diary with him.

The mystery is an appropriate aura for the diary of a man who has divided historians—and Canadians of his own time—into factions who see him variously as religious fanatic, political genius or simply patriotic leader of the part-French, part-Indian Metis people.

He led the Red River rebellion of 1869-70 in defence of Metis land rights near Winnipeg, fled to the United States from federal troops, then returned to lead another uprising that was crushed at the Battle of Batoche, Sask., in 1885.

It was at Batoche before the battle that the 48-page diary is said to have been written. Rediscovery of the tattered scribbler-diary, some pages missing, was announced last year by Winnipeg journalist Eric Wells.

Native Rights Given Airing

OTTAWA (CP) — The opposition seized on the issue of native rights Friday in an intensified struggle to force major changes in a government bill designed to sie out the rules for mining developments in the Yukon.

The measure, now at second-reading stage, would replace the Yukon Quartz Act, imposing new rules and higher royalties on mineral development in the territory. The debate continues Monday.

The bill also contains a provision forcing at least 50-per-cent Canadian ownership of future mining developments in the Yukon.

The opposition, led by Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon), originally attacked the bill as a weak economic device which would destroy private initiative in the north.

Added to this Friday, was Conservative and New Democrat insistence that some assurance be given by the government that Indians and Eskimos in the Yukon would receive a just share of royalties collected.

Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris), a former northern affairs minister, moved an amendment calling on the government to publicly recognize the rights of Indians and Eskimos in the north. The motion was ruled out of order.

Robert Simpson (PC—Churchill) then moved an amendment which would have killed the bill. The amendment was defeated 63 to 31, with Liberals and New Democrats voting against Conservatives and Creditistes.

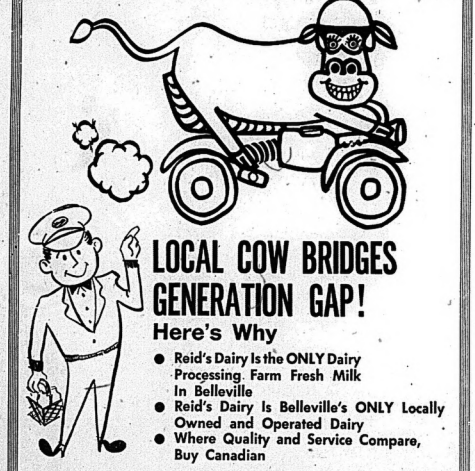
Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 150, Conservative 72, New Democrat 23, Creditiste 13, Independent 1, vacant 5.

Mr. Nielsen said the government has paid no attention whatever to the rights and privileges of native people in the Yukon. Nor would the government listen to opposition to the bill from virtually every resident of the Yukon.

Was this participatory democracy? asked Mr. Nielsen.

Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West), the only Negro MP, said he felt a certain closeness to the Indians and Eskimos of the north. They had been disregarded by the government and were totally disillusioned.

Grant Deachman (L—Vancouver-Quadra) said the bill should receive thorough study after it receives second reading and is referred to the Commons northern development committee.



Mr. Simpson called the bill an exceptionally bad piece of legislation. It gave no indication of what over-all government policy would be for mineral development.

Mr. Nielsen said the government's aim appears to be the accumulation of as much arbitrary power as possible.

Stirling Baby And Boy Killed

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Two Stirling area people — one of them a five months old baby — and a Toronto man, died in separate weekend highway accidents in the Quinte area.

The Stirling baby died Sunday afternoon in a two car accident in Seymour township north of Campbellford.

A 14 year old Stirling boy, Dennis Garfield Little, was fatally injured Friday at Trenton, while the Toronto man died at Napanee on Saturday when his car left Highway 401.

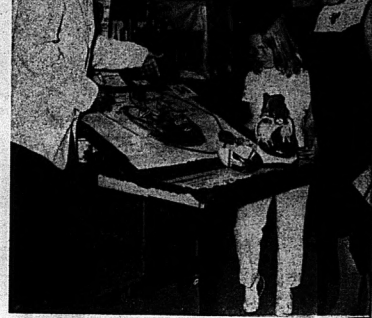
A fourth mishap in the Marmora area resulted in injuries to three other persons with one of the injured, 18-year-old Jane Goodchild of Marmora, reported in serious condition.

The Stirling baby, Vera Elizabeth Flint, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Flint, was thrown into the windshield of her father's car when it collided with another vehicle driven by James Murray McKeigan, 27 of Scarborough.

Other occupants of the two cars including the baby's mother were injured and were taken to hospital at Peterborough and Scarborough.

The first Quinte area weekend fatality occurred at Trenton when Dennis Garfield Little, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Little, RR 4 Stirling, was fatally injured as the vehicle in which he was riding left Highway 33 and rolled over into the ditch.

The boy suffered severe head injuries and died while en route to hospital in Kingston.



Driver of the car, Melvin Dempsey, 21, of Port Hope was uninjured but three other passengers were treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital for injuries.

Just before noon Saturday, Albert B. Penny, 61 of Toronto was fatally injured at Napanee when the car he was driving left the highway and rolled into the ditch.

Provincial Police said the Penny car was eastbound on Highway 401 when, at the interchange with Highway 41 north of Napanee, the vehicle left the roadway. Mr. Penny was thrown out as the car rolled into the ditch.

His wife, Ida, and two other passengers escaped serious injury.

Cementing Relations

Prof. Horace Krever (right), of the faculty of law at the University of Western Ontario was keynote speaker at a day-long seminar on community-police relations at Loyalist College Saturday. With Eric Caulfield, Loyalist teacher who co-ordinated the college's share of the program, he relaxed at the coffee break between sessions. Other sponsors of the event were the Belleville Kiwanis Club and the city police commission.

Plants Are Made to Yield Protein Instead of Sugar

Los Angeles (AP) — Scientists have discovered how to alter a plant's photosynthetic factory so that it manufactures mainly protein instead of sugars.

The discovery opens the door to exciting possibilities in the accelerating quest to find additional food supplies for mankind's burgeoning population.

Dr. James Bassham, director of chemical biodynamics at the University of California Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, described the discovery in an interview before a discussion of it today at a National Academy of Science Symposium in Washington.

"The reason this might be interesting is that scientists in other laboratories are looking into the possibility of direct extraction of protein from leaves," he said. "Such protein could become an important supplement in the diets of people in many underdeveloped

Teachers Reject Strike

TORONTO (CP) — With a strike proposal rejected by its membership, the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation Saturday offered a committee of the Ontario legislature a donation of $25,000 to investigate educational spending.

Federation President G. P. Wilkinson said his organization is prepared to donate the money to finance a study of the province's grant system by the legislature's standing committee on human resources.

Liberal education critic Timothy Reid had asked the government Thursday for $25,000 to hire independent research staff for the committee, but his request was turned aside in the legislature.

The proposed strike, which would have taken place next Monday, was suggested as a protest against provincially imposed spending guidelines on education, limiting 1971 spending to $1,090 a student.

The federation says the spending restrictions have eliminated jobs by forcing school boards to increase class sizes.

The teachers rejected a strike proposal by an overwhelming 23,812 against to 5,078 in favor. Mr. Wilkinson said 12,094 favored a province-wide work-to-rule campaign and 16,073 voted against it.

Guerrilla Tactics Advocated

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — The leaders of the rebellion in East Pakistan have ordered their forces to avoid set battles with the Pakistani army and to launch instead an underground guerilla campaign, authoritative sources reported today.

In an attempt to prevent Maoist extremists taking over he guerrilla movement, leaders of the fight are urging Awami League politicians who fled to India to return to East Pakistan to lead the battle.

Government Still Mum On Public Order Plans

OTTAWA (CP) — The Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970 is scheduled to expire Friday. Whether the government will move before then to continue the outlaw status of the Front de Liberation du Quebec remains a secret.

Neither Prime Minister Trudeau nor Justice Minister John Turner has indicated whether Parliament will be asked to extend the act—which makes it illegal to be a member of the FLQ or give it any assistance —or whether more permanent legislation is planned to deal with extraordinary instances of disorder or insurrection.

The act was introduced as a bill last Nov. 3, and became law after a month of tough parliamentary debate.

It was designed as a temporary, less powerful replacement for regulations under the War Measures Act, proclaimed to deal with Quebec's October kidnapping crisis.

But it retained extraordinary provisions for arrest without charge and detention without bail. Under the Public Order Act a person can be held for seven days without being charged, compared with 21 hours under the Criminal Code of Canada.

The April 30 expiration of the act creates problems for the government.

A letter from Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa to Mr. Trudeau, made public by Mr. Bourassa April 2, asked that the Public Order Act be replaced by permanent legislation that would keep the FLQ outlawed and provide for special police powers in time of emergency without recourse again to the War Measures Act.

However, the Bourassa letter said Quebec does "not foresee that the special measures authorized by the provisional emergency measures law will still be necessary after April 30."

In short, let the expiring act die but bring in a permanent replacement less drastic than the War Measures Act.

Conservative House Leader Gerald W. Baldwin said Friday in an interview the government faces a gap problem.

There didn't appear to be enough time to get approval for a successor bill before April 30.

Mr. Baldwin said the gap between expiration of the existing act and adoption of new legislation would remove the ban on the FLQ and there would be no extraordinary police powers available unless the War Measures Act was invoked again.

Mr. Baldwin expressed doubt the opposition will let the government extend the Public

NDP Picks New Leader

Lewis Rides to Easy Victory, But Not Until Fourth Ballot

OTTAWA (CP) — David Lewis today steps into the House of Commons as leader of the New Democratic Party, two days after winning the title at a convention which barred some of the pressing party problems he now must tackle.

On the fourth and final ballot Saturday, it was an easy victory for the 61-year-old Toronto lawyer who put down the strongly-nationalistic James Laxer, 29, by a margin of 1,046 votes to 612.

But it wasn't a clear-cut shoo-in as the votes of defeated candidates shifted uncertainly among the survivors.

Mr. Lewis' victory became a foregone conclusion only when John Harney, 40-year-old Toronto professor, failed to overtake Mr. Laxer on the third ballot and was therefore dropped from the competition.

This polarized the final battle between the so-called party establishment candidacy of Mr. Lewis and the mostly young, radical and left-wing Waffle group supporting Mr. Laxer.

For Other Stories on the NDP Convention
See Page 20

The outcome of such a confrontation was never in doubt, even to the most ardent Waffle workers.

But the fact that 612 of the 1,658 final-voting delegates opted for Mr. Laxer, an articulate Queen's University lecturer, focused the party's attention on one of the biggest problems Mr. Lewis must deal with as party leader.

In taking over from T. C. Douglas, Mr. Lewis said he had "no intention of instituting a purge" but that he will talk with Mr. Laxer and see whether the Waffle group will cease being a party within a party.

In a Sunday news conference, the new leader discounted suggestions that Mr. Laxer's 612 votes were all Waffle supporters —he said Mr. Laxer's first-ballot support of 778 votes would better indicate the actual Waffle strength at the convention—but he acknowledged it was a force to be reckoned with.

If the left-wing group continued its activities as an organized and disciplined faction the membership of the party as a whole would react and deal with the situation.

The apparent growing strength of the Waffle faction, and the potential problems of party disunity, tended to dominate Mr. Lewis' post-victory news conference. At one point the new leader, said, in effect, he had enough questions on the subject.

"The Waffle is an organization of its own. I am the leader of the NDP, and I don't intend to spend any time talking about the Waffle, I am not going to be articulating any policies of the Waffle. I will spend my time talking about the policies of the NDP."

He said he felt Mr. Laxer was honest and sincere in asking delegates to unite behind Mr. Lewis' leadership. The new leader said he would be happy to see both Mr. Harney and Mr. Laxer in Parliament.

Although considered a front-runner from the moment he entered the campaign, and a winner by a comfortable majority at the end, Mr. Lewis had some anxious moments Saturday as the ballots were being counted.

He had expected more than 700 votes on the first ballot. Instead he received 661. Mr. Laxer had 378, Mr. Harney 299, Ed Broadbent, MP for Oshawa-Whitby, 238, and Frank Howard, MP for Skeena, 121. Mr. Howard's name was dropped from the ballot.

On the second round, Mr. Lewis moved up to 715. Mr. Laxer climbed to 407, Mr. Harney to 347 and Mr. Broadbent was dropped out of the contest when he fell back to 223 votes.

There were strong fears in the Lewis camp that on the next ballot, Mr. Harney might move ahead of Mr. Laxer and thus establish a finale in which positions were not clearly polarized. The outcome, everyone agreed, would not be certain.

But Mr. Laxer remained in second place with 742 votes compared with Mr. Harney's 431, Mr. Lewis had 742.

When Mr. Harney's name was dropped, most of his supporters voted for Mr. Lewis on the final ballot.

How the Voting Went

Hastings Teachers Plan Close Eye on Spending

Ontario's teachers have rejected strike action over the quality of education in the province, but Hastings division of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation will be keeping "a close watch on matters that brought about the vote".

Their president, Clifford Dell of Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc, said this morning that spending ceilings imposed by the government "will erode the quality of education in some parts of Ontario — we must see that it doesn't happen in Hastings county."

OSSTF's Hastings division will be making recommendations on priorities to the board of education, especially regarding raising of the pupil-teacher ratio and elimination of courses such as special education and driver training.

"These are costly and might be the first to go," said Mr. Dell.

This county is "one of the few areas to maintain its present pupil-teacher ratio" (17.5 to 1 in secondary school) he said. But he indicated that it might be raised next year if ceilings remain in force or are lowered.

Mr. Dell denied the suggestion that the province-wide rejection of strike or work-to-rule action indicated a split in the ranks of the federation, with the provincial executive lining up on the side of militancy and the rank - and - file teachers marshalling their forces against it.

"This was not a vote for or against OSSTF," he said. "It was a vote for a particular course of action. The action of the provincial executive in calling the vote did get results and this is probably one of the reasons teachers voted against the strike or work to rule action."

The results he referred to were the revitalizing of the human resources committee of the provincial legislature to hear from OSSTF, the decision to launch an investigation of educational costs and priorities, and the formation of a task force on educational financing. The task force will be headed by former deputy minister of education, Dr. J. R. McCarthy, who held office at the time the ceilings were imposed by his superior, former education minister, now premier, William Davis.

Three Die

A two-car collision on Highway 7 west of Marmora resulted in injuries to three persons, one of them reported in serious condition in Belleville General Hospital with head and chest injuries.

Provincial police said the Marmora accident involved cars driven by Carlisle Robinson, 18, of Toronto, and Donald Kidd, 22 of Marmora, which collided on Highway 7 west of Marmora.

Miss Goodchild, one of the passengers, is in serious condition in Belleville General Hospital with head and chest injuries.

Robinson is in fair condition with head and pelvic injuries, while Dwane Johnston, 22, of Napanee who suffered head injuries was said to be in satisfactory condition.

Both vehicles were extensively damaged.

Students Invited to Attend Conference on Environment

The Straight Goods, first youth conference on environmental problems will be held at Laurentian University, Sudbury, June 3-5.

Ontario secondary schools are being asked to send one delegate from either Grades 11 or 12 to the conference with expected attendance of students to reach about 600.

Hon. George Kerr said: "Students have complained that it is difficult for them to get to the heart of our environmental problems and this conference will give students that opportunity by exposing them to an impressive array of experts in all fields". Mr. Kerr will head the new department of the environment when it is officially established by the legislature.

Well known speakers will deliver short papers and the emphasis will be placed on panel discussions with plenty of time for questions and answers.

Each secondary school is expected to provide its delegate with transportation and accommodation at a cost of $5.

This money can be raised by involving students in organizing a dance or other fund-raising campaigns. One condition for the chosen delegate is that he return to school in the fall prepared to be the school's pollution expert.

Interested students may get applications from their principal.

New Liquor Store Planned for Deseronto

The town of Deseronto is to have a new liquor store to replace the present rented quarters in the Jackson Hardware store building on Main Street.

The Liquor Control Board of Ontario is calling for tenders for construction of the 3,000 square foot one-storey structure to be erected at the corner of Edmond and St. George Streets.

Cost of the structure with air conditioning is estimated at between $80,000 and $90,000.

Chester Woods Associates Ltd. of Belleville, representing Toronto architect R. J. Thom, who is calling bids, said tenders will be opened May 7. A mid-summer completion date for the new store is hoped for.

Man Fined $25 For Inteference

William Kenneth Naylor, 22, of 14 Hunswood Drive, was fined $25 and $3 court costs Thursday when he was found guilty of obstructing a police officer while in the performance of his duty.

Police officers testified Naylor objected when William Hunter was being placed under arrest April 3 after an altercation at the Minute Lunch on Dundas Street at 2 a.m. Constable Jack O'Donnell testified he was "pushed and shoved by a man later identified as William K. Naylor".

The defendant testified he had come to the rescue of Hunter because he "saw an injustice" was being committed. Judge T. Y. Wills admitted "this man is perfectly frank and perfectly straightforward" but said he was wrong in his interference.

The case against Hunter was withdrawn.

Banner Day

Flags almost flew at half staff before the Hastings County building on Pinnacle Street this week-end.

Carl Bateman, administrator for the county, observed two men at the flag poles attempting to remove the banners. The administrator apprehended one man the second made good his escape.

Before the captor was able to deliver his charge to the police station, however, the man made a run for it. A second citizen's arrest followed.

Police this morning reported Robert Stanley Clark, 23, of 33½ Isabel Street, has been charged with attempted theft.

Tape Player Battery Stolen

James Burkitt of 37 Moira Street East found it a bit difficult to start his car. On Saturday morning upon investigation he found his battery had been stolen.

A tape player and 12 tapes, valued at $150, were removed from a car belonging to Dennis Whalen of 155 North Park Street Saturday evening. The car was apparently entered when it was parked beside the Whalen residence.

No Word On Plans

Order Act by Friday or have a new law.

Other options would leave a similar gap. Possibilities discussed by opposition members include the government proposing that a bill be sent directly to the Commons justice committee, offering an alternative without the government being committed to it.

The committee would be able to pick holes in the government's wording and hear witnesses and the government would be able later to sponsor an altered bill.

Or it could introduce a motion to have the justice committee study the matter and base legislation on the committee report.

One unanswered question is why the government has delayed action.

Mr. Trudeau may have expected Mr. Bourassa to support him in asking for an extension of the Public Order Act. On the same day that Mr. Bourassa announced he didn't want an extension, Mr. Trudeau was starting in Niagara Falls, Ont. that he expected Mr. Bourassa to ask for one.

Mr. Baldwin says the cabinet is divided. Twice last week he asked the government House leader, Allan MacEachen, whether the cabinet had resolved its differences yet.

A Liberal backbencher from Quebec said privately that whatever happens, it is not expected to be created by the delay will be an embarrassing one.

"We now have an act that allows a person to be sentenced for being a member of the FLQ, even if he was a member before Oct. 16, when the organization was declared illegal.

"If the act expires without a replacement, we could have a situation whereby a person who is being tried for being a member of the FLQ when it was legal, yet illegal is convicted at a time when being a member of the FLQ is no longer illegal."

Luv Moves Downtown

'Too Often Disrespect for Law Transferred to Police Force'

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

No crisis exists in the relationship between the police and the community — whatever tension or evident is the symptom of a basic malaise in society.

This is the opinion of Professor Horace Krever, of the faculty of law, University of Western Ontario, keynote speaker at a seminar Saturday on police - community relations.

The all - day seminar was sponsored by the Belleville Kiwanis Club, city police and the police commission and Loyalist College.

The general malaise in society the professor defined as being a decline in citizens' readiness to submit to commands of authority, awareness of the hypocracy of lip service to but no action on the concepts of the dignity and equality of all men and the "institutional inertia" of various parts of the social structure.

"Some of the values and institutions which law supports must be changed or eliminated entirely," said Prof. Krever.

Until then, he intimated, the policeman, "an easy and obvious target", will never be a popular officer.

"Disrespect for the law is transferred to those who enforce it," he said.

The professor warned the 110 people in attendance not to expect any positive results in terms of enactment of recommendations to come from the seminar. Police officers, representatives from schools, social agencies and the legal profession were among the invited guests.

"I don't see my role as giving answers. I'm more interested in exploring problems," he said. "You have explored attitudes and communicated. You can't expect more of the conference than that."

Legislation to change unpopular "values and institutions" in the law now supports will not come quickly as the activists would like, Prof. Krever warned.

"Legislators want to be re-elected. It takes a long time for them to be persuaded that people want change," he said, citing abortion on demand as an example. "The politician's are not yet persuaded that the majority of electors want it."

As further examples he mentioned the prohibition laws of the 1920s designed to stamp out alcohol that were openly flouted.

Similarly, he said "the legislative attempt to stamp out marijuana is an almost insoluble problem, given the wide-spread conviction that it should not be against the law." There has never been a successful attempt to put pornographers out of business, he added, suggesting that "perhaps pornography is not the business of the law."

A major deficiency in society is its general unwillingness to treat the courts as "agents of government in need of updating", the guest speaker said.

"The mystery and magic of this priesthood of lawyers, the majesty and mystery of Her Majesty's courts, are indefensible in this age of rational thinking and participatory democracy," the professor charged.

The public has too narrow a concept of Justice, Prof. Krever said. The results are not important, but the means of arriving at the results are.

"The result is often secondary," he said. "If a statement is obtained by duress, even if it is true, it is not admitted in court and the accused is acquitted. The means by which we arrive at a result is most important."

"How can an honest lawyer live with himself if he uses his skills to get an acquittal for a person he knows is guilty?" he asked and answered: "The state must prove the guilt of those it would deprive of freedom."

Professor Krever hit at the community's attitude toward its police and said officers have a thankless job.

"When a crime is committed, the public is willing to confer any amount of police power until the guilty person is apprehended, by permitting searches without warrants among other things," he said. "But when the person is apprehended the police are evil doers who must be restrained."

The police display an occupational bias against change, the speaker claimed, often scorning the humanitarian view.

"We could eliminate much more criminal activity than we do now if we became a totalitarian state," said Prof. Krever. "This condition would be purchased at the cost of our civil liberties. In times of crisis we are willing to forego our traditional liberties. The question is: are we in a time of crisis today?"

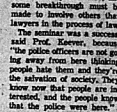
Following Prof. Krever's speech, listeners split into small groups for discussion of the points he raised. They gathered again in the afternoon to present their decisions and subject them to criticism by the professor.

Spokesmen for two groups criticized the media for fostering poor attitudes toward police by publishing and televising pictures of police brutality, especially in the United States.

But Prof. Krever said "you are looking for a scapegoat; the papers reflect what people are thinking or do they influence what people are thinking?"

He rapped suggestions that citizens' groups be formed to "aid" in police work, saying they would become vigilante groups. He was equally critical of the idea of giving police departments consultative rights and the power of veto in the formation of laws.

"The police do not reflect the attitude of the public," he said. "The police have consistently condemned the government for not hanging more people."



At the same time, he indicated strong support for education in the law.

"We have no course in the schools through which someone who is not going to be a lawyer can learn what the judicial process is all about," he said. "People concerned about educating youth on their rights and law write pamphlets that assume a confrontation. I'm not sure that's good and that such pamphlets should be distributed to all.

What little law is presently in school is learning by rote — things that are pure memory work and have no relevance to students."

The groups agreed that more youth officers are needed on the local police force, and some breakthrough must be made to involve others than lawyers in the process of law.

The seminar was a success, said Prof. Krever, because "the police officers are not going away from here thinking people hate them and they're the salvation of society. They know now that people are interested, and the people know that the police were here."

Decision on Future on May 17 Whitney Tells Ameliasburg PCs

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Correspondent

AMELIASBURG — Norris Whitney, MPP for Prince Edward - Lennox is giving a lot of serious thought to the idea of retiring from active politics.

He termed the decision he'll have to make before long "the greatest of my lifetime" when speaking to the annual meeting and election of officers of the Ameliasburg Conservative Association, Friday night.

Apparently he intends it to be one of his best kept secrets. The veteran at Queen's Park, with 20 years continuous service as riding representative this coming November, dropped no hints contrary to seeking election for a sixth term.

And his fellow MLA and close friend Dr. Richard Potter (Quinte), present as a head table guest, seemed as much in the dark as anyone, although he suggested Mr. Whitney's constituents (Dr. Potter by living in the township qualifies as one), should be concerned "as to what is your member is going to do in the future".

"I'm like the rest of you, waiting for the meeting when he (Mr. Whitney) decides to tell us," Dr. Potter revealed.

Speculation heightened, however, when Mr. Whitney referred to the possibility of a provincial election in the offing. "I expect an election perhaps later this year or next. The main thing I see is we all want to return a Conservative member to this riding. It would be unthinkable not to."

He pointed out that while his record showed he had been successful in all five election cries there are some people worried about his future as a politician.

"Liberals would like to know for their meeting May 5 but they're not going to," he stated firmly.

Then he announced he would make known his plans at the annual meeting of the Conservative Association with Premier William Davis attending. The meeting is being held at Picton, Monday, May 17.

With federal MP Lee Grills and the two provincial MPP's and the two provincial MPP's turning out here for the annual meeting, the Conservatives appeared to be increasing activity in the township at this time.

In the election for the association's executive the following were returned to serve a second term: Earl Onderdonk, president; Morris Fulmer, first vice-president; Mac Wallbridge, second vice-president, and Elmer Young, secretary-treasurer.

Offices, Lockup to Be Added To Picton Fire Hall Site

PICTON (Staff) — Town councillors have rejected the former Mary Street school as a possible site for police offices and lockup facilities. A decision to consider additions to the Picton fire hall instead was reached through a close recorded vote. Plans examined by council during a special meeting last week included lockup facilities, an additional bay to the fire hall, and an area for town administrative offices measuring about 1800 square feet.

Picton reeve Albert Piroth opposed council's decision arguing that he did not feel the town has explored to the fullest "every existing building it owns." He suggested that the cost figure for the additions proposed for the fire hall could be more than the $75,000, expected by council. Mr. Piroth also noted that a projection of Picton's capital costs made within the past year which includes Main Street School as a lockup and office site, recorded a cost estimate of $50,000.

Picton mayor Margaret Ackerman remarked that council had supported a motion to sell the former school property and revenue from this sale could be applied to the cost of additions to the fire hall.

She added that renovation of the old school, according to figures supplied to council, would cost $30, per square foot. This would result in an estimated final cost of $150,000. Mr. Piroth referred this estimate inaccurate and suggested, "Why not at least get costs for the Mary Street site?"

Car Crash Hurts Couple

A Madoc couple escaped serious injury early Sunday morning when their car went out of control and struck a hydro pole on North Front Street.

Arthur H. Parsons sustained lacerations to his right forehead and nose, and his wife Betty received a bruised knee and forehead. The couple was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital.

Sixteen Projects Submitted by Youth

In response to the Opportunities for Youth Program, sponsored by the federal government, there have been 16 projects submitted from Hastings and Prince Edward counties, primarily from the city of Belleville, James Staveley of Canada Manpower said today.

The average cost of these projects is about $10,000. The total figure for all the projects said Mr. Staveley, works out to be one half of one percent of the funds made available for the country.

This figure implies, said Mr. Staveley, that each project is asking for an extremely small portion of the grant.

Speaking for the Belleville and District Employment committee, Mr. Staveley said: "Judging from the calibre of the projects and the manner in which they were submitted, we, the committee, will be very surprised and disappointed if all the projects are refused."

The committee will do all it can in the event that the projects are not accepted, to locate funds locally in an attempt to enable the organizers of the projects to proceed, said Mr. Staveley.

THE TUG OF WAR

Imports Hurt

We have sympathy with the apple growers who are said to be having a difficult time because of imports from Australia while that country has set up barriers to prevent import the fruit into its markets.

Agriculture Minister Olson says there has been several government inter-departmental meetings on the subject, but we imagine the apple growers would prefer action to talk.

In the import-export business surely it is desirable to organize things between countries that each gets from the other products that are in short supply at home. In other words Canadian and Australian apple growers supply their own home markets? We can stand our taking peaches, apricots, pineapples — that sort of thing — from "down under," but not a perfectly good home product — apples, except maybe in winter when the domestic product may be in short supply.

Moreover, what about the whole range of Canadian imports which in many instances merely affects home manufacturers. One can buy anything here from clothing and gardens to children's toys, and inexpensively at that, which have originated in eastern Europe or the Orient, to the detriment of the home economy, job availability and all the rest of it. There is much that we should be manufacturing and selling ourselves but, unfortunately, are not.

Ulster Makes Progress

If there is still lingering discontent in Northern Ireland it should be remembered that political and religious strife is not the principal cause of the majority of the population of Ireland and a quarter in that part of the country.

A contemporary issue of Ulster Commerce furnishes proof of this and of continued economic progress there. On May 14 the Ulster Exhibition will be opened. Marking the 50th anniversary of its establishment as a self-governing unit of the United Kingdom that the exhibition will be opened by the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Percy Studdi, who spent his early years in Ballymoney, County Antrim.

Sir Peter, whose mother was an Ulsterman, doubtless knows that epigram of little or ditty which goes like this: "If you were no Ballymena with your Ballymoney you'd but buy a Ballycastle for your Ballyholme.") He of course are place names and Ballyclare (a suburb of Bangor) is pronounced as some" while "bally" is used as a mild swear.

But to return to the Ulster economy, exfor 1949 totalled £689 million, an increase of more than 12 per cent over the previous year. Exports in 1949 totalled £61 million, an increase of 50 per Meanwhile Ulster trade missions are visiting Australia, New Zealand, Japan and Hong and these follow an extensive European by Minister of Commerce Roy Bradford. any, which was one of the countries visitalready has nine plants in Northern

With oil exploration very much in the these days, the £85,000 'snow sleighs' factured by Camco, a U.S. firm with headin Downabbey, near Belfast, represents an dollar earner for Ulster. The company is oilwell equipment and the snow sleighs, were designed and built at the Newtownplant, permit the control of oil flow 25 wells. Why the use of the term 'snow is' is not explained, but another of the developments is an electronic measurevice which can measure and control the of various materials. Orders for this have received from Argentina and Yugoslavia.

Thus life goes on in Northern Ireland, as tably does the world over despite wars umors of war and the dire predictions of l man.

Church Unity in Action

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

We talk about the need for Christian unity but do we seize the opportunity for action when it arises?

Members of Bridge Street United Church are responsible for the forthcoming performance of Elijah. Their choir is augmented by choristers from many city churches. This is Christian unity in action. Will the audience be representative of this unity, too?

Let us not forget that Elijah was an Old Testament prophet. It would be wonderful if Christians, as well as Jews, joined together for this musical portrait from our common heritage.

AN AUGMENTED CHORISTER

A Look at an Average Citizen

Editor,
The Intelligencer

First of all let's meet Mr. Average Joe Belleville. He's the fellow in the moderate house down the street; the usher at your church; the coach of the minor sports team your boy plays for; the leader of a Scout Troop of Cub Packs.

Joe is about 27-30 years of age; married and the father of three young, happy children. They attend classes at one of the fine schools we have in Belleville.

Like a lot of us, Joe has a hobby. He collects stamps, plays the tuba or perhaps grows prizewinning roses.

And like a lot of other people, Mr. Joe Belleville works odd hours — a good deal of the time, shift work.

Mrs. Joe is a good neighbor. She is your friend, but minds her own business. She is the one who always returns that borrowed cup of sugar.

Yes, the average Joe and Mrs. Belleville are pretty nice people.

Most of the time most people like Joe. Call for him and "good old Joe" will come running. He's the kind of guy to whom people take their troubles.

Now let's take another look at the same Joe Belleville.

A lot of the time people just do not seem to like Joe at all . . . sometimes they swear at him. There is not a day goes by that at least 15 people suddenly find that they have a "filthy tongue" — and aim it right at Joe.

Sometimes people try to hurt him. Joe Belleville has been spat upon, punched and kicked and maybe even shot at. People tear his clothes, threaten his life, and often are sick all over his nice blue suit.

Because of this, there are times when Joe Belleville wishes he were someone else, doing something different for a living.

But does Joe really mind? Yes, now and then. Particularly when people refuse to understand that as a police officer, he is only upholding the law created for and by those very same people.

H. CALDWELL.

Pedestrian Safety
North Front Street Bridge

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In this day and age I would suggest that there should be some limit to our homage to Aphrodite, goddess of beauty, and policy, the way to make things run smoothly. According to the newspaper article, Bridge Railings to be Studied (April 6) some aldermen find the thought of a chain link fence on the CN North Front Street Bridge aesthetically offensive and what is more they seem to overall consider the point that there is not a local municipal policy to handle the situation.

It seems that both beauty and policy are going to have much to do with whether a protective railing is installed. I wonder how many aldermen have walked over the bridge at rush hours? I wonder how many have had the opportunity to feel the windwash of cars driven by drivers who think they are in the Minneapolis 500? I wonder how many have felt the split-second moments of disorientation as the roaring transport trucks pass right by your ear? I wonder how many have barely thought about how many inches there are between the pedestrian and a quick trip to eternity on the bridge?

Apparently one young lad has been injured when he ran into the side of a bus. It is not difficult to understand how a young child, who often acts out his phantasy life and who has little appreciation of death, could become an accident statistic. On this bridge there is no room for error.

I would suggest that rather than submit to the demands of aesthetic taste or search for policy, that a controlled investigation of the pedestrian-vehicular traffic on this bridge be undertaken.

What price safety? An adult's life? A child's life? Half a child? Personally, I think politicians have a right to cross that bridge in relative safety.

Arsenic Pollution Problem
Moira Lake Tourist Operators Face Loss of Livelihood

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Congratulations to Ian Robertson on a report well-written in the April 21 issue of The Intelligencer of Deloro - Madoc Authorities Up in Arms Over Arsenic.

We have heard quite a bit on this subject in the past from Deloro, OWRC, the Public Health authorities and their respective representatives. We have heard the comments of the public in general; statements such as 'it's too bad about the Lake' or 'Such a pretty Lake'; 'Isn't it a shame', etc.

Now the people most concerned are being heard. People who stand to lose everything they have worked for, if they have not lost it already. The commotion raised by this subject so far has been only a whisper compared to what will be heard if concrete action is taken immediately or sooner! Reports, surveys, studies and promises do not feed and support families, or meet financial commitments made by the people of this area who depend almost exclusively on the Lake and related tourist traffic for their livelihoods.

"We do not see any specific problem", said Dr. Laird, and we admit we have taken this out of context, but if there is not a big enough problem in cleaning it, not only the arsenic, but all the disastrous side effects of this mess, we have a few 'specific problems' that will keep even Dr. Lenk occupied. Since we have been forced to close the doors of the business that supplied our bread and butter, most of the problems begin with a capital 'I'. We'll be happy to let him take them off our hands.

Cottage owners on Moira Lake have been subjected to the pressures of the Health Department's regulations to install costly septic systems which are used only a couple of months each year; yet for 13 years arsenic, in almost lethal amounts has been pouring into the river and lake with the admitted knowledge of the authorities. There must be a commitment to some amendment to some bill that we have never heard of; something that states 'if you make just a little mess—clean it up; if you make a big mess in that's City,' just forget it. Maybe it will go away.' This all appears to us to be just another case of 'hit the small business owner and private individual but leave the big industries alone.' Admittedly, the little fellow is always the easier mark.

Maybe Mr. Vogt can afford to sit back and wait for all the arsenic to sink to the bottom of the lake or float down stream but we imagine cottage owners will be extremely hungry by then. Also, we cannot see all the citizens of Tweed and Belleville sitting on the shores of the Moira River, waiting to welcome this plague to their waters. If it is reported to be 'going down the watercourse' undoubtedly will pass through both communities.

As for the McLaren report, perhaps if it is thickened up a little, the paper it is written on could be put to some useful purpose; filters for something? garbage wrappings? We have no doubt but by the time any action is taken on it, even if its recommendations are adequate, the losses to business and property values on Moira Lake would be past recouping.

This 'camel' has had its back broken, and 'no straw!' After all the adverse publicity, which has some people afraid to even put their boats in, for 'poison water', the Department of Lands and Forests, a branch of the same Ontario Government as the OWRC has sent us a total of $1,362.50 in Fishing Licences to sell to fishermen who won't be here this summer to catch fish they couldn't eat anyway.

Pollution Issue at Moira Lake

Editor,
The Intelligencer

On Wednesday, The Intelligencer quoted our Medical Officer of Health for the Two Counties of Hastings and Prince Edward, Dr. C. R. Lenk, as follows:

"Part of the arsenic (in the Moira watershed) comes from natural sources and the build-up of arsenic wastes in the Moira Lake is only partly the responsibility of the Deloro Company."

In the report of a biological survey of the Moira River by C. E. Owen and D. L. Galloway of the biology branch, Division of Laboratories, Dept. of Lands and Resources Commission carried out between July 19 and Aug. 10, 1967, to evaluate water quality in the Moira River and major tributaries and to assess the effects of specific industrial wastes and domestic waste discharges on aquatic biota, and published late in the summer of 1968, it was summarized, and stated: "Major impairment of population include arsenic contamination originating from the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, Limited, at Deloro." How can Dr. Lenk make such statements blaming natural chemists have definitely reported to the contrary? And why would our Government issue a ministerial order to this company to stop arsenic escapes from its Deloro property to the river?

I further quote the report: "Mean concentrations of arsenic in water samples collected from the river below Deloro and from the Moira Lake were 0.28 parts per million (ppm) and 0.16 ppm, respectively, whereas, no arsenic was detected in samples taken upstream of Deloro.

"While concentrations of arsenic in river sediments were considerably lower in 1967 than in 1958, the sediments showed a significant increase in mean concentrations from 26 ppm in '58 to 437 ppm in '67. Also, arsenic concentrations appeared to become more widely distributed in the system, extending downstream into Stoco Lake (mean concentration in sediments of 85 ppm at four stations) in 1967, whereas no arsenic was detected in sediments of the eastern basin of Moira Lake in 1958. These findings illustrate the potential hazard associated with the buildup of arsenic in the two lakes and the corresponding protection afforded the downstream section of the Moira River."

Recreational use of the Moira watershed is of prime importance. The Moira Lake provides quality angling for walleye, smallmouth bass, muskellunge and perch, as does Stoco Lake at Tweed. Right tourist establishments are located on Moira Lake, which are substantially dependent on angling clientele for their successful operation.

A cursory evaluation of levels in perch, bass and walleye revealed a mean concentration of 0.28 ppm in whole fish and 0.06 ppm in flesh. With the safe limit count at 0.05 ppm, these fish are hardly safe for human consumption. It is reported that ingestion of 130 mg of arsenic causes death in human beings and 10 mg is sufficient to produce symptoms of acute toxicity.

Although the possibility of acute toxic effects seems remote, in view of these findings, I would think that the consumption of game fish from these waters would warrant further investigation by health authorities.

The report shows an arsenic content reduction in river substrates, but a significant increase and wider distribution in lake sediments in both the Moira and Stoco Lakes. This suggests a downstream translocation of arsenic tied up in the bottom materials.

Comments in the report state: "The arsenic contents in sediments of Moira Lake and perhaps Stoco Lake has increased substantially over the period from 1958 to 1967.

The answer to the problem in the Moira waters is to end arsenic seem to be to change the water course away from this potent poison entirely and contain the poison in a small area completely away from the water.

It has been reported by our Health department that the arsenic getting into the river defies health regulations.

Moreover, why was it necessary to build the new Camp Quin-Mo-Lac and find a new water supply, when none of the rest of us were notified?

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Forty-one Kiwanians, most of them from Belleville, left by bus for Watertown to join with the Kiwanis club of that city. The trip was organized by Dick Lazzar.

A definite decision to proceed with the development of Zwick's Island in cooperation with the parks board was reached at the regular meeting of the Optimist Club. The approval of district officials was received after Henry J. Fire originating in the insulation of the cooking room from a stove which had been lighted to take away dampness, completely gutted Sidney Town Hall Cheese Factory at Wallbridge. Foam Home Latest Thing

Foam Home

A foam house of the future built by West Point Pepperell in West Point, Georgia, represents a new concept in environmental living. This house was created by foaming a fabric with liquid urethane and foaming six dome shapes and one tunnel shape and attaching them together. Windows are not standard, they are mostly free form, since they must conform to the cave-like wall-ceilings. (CP Photo)

Sun Dish

The sun dish is the focal point of much informal lounging in the foam home. Because of its shape, which makes it act as a reflector, this upside down dome is used for sun-bathing, picknicking or reading and the inside maintains the same temperature all the time because urethane foam is an insulating materials. With its hills and dales, the sun dish offers many vistas and corners in which to sit. (CP Photo)

Occupants Escape 25-Mile Car Chase

PICTON (Staff) — Members of the Picton Police Department are searching for the driver of a stolen car which crashed into a stone wall on Bridge Street after a 25-mile police chase early today.

The car, stolen in Toronto, was pursued from Belleville to Picton by Constable Thomas Stone of the Belleville Police Department. Const. Stone had attempted to halt the car earlier in Belleville, to inform its driver that a headlight on the vehicle was burned out.

The driver pulled away from the police cruiser and was chased into Picton. Members of the Picton detachment of the OPP and the Picton Police Department were alerted. A cruiser belonging to the Picton OPP was stationed in Bloomfield village but failed to intercept the speeding car.

The chase ended abruptly when the driver lost control of the vehicle and crashed into a stone wall on Bridge Street while attempting a right turn on Main Street east.

Constable Donald Camp of the Picton Police Department estimated damage to the stolen car at $1,000.

The driver escaped on foot and is still being sought by police. Constable Camp said that it is believed there were two passengers in the vehicle during the chase, and that they too remain at large.

Student Seamstresses Show New Fashions At Albert College

Sixteen skilled young seamstresses modelled their own handiwork at "sparkle and glow" a fashion show held on Saturday night and repeated on Sunday afternoon at Albert College as part of their Open House festivities. The high - fashion ensembles which were made by the girls during their leisure time from McCalls patterns and materials bought at Fenhoro Fabrics ranged from sophisticated formals to carefree casuals, with background music provided by Mrs. Bessie Franklin and a running commentary by Mrs. Carol Lyons, the girls paraded before a gathering of parents and friends in costumes that could compare quite favorably with store - bought fashions.

Elegant floor - length gowns were modelled by Maureen Hannon, Marty Jean McDowall and Elinora Klinghofer. One of the highlights of the show was an African caftan modelled by Mary Wilson of Ghana. The graceful simplicity of its smock - flowing lines set off by direction the wild, untamed beauty of its authentic African print.

The midi made its appearance in a blue and white plaid coat worn by Carolyn Bircher and in a sunshine yellow polyester skirt - and - printed - blouse ensemble worn by Dianne Gedge.

An eyecatching "costume" effect was achieved by Barbara Berry in a light weight gaucho suit with blue mid length pants and black accessories including a sombrero hat. Other pantsuits shown were a polyester crochet knit in immaculate white worn by Debra Lucas, and a strawberry pink polyester cord one modelled by Elizabeth Davies. Lynn Williamson and Ramona Cleland showed off jumpsuits, one in navy blue stretch terry and the other in printed silk crepe.

The irrepressible mini was modelled by Gloria Bean whose version was a cape and skirt ensemble and by Pat Gorazdowska whose dress was in an easy - care cotton fabric.

Cindy Morton and Shelagh Hinnon provided a glimpse of the carefree, sunny days ahead by modelling a tennis ensemble and a swimsuit teamed with a matching cover up. Julie Spiegel evoked vision of slumber parties and pretty bedrooms in her ultra-feminine pajama outfit accented with lacy - ribbed cotton.

The show was convened by Mrs. Ola Jones under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Christensen, Dean of women at Albert College who co - ordinated all the activities connected with Open House.

High School Couturieres

Dianne Gedge, Pat Gorazdowska and Barbara Berry, three of the 16 models who displayed outfits which they made for the Albert College fashion show held on Saturday and Sunday, as they prepared for the show. Midis, minis and a number of other high-fashion outfits were featured at the show which was convened by Mrs. Ola Jones under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Christensen, as one of the open house activities.

— WELL DONE — David Lewis, national leader of the New Democratic Patry chosen at the party's convention in Ottawa receives a hug from his wife after his final speech.

NDP Leader's Wife Remains Reasonably Calm

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. David Lewis stood the goldfish bowl atmosphere at the New Democratic Party leadership race with aplomb, even when the voting went into four ballots.

After the third, she said: "I'm quite calm. Maybe I'll feel it later but I'm quite calm, it's not an act.

"Win or lose, I win. If he wins, that's wonderful. If he doesn't, maybe I can have him for myself. I've been trying to for years, this man whom I adore."

The Lewises showed their usual family solidarity during the hours of tension Saturday.

Sons Stephen and Michael were helping direct the convention campaigning. Stephen is Ontario NDP leader. Daughters Janet and Nina and all the spouses were there.

Even Stephen's daughter Ilana, 5, and son Avi David, 3, were in the winner's booth, tooting toy horns in celebration and obeying their mother's instructions to "give grandpa a good luck kiss."

The matriarch of this political brood was raised as Sophie Garson in Montreal, in a family not particularly politically minded.

She says she knew she was marrying a politician, though. They met when they were teen-agers and married in 1933.

"From very early days I saw that this man was in the political arena. It made no difference whether it was at McGill, in trade unions.

"I very early identified myself with it, and I was probably attracted to him because I was beginning to think along socialist lines."

Mr. Lewis, who replaces T. G. Douglas, party leader since 1961, has held several party executive posts. His wife says she has no feeling that the leadership is a belated honor for him.

"He's worked the way he wanted to work. He's always lived for the NDP. When you enter a contest it's different, you want to win, but if you don't, it's not a catastrophe.

"I know he'll always make a contribution to the NDP. He is the NDP."

Will being leader's wife change her life?

"The life won't change, life goes on. There's never a dull moment when you're married to David Lewis."

Hire a Student!

Your most important summer investment!

There's a simple reason why student help is a good investment. Students do a good job. They're willing and quick to learn.

If your business is serving the public, and summer is your busiest time, you can count on students to make a good impression.

If you run a plant or office, productivity needn't slow down when your regular staff begins vacations. There are all kinds of students — university students, college students, high school students. They are technically minded, sales oriented, commercially inclined.

Many students have a genuine interest in your type of business as a possible career.

Encourage that interest, and the student you employ this summer may one day return and prove to be the best investment you ever made.

To fill your needs, contact The Student Placement Office at your local university or community college, the local Canada Manpower Centre, or, call a student direct.

Serve This Old Favorite For Dessert Sometimes

By MARY MOORE

Sometimes in my search for new and different desserts with which to please your families I forget the old favorites.

But readers remind me. A male cook wrote asking for my favorite rice pudding. A husband asked his wife to ask me for a recipe for steamed raspberry jam pudding "like his mother used to make". What a hope!

I examined our files and found I had neglected tapioca pudding since 1965 and then it was pearl tapioca. This time it is minute tapioca.

The recipe for the plain pudding on the box calls for 3 tbsps. minute tapioca but requires a waiting period of about 20 min. to thicken up. My secretary, Betty, wanted this pudding in a hurry so she added 4 tbsps. (¼ cup) minute tapioca and her family liked it. She topped it with sliced peaches.

TAPIOCA PUDDING
(speeded up — serves 4-5)

1 beaten egg
¼ cup sugar
½ tsp. salt
2¼ cups milk
¼ cup minute tapioca
½ tsp. vanilla

In a pan mix all ingredients except vanilla and let stand 5 min. Cook stirring until it boils over medium heat. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla. As soon as cool enough pour into glass serving dishes. If desired top with fresh or canned fruit.

TAPIOCA CREAM
(Serves 4-5)

2 tbsps. sugar (first amount)
2 tbsps. minute tapioca
¼ tsp. salt
2 cups milk
1 egg — yolk and white separated
2 tbsps. sugar (second amount)
¼ tsp. vanilla

Into a pot measure the sugar (first amount), tapioca, and salt and mix well then stir in milk. Separate egg yolk from white, dropping white into beater bowl and yolk into tapioca-milk mixture. Stir well to mix in yolk then cook stirring over medium heat until boiling. Remove from heat, add vanilla and let cool a little while you beat white with remaining 2 tbsps. sugar until stiff. Slowly beat into white until it is beautifully creamy and light. Pour into stemmed glasses. I topped ours with canned apricot halves.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Tracey, I'll spank you if you don't mind me right now. Get busy and pick up those toys and put them on the toy shelf."

• • •

Picking up a lot of toys may seem like a formidable task to a small child. A little friendly help may encourage obedience in a way that threats of punishment won't.

Mother: "Come on, I'll help you pick up your toys. You hand me the dolls and I'll line them up on the shelf."

Successful Living

Exercise Will Help You Relax

By DORIS CLARK

Here's to Man: He is like a kerosene lamp: he is not over bright; he is often turned down; he generally smokes, and he frequently goes out at night.

To Woman in her higher, nobler aspects, whether wife, widow, grandmother, mother-in-law, hired girl, telegraph operator, telephone hello-er, queen, book agent, wet nurse, stepmother, boss, professional fat woman, professional double-headed woman and professional beauty: God bless her. (Mark Twain)

• • •

Dear Doris: I pull my hair out; I chew my finger nails. I am a teacher and this looks awful. I keep trying to stop but then I find myself even more jittery than usual.

I am considered good looking but this doesn't make me feel sure of myself at all. Why can't I stop these infernal habits? — Got the Jitters.

Dear Jitters: Your hang-ups and hair pulling are tension releasers, believe it or not. But the cure appears worse than the disease!

Your long letter (only partly reproduced here) points to boy friend trouble, an overbearing mother, a school principal who is expecting too much.

Do you play any game? Do you do anything at all just for the fun of it? You need ways of relaxing — like curling or tennis or swimming. Read up on Canada's Fitness Program and bring yourself some mental — as well as physical — health.

Then you will learn to assert yourself better, because you will feel more like a person.

• • •

Dear Doris: How do you forget a guy?

Every night I dream of this man and the more I dream the more I love him and, Doris, I would rather die than be unfair to my dear husband. I've never once in my lifetime stepped out on my husband.

I can't figure out how I ever got to fall in love with this one. I guess it's because he was so good to me. I had understanding from him which I lack in my marriage.

Love is the main thing in a marriage but understanding is also important. — In Doubt

Dear In Doubt: The dreams tell me you are pushing him underground; which is something.

Far better would be to talk him over with a counselor who is trained to help you load. Writing to me is the beginning — but you need someone to talk to.

The right person might even make it possible for you and your husband to talk to each other. Go to your community counselling service and find that right person. That is what social workers are for — one of the things, anyway.

Hard on Nylons

WILLENHALL, England (CP) — Girl workers at a Staffordshire lock - making plant are furious about an area of the factory which plays havoc with their nylon stockings and tights. A processing chemical in the air burns holes in the fabric, but the owners can't find a way of stopping it. "I get through three or four pairs a week and it's very expensive," said one girl.

Ann Landers

Family Should Stand On Their Own Feet

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our children are approaching adulthood — three teen-age sons and a young daughter. I plan to treat them with benign neglect once they leave the nest.

Our friends and relatives are appalled at what they call my "unnatural, heartless attitude." These same people seem totally immersed in the problems of their children. Most of their time and energy is spent trying to bail their kids out of trouble.

One has a promiscuous daughter (age 15), another has two kids who are mixed up with drugs, a third has a boy who has dropped out of school and is thumbing his way around the country. He writes periodically to ask for money.

Parenthood, to me, means teaching children to stand on their own feet. Over the years we have told our kids, "You are responsible for yourselves. Do what you think is right. Enjoy your own successes and pay for your mistakes."

Being parents is not easy these days. Frankly, I am looking forward to the time when I can be free of my children. All my friends say, "You will never be free of them. You must be there to help whenever they need it." Is this so? I'd like to hear from you on this subject. — ONTARIO PARENT.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ONE: Some parents are never free of their children because they don't want to be free. They have a sick need to be needed. This is not abandonment, it's the biggest favor parents can do for their children — and for themselves. I have the feeling you will be free of your children however, because you are raising them to be responsible for themselves. I tip my hat to you.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Over the past several years I have frequently resisted the urge to share a personal experience with you and your readers. Now the time has come when I must write. I refer to the letter from the husband who returned from Vietnam to find his wife pregnant by another man. This reminded me of the most tender memory of my youth.

When I was a young girl, Father had a hired man who came here from Italy. For three years he had been saving money so he could send for his young wife and their small son. Finally the day arrived when he could buy her a ticket. Our entire family went with him to the train depot to meet them. As the train pulled into the station we were all so excited we could barely stand it. Finally, the young wife stepped off the train holding the hand of their precious four-year-old son. It was obvious she was about nine months pregnant.

The hired man took her in his arms, mopped his eyes and hers, and said softly, "It is all right. They are all mine."

Three weeks later the woman gave birth to a beautiful baby boy. In the years that followed they had three more children. I have never seen a happier or more united family. All the children grew up to be superb citizens — a credit to the community. The second child, however, was the star. I always felt it was because he received an extra measure of love — because he needed it most. Sincerely — B.L.D.

DEAR B.L.D.: As I told the Vietnam veteran, only a man of superior understanding and rare compassion could accept such a situation without rancor or bitterness. But there are such men, and your letter proves it. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Because your advice has dissolved many fears for me and helped me in a great many ways, I want to share with you a secret that will prevent a lot of crying. While peeling or cutting onions, keep your mouth shut. It really works, Ann. — GRANDVILLE, MICH.

DEAR GRAND: Thanks very much. That's good advice — even if you're not peeling onions.

Compulsive Eater Facing Nightmare

By Dear J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a problem which is beginning to interfere with every phase of my life. I am a compulsive eater. Within the past six months my life has turned into a nightmare. I eat daily to the point of becoming physically ill.

I feel that I am perhaps using food as an alcoholic uses liquor. Will power alone does not seem to be the answer. I feel there must be a deeper reason for such gorging. I don't know where to turn because I am really ashamed of myself. I have not revealed my weakness to anyone. Haven't even told my doctor.

I can't imagine the reason for this terrible habit. I am a very happily married 36-year-old with a wonderful husband who has the promise of a bright future. There simply is no reason for my self-indulgence. Please, please help me if you can. I am desperate. I feel as though I'm throwing my life away. — Mrs. O.

* * *

Comment: Your mistake is not so much in overeating, as in not consulting your doctor for a professional evaluation of your problem to discover the deeper reasons. I wish I could come up with a magic formula which would turn off your voracious appetite. It is not so easy as turning off water with a twist of the spigot.

What's the reason for your intemperance? That's the nub of your problem. When that is discovered, you will have your habit of overeating licked. Finding the proper motivation to quit eating so much is the essential ingredient for success.

Only your own doctor can discover the reason for your unnatural craving — after several talks with you during complete history taking. At this time I am sorry that I can offer little more to your request for advice. Find a sympathetic doctor to lean on until you are able to support yourself. Compulsive eaters need professional help.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: This question keeps bothering me. Even though it seems a stupid one I'll ask it. If there's a deficiency of iodine in one's system can one paint iodine on an arm or leg instead of taking it internally as medicine? — Mr. H.

Comment: Put away the paint brush and rely on the internal route.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I would like to know why obstetricians and gynecologists make women wait a full six weeks after delivery of a baby before allowing sexual relations. None of them says why. Mrs. H.

Comment: If you asked, it's likely they'd say that six weeks is about the time it takes for organs to resume their natural size and functions. Besides, it's a realistic schedule. I don't see why 'give or take a week' would cause irreparable harm.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have been using exercises for breast development. I was promised that I would see favorable results within eight weeks. But I have been doing these exercises for almost a year and haven't accomplished anything.

I've recently read about some special pills that are manufactured in France which promise to develop fuller and firmer breasts. Anything to them? — Mrs. D.

Comment: I've often said here that I know of no exercise that will increase actual breast size. I know nothing of these French pills, but my guess is that they won't help either. Don't take them until you have talked with your doctor. If they contain estrogens, they shouldn't be taken as nonchalantly as though they were hard candies.

Restaurants Should Be Free Of Silly Curbs

TORONTO (CP) — A vice-president of the Canadian Restaurant Association said Sunday the restaurant industry should not have to face the restrictions that are placed on it in varying degrees across the country.

James O'Rourke said at the opening of the 1971 Food Service and Hospitality Show that the public and the industry "need liberation from some of the silly laws which have remained with us."

"They want fewer restrictions on hours of opening for licensed premises, facilities such as stand-up bars, reasonable cocktail facilities as an adjunct to dining rooms and restaurants ..."

Mr. O'Rourke said Canadians are using away-from-home food and lodging services at an unprecedented rate.

Mr. O'Rourke is chairman of the trade show sponsored by the restaurant association and the Ontario Hotel and Motel Association. The show runs until Wednesday.

Newfies Weather Galt Storm to Square Eastern Senior Final

GALT (CP) — Grand Falls Cataracts from Newfoundland weathered a third-period rally by Galt Hornets for a 6-3 victory Saturday to even their Eastern Canada Allan Cup hockey final at one game apiece.

The Cataracts scored twice in the final period to beat off the late challenge by the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A champions.

The third game of the best-of-five series will be played here tonight and the fourth Tuesday night. If a fifth game is necessary, it will be played here Thursday night.

Jim Beckman and Alex Faulkner each scored two goals to pace the Newfoundland champions. Faulkner's second goal was a long shot into an empty net in the final minute of play after the Hornets pulled goalie Bert Hurley in favor of an extra forward.

Jim Dawe and Jack Faulkner were the other Grand Falls scorers to hand Galt its third defeat in 15 playoff games.

Fern Belanger, Bruce Reier and Pete Panagakko scored for Galt before a sell-out crowd of 2,365, many of them Cataract supporters.

The Hornets had a 34-28 edge in shots on goal, with Guy Morrissette playing a strong game in the Grand Falls nets.

Outshot 25-16 in the first two periods, Grand Falls had a 4-1 lead going into the third. Galt rallied for two goals in the early minutes of the third but failed to manage a tie.

The Cataracts survived the onslaught and Beckman gave them breathing room with his goal at 17:34 of the final period.

The Cataracts skated to a 2-0 first-period lead while being outshot 11-6. They also clicked on a pair of rebounds and capitalized on their only power-play chance.

Hurley made one save on Beckman before the Grand Falls right winger backhanded his first goal at 8:35 of the opening period. Defenceman Mike Doersam of the Hornets was serving a penalty when Alex Faulkner scored the second goal at 11:06.

Hurley made another save on Faulkner after Beckman drove the puck into the goal mouth from the point but the former National Hockey League player cashed in on his own rebound.

The Hornets continued to outshoot the Cataracts but Morrissette pulled a major stumbling block in the second period, making 13 saves, and Grand Falls moved into a 4-1 lead.

Dawe gave the Cataracts a 3-0 lead shortly after the 34-minute mark with a 30-foot shot after Alex Faulkner had run a corner faceoff. Jack Faulkner scored the other second-period goal for Grand Falls 19 minutes later, banging home a loose puck at the crease.

The Hornets' second-period goal came from Belanger when Dawe was serving a penalty for holding. Belanger converted Pete Panagakko's pass from the side of the net.

Galt rallied for two goals in 109 seconds of the third period to trim the Grand Falls lead to 4-3 before Beckman's second goal at 17:34 spoiled their comeback chances.

Relief shot a loose puck past Morrissette at 1:51 and Panagakko scored at 3:40 for Galt.

Hurley made three saves before Beckman could manage the insurance marker.

Collision Course

Minnesota North Star's Tom Reid (20) crashes into the goalpost while goalie Cesare Maniago deflects a shot from Montreal centre Peter Mahovalich in the second game of their Stanley Cup semi-final series. The North Stars took a 5-2 victory Sunday night, which coupled with their win in the second game, gave them a 2-2 split with the heavily favored Canadiens. The fifth game in the series will be played in Montreal Tuesday night. (CP Photo)

Nobody Told North Stars They Were Only to Last Five

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (CP) — Someone forgot to tell Minnesota North Stars they were scheduled to fold in five in their Stanley Cup semi-final round against Montreal Canadiens.

After bouncing St. Louis Blues in six games while the Canadiens were handling Boston Bruins in seven in quarter-final play, the experts—with the exception of Montreal coach Al MacNeil, had the expansion-side Stars ready to end another National Hockey League season.

"It was a little different story tonight, eh?" said goalie Cesare Maniago, who earned his second win in three semi-final starts in helping Minnesota to a 5-2 victory against Montreal Sunday night.

The Minnesota victory evened the best-of-seven series 2-2, after the North Stars dropped a 6-3 decision to Montreal here Saturday night.

Maniago beat the Canadiens 6-3 in Montreal last Thursday night, after the Montrealers had taken an easy 7-2 win in last Tuesday's opener with Guinp Worsley in the Stars' goal.

The win by the North Stars Sunday sends the series back to Montreal for an 8:00 p.m. EDT contest Tuesday and a sixth game here Thursday.

The North Stars, apparently enjoying their home ice, outskated and checked the Canadiens while counting power-play goals by Murray Oliver and Danny Grant in the first period.

Three unanswered goals were scored by Jean Paul Parise, Oliver and Ted Hampson in the final period.

Montreal settled for a pair of goals by captain Jean Beliveau, one in the first period less than two minutes into the game and his second at 7:52 of the middle period.

"We were so tense Saturday night after coming off that win in Montreal and so eager to show the people here that it wasn't a fluke, that we just tensed up and did nothing right.

"We wanted to play a good game, but we got so uptight about it we lost," he added.

"You'll notice tonight that our goals are well spread out, and that means all three lines were going and that's what you need."

Saturday, the North Stars started out well with a goal from Oliver. It was the third straight game in which they had scored first. However, Montreal defenceman Jacques Laperriere scored twice and Frank Mahovlich, Jacques Lemaire, Yvan Cournoyer and J. C. Tremblay added goals. Grant and Bill Goldsworthy were the other Minnesota scorers.

Grant plays on a line with centre Jude Drouin and Goldsworthy. Drouin, rookie of the year in the American Hockey League last season, came in for some special praise from Gordon.

"He's just great and getting better," Gordon said.

Oliver, the Toronto Leaf castoff, said he finds the Minnesota fans "really pick you up."

Sunday night the crowd of 15,393 was in constant uproar throughout the third period and was on its feet with a standing ovation during the final minutes of play.

A disappointed MacNeil repeated what he had been saying since the series started, that Minnesota would prove a tougher opponent than many anticipated.

Beliveau summed it up by getting back to the 2-2 tie that existed until Parise's third-period winner.

"When they had the chances, they got the goals, when we got the chances, we missed them."

Defence Bruce Hood had a quiet night calling only four-minor penalties plus fight majors to Montreal's Guy Lapointe and rookie defenceman Dennis O'Brien of Minnesota in the third period.

Montreal had three of the four minors, two of which resulted in Minnesota goals.

Hail Cesare!

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (CP) — It was back to "Hail Cesare" in the home rink of the North Stars Sunday night, as the unpredictable Minnesota club clipped Montreal Canadiens 5-2 and evened their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final at two games each.

CESARE MANIAGO

"Cesare played one hell of a game tonight," North Stars coach Jack Gordon said. "He came up with the real big saves when the game was tied 2-2."

Gordon was talking about Cesare Maniago, who 24 hours earlier had been chased by the Canadiens in Saturday night's third game.

"It was a little different tonight," the six-foot, three-inch Maniago said. "We'll have a few people talking now, and we wanted to show them we didn't want to be run out of the league."

Maniago stopped 35 of the 37 shots the Canadiens fired his way, but readily admitted he "blew" on Beliveau's second goal at 7:52 of the middle period, a goal that set up a 2-2 tie.

"He blew his original shot, but I blew it too," Maniago said. "By the time he did get the shot away I had moved out of position in anticipation of the first."

Gordon said he has to go with Maniago for the remainder of the series since his other regular netminder, Gerry (Gump) Worsley, aggravated a groin injury in Saturday night's warm-up. Rookie Gilles Gilbert will act as backup to Maniago.

Marlies Too Well-rested?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A week-long rest burst the playoff bubble for Toronto Marlboros on the weekend.

The well-rested Marlboros, who went through nine Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoff games without a loss, dropped the first two games of the best-of-seven series to St. Catharines Black Hawks Saturday and Sunday.

Saturday, the Hawks snapped the Marlboros' unbeaten string with an easy 6-3 win in St. Catharines. They downed the Marlboros 5-2 in Toronto Sunday night.

For the Hawks, it was the third victory in four nights. They had taken seven games to win their semi-final series with Montreal Junior Canadiens four games to two, with one game tied.

The Marlboros managed Sunday to handcuff Hawk scoring ace Marcel Dionne for the first time in the playoffs, but the failure of their own top line offset that advantage.

Dionne, who had scored 24 goals and 24 assists in 12 playoff games was kept off the scoresheet, but the Marlboro combination of Bill Harris, Dave Gardner and Steve Shutt recorded only one assist.

Toronto defenceman Steve Durbano was in hot water again by the end of Sunday's game. He drew four minor penalties and one major and hit St. Catharines trainer Howie Beaupit with his stick.

Beaupit, who got in the way of Durbano's wild swing in the direction of the St. Catharines bench, had a swollen jaw after the game.

"I want to know what the OHA is going to do about Durbano," said Fred Muller, co-owner of the St. Catharines team, who said he would lodge a protest.

Scenery Switch Helps Hawks

NEW YORK (C) P— The Black Hawks go back to Chicago again today for the fifth game of their Stanley Cup semi-final with New York Rangers that the trip does them as much good as beating the Rangers had better watch out.

The Black Hawks skated the Rangers off the ice for a 7-1 victory Sunday night to tie the best-of-seven series 2-2. It was a completely different Chicago from the one that took a 4-1 defeat here Thursday night. After Thursday's defeat, Chicago coach Billy Reay took his team back to Chicago to practise although the next game was in New York.

Stan Mikita, who got a goal and an assist and played a great all-round game for the Black Hawks, was asked what he did in Chicago to get himself ready for Sunday's game.

"Washed dishes, washed the floor, looked after the house, things like, that." the veteran Black Hawk centre told reporters.

Jim Pappin opened the scoring for Chicago in the first period, Bill White and Danny O'Shea scored goals within two minutes of each other in the second and Mikita also scored

STAN MIKITA

In the second. Dennis Hull and Chico Maki scored for the Black Hawks in the third before Dave Balon scored the Rangers only goal while Jerry Koral completed the Chicago total.

"After that game in New York the other night we found ourselves behind the eight ball," Reay told reporters in the Chicago dressing room.

* * *

"I'm just happy we got this one," he said. "We capitalized on the breaks and we had good opportunities.

"Now it's a two-out-of-three series. I'm just pleased to win."

The next game will be played in Chicago Tuesday with the sixth game in New York Thursday.

Sunday's victory gave Reay two reasons to celebrate—it also was his 29th wedding anniversary.

Bobby Hull, scoreless in the first three games of the series, assisted on three goals, played on the power play and also helped kill penalties.

Mikita said: "We got a great game from Bobby."

Black Hawk goalie Tony Esposito missed his shutout at 14:36 of the third period when Balon squeezed the puck past him on the short side during a power play.

Expos One Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Montreal Expos—the first-place Montreal Expos, s'il-vous plait—are one-up against the rest of the National League East for the first three weeks of 1971 and one-up on Houston Astros for the last two years.

In their first two seasons, the Expos managed to win only two of 12 games in the Astrodome. They bettered that lowly mark Sunday with a 2-1 victory behind Bill Stoneman's three-hit pitching and a sweep of a three-game series.

"I doubt if I've ever been with a club which swept a series in Houston since Philadelphia did it in 1962," said manager Gene Mauch. "We won 17 in a row from Houston that year before losing the final game and I can tell you here and now that a sweep in the Astrodome is a great feeling.

"We didn't win a game here our first year and we only won two our second year, so we've already won more games here than we did our first two years."

The Expos swept through Houston with a sometimes rare commodity for them—good pitching. They won the first two games by 3-2 scores behind Carl Morton and Steve Renko, although both needed late relief.

"You don't come into the Astrodome and hold them to five runs in three games too often," said Mauch. "And I want to say something about John Bateman.

"Bateman had something to work with in all three games, but he handled all the pitchers beautifully. He's an excellent catcher. He has a great feel for baseball."

Manager Harry Walker of the Astros cited good control as the Expos' not-so-secret pitching secret.

"They didn't walk more than one or two a game," he said.

"But mark my words, that can change. When you've getting them out, you keep challenging the hitters, but when you get behind, you start moving the ball around and walk a few and get into trouble. That hasn't happened to them yet."

It may not, according to Stoneman.

"If we're going to stay up in the race, we're going to have to continue pitching the way we are—and I'm not saying we can't do it, either . . . I think we can," he added.

Royals Flush with Improvement

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wally Bunker and Jerry May are months ahead of their 1970 calendar pace.

May's first American League homer climaxed a six-run flurry in the first inning and carried Bunker to his first pitching victory of the season Sunday as Kansas City Royals trimmed Cleveland Indians 8-4.

Bunker, who finished at 2-11 a game for the Royals until Sept. 1 and May didn't hit a home run for Pittsburgh Pirates until the final day of the National League season.

Elsewhere, Boston Red Sox nipped Chicago White Sox 5-4 for their fifth straight victory, Baltimore Orioles drubbed California Angels 7-1, Detroit Tigers cooled off Oakland Athletics 10-2, Minnesota Twins riddled New York Yankees 8-0 and Washington Senators edged Milwaukee Brewers 3-2 in 10 innings.

In Saturday's action, Boston defeated Chicago 4-2, Kansas City drubbed Cleveland 8-0, Oakland defeated Detroit 8-4, Minnesota outslugged New York 11-8, Washington tripped Milwaukee 5-4 and California handled Baltimore 7-4.

May, traded from the Pirates to Kansas City last winter, completed the Royals' first inning assault against winless Steve Hargan with a two-run wallop over the left field fence. Ed Kirkpatrick's three-run homer and a run-scoring double by Joe Keough were the other big blows.

Bunker, who finished at 2-11 last season after a frustrating run of bad luck and arm trouble, needed sixth inning relief help in squaring his record at 1d1 this year.

"I'm glad to get the victory," he sighed. "This game very easily could have gone the other way."

Carl Yastrzemski drew a bases-loaded walk from rookie Don Eddy in the eighth inning, breaking a 4-4 deadlock at Boston and keeping the Red Sox one-half game behind first place Baltimore in the East Division.

Yastrzemski belted a two-run homer in the first, extending his hitting streak to 11 games, as the Red Sox shot to a 4-0 lead. But Chicago bounced back to knot it on two-run blasts by Tom Egan and Mike Andrews.

Baltimore's Jim Palmer breezed to his third victory without a loss, checking the Angels on six hits and contributing a two-run single to the Orioles' attack.

Dick McAuliffe drove in five runs with a homer and double as the Tigers halted Oakland's winning streak at seven games. Bill Freehan and Willie Horton also homered for Detroit and southpaw Mickey Lolich held Oakland to three hits in the seven innings he worked.

The Twins blitzed the Yankees behind the two-hit pitching of Jim Kaat and Tony Oliva's third and fourth homers of the three-game series. Oliva's third and fourth homers of the three-game series, Oliva's base-empty shot off Fritz Peterson in the second inning gave Kaat, 2-0, the only run he needed.

Tom McGraw, who had doubled in the ninth and scored the tying run on Dick Billings' pitch single, stroked a run-scoring single in the 10th to send the Senators past Milwaukee. Don Wert scored the winning run after punching a leadoff single in his first time at bat this season.

Brantford Entry Would Give Senior A Group Nine Members

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

TORONTO — For what's often reputed to be a dying horse, there are a lot of people fighting senior hockey.

Saturday's senior category session of the 62nd annual Ontario Hockey Association meeting was literally bursting at the seams.

The OHA Senior A council has been lucky to have a quorum of its eight member entries at the last couple of conventions, but Saturday OHA president Clarence 'Tubby' Schmalz's host suite was running short of everything from armchairs to ice cubes.

Ten of the 30 - plus gathering hailed from Brantford, whose application to join senior hockey ranks used up most of the two-hour meeting.

Acceptance of the Brantford entry, still to be approved by the OHA executive, was moved by Belleville's Robert Temple and unanimously approved by spokesmen for the other seven senior A clubs.

Official sanction by the OHA executive wasn't thought to be more than formality. "I can't see any reason why it wouldn't be approved," said President Schmalz. "The only conceivable one would be that there is already a junior team in Brantford.

"But they also have junior teams operating in Belleville, Orillia, Kingston . . . ."

(In fact each of the existing eight senior A cities shares the same arena with some level of junior team.)

The Brantford group, headed up by going concern Mike King, had a letter from their arena commission guaranteeing them ice time for the coming year, as well as a city alderman to back their cause.

The nucleus of the proposed Brantford entry, to be known as the Foresters, would be the existing Intermediate A team of the same name.

Saturday night, about ten hours after OHA senior council members had approved their ownership, the Foresters beat Midland Flyers 7-3 to wrap up a six-game total series for the OHA Intermediate A title.

"If you don't take us into the senior league, we won't have anyplace else to go," backer King told Saturday's meeting.

Galt's Gord Renwick agreed: "They sure don't want them back in that league," alluding to the Intermediate Foresters' immense success.

The club, which was averaging 1,000 gates before they started to win too consistently this year, went all the way to the provincial finals in their first season's operation four years ago. They made it to the OHA semi-finals the past two years before winning all the alleys this weekend.

Most senior clubs would welcome the opportunity for road games with Brantford, since a new 3,000-seat city centre makes most of the league rinks look like the glorified barns they are.

If enthusiasm means anything, the Foresters have half the battle won. Prime mover Mike King predicted a playoff contender in the first year. He also informed the senior governors that 900 city hockey-watchers signed a petition saying they'd be regular attenders of senior hockey games...Not to mention the all-important financial bonus of having the intermediate club's sponsorship remain with the proposed senior entry.

Proximity to other league cities (Galt 18 miles, Oakville-40, etc.) also helped the bid from Brantford, which has a population of 75,000 from which to draw players and spectators.

All of which seemed to augur for a nine - team 1971-72 schedule, since no-one spoke out when chairman Schmalz polled council members on possible drop-outs.

Woodstock was probably foremost in his mind, but even that entry's dismal picture looked brighter Saturday.

Representatives of a new 23 - member executive expressed their definite intentions to rectify what has become a league embarrassment. The A's, who won the league title as recently as seven winters ago, were 3-35 last season, and wound up the scrabble on the short end of a 21-3 avalanche in Belleville.

Other memorable Woodstock performances last season included showing up for at least two games (one in Belleville) without their sweaters, and showing up for several games with players of questionable calibre; not to mention not showing up for some games at all.

It is an ill-kept league secret that some clubs remunerated the faltering A's merely for finishing out their scheduled games. They got $200 for making their final Kingston trip.

But the new spokesmen succeeded in allaying fears by informing the senior council that all team debts had been paid off, and that a drive is being conducted to organize a 200 - member booster club to assist in promotion and ticket sales.

There will even be a booth rented at the Woodstock fall fair to remind local sports fans that the A's won the Allan Cup before becoming perennial doormats.

"And we've ordered all new equipment, and two sets of sweaters," asserted an eager Woodstock delegate.

Junior Bid Rejected

TORONTO — A bid by Metropolitan Toronto Junior B hockey clubs to gain control of their own affairs and a franchise system was defeated Saturday at the annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association.

The bid, presented by John Gardiner of Toronto's Young Nationals, was rejected 75-32 by the delegates, who then turned down 60-31 a similar proposal to institute such a system province - wide.

At present, the OHA executive handles all junior B affairs, including applications from new clubs wishing to enter the league.

Under the proposed franchise system, Junior B clubs would vote on new applications.

Herb Parker, a delegate from Stratford, who was against the proposals, said under such a system teams who attended regularly would hold the voting power.

"The best attendance, and the power, would go to those within 30 or 40 miles of Toronto," he said. "It would be an unbalanced council. I would rather give support to the executive."

Also at the meeting, Clarence 'Tubby' Schmalz of Walkerton, Ont., was returned by acclamation for his third term as president. Vice-presidents are Frank Doherty of St. Catharines, Cliff Phillips of Newmarket, Ont., and Hugh McLean of London, Ont.

Larry Bellisle of Penetang, Ont., Bill Church of Orangeville, Ont., Harvey Tebo of Windsor, Ont., John Brent of Wingham, Ont., and Harold Webster of Napanee, Ont., were elected directors.

Other directors are Terry Talmbion, president of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association; Ernie Jones of the Metro Toronto Association and Wes Oswald of Forest, Ont., president of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association.

Schmalz will name three other directors to represent areas of the province not included in the elected directorate.

Sea Cadets Michael Callaghan and Peter Fargey were the two members of the RCSCC Quinte teams which tied for first place in the annual Marsden Trophy rifle competition yesterday. Both Belleville-based teams counted 373 out of a possible 400 to tie for top honors over five visiting teams. Callaghan was the top individual marksman with a score of 98 out of 100.

Cadets Find Room for Improvement

It's pretty tough to improve on a winning performance, but the Quinte Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps managed to do just that at the Marsden Shoot rifle competition at the Belleville armories Sunday.

And the Belleville - based sea cadets, who have won the event every year since its 1962 inception, managed to come up with two winners this season as both Quinte teams recorded scores of 373 out of a possible 400.

Not only did the local club produce a pair of winners, but the 373 score was three points better than the existing record set last year, and 108 more than the winning total in 1963.

Seven teams competed in the competition, which was initiated in '63 by Commanding Officer J. Marsden of the Kingston sea cadet corps.

The Quinte club picked up a team total of 746 points to far outdistance Kingston, who totalled 356 points and Port Hope with 347. Other teams entered in the competition included Cornwall (317), Trenton (279), and Napanee (234).

Members of the Quinte "A" team included Chief Petty Officer Peter Fargey, Petty Officer Michael Callaghan, Petty Officer Alec Olaveson and Able Cadet Douglas Reid. Included in the co-winning "B" squad were Leading Cadets Edward Finlan, Dale Jones, Michael Wager and Able Cadet Dale Wilson.

Petty Officer Michael Callaghan recorded the highest total of the competition with a scoring of 98 out of 100 possible points.

Each team's four members fired the standard service Mark VII 22 calibre rifles.

"The mothers served a hot chicken dinner and we were able to make use of the sailing facilities at the Quinte club," noted Commanding Officer Barry Bevan. "All in all you'd have to say that it was a highly successful meet."

Ball Turnouts Like Mercury

Body counts as well as body temperatures were lower than normal at baseball and softball workouts held around Belleville this weekend as a host of teams decided to brave the unseasonable weather.

The Belleville Kinsmen Junior baseball team had only a half - dozen players turn out for a Saturday morning workout, but were buoyed by the news that a number of players from last year's Trenton juniors, including batterymates Randy Castellarin and Steve Bedard, will be seeking spots on the Belleville team.

Castellarin, a tall lefthander would add balance to a staff which already includes starters Gordie Adams and Terry McTaggart from last season.

The Kinsmen will be holding open practices from Monday to Thursday at Parkdale next week, beginning at 6:15 p.m. before shifting to the Belleville Fairgrounds next weekend.

Their softball counterparts, the Richard Ellis Juniors had plenty of quantity, but uncertain quality at a pair of weekend practices. Of the more than 20 players on hand, only pitcher Ted Waite had previous Commercial Softball League experience.

Other teams to hold workouts Sunday were Rollins Construction and Quinte Hotel. Rollins, finalists in last year's competition have a number of returning veterans on hand, as well as standout hurler Scott Reid from last year's juniors.

Quinte Hotel will have the services of a number of players from the defunct Slinson Construction team, but currently appear to be short of pitching strength.

Poor Compression Can Cause Hard Starting in Old Cars

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"My six-cylinder car has gone 100,000 miles. It has been tuned up, including new spark plugs and points and a carburetor overhaul. But despite all this work, it still remains difficult to start when the engine is cold. The car starts fine when the engine is warm.

"I do most of my own repairs and would appreciate your telling me where to look for this problem." — Mr. D. K., St. Catharines, Ont.

With over 100,000 miles on the clock, you had better start diagnosis by taking a compression reading of each cylinder. Unless you have the factory equipment, plus the know-how to accurately conduct a compression test, this should be done by a reliable garage.

If compression is poor, burned valves are defective or piston rings are worn. It may be a combination of both. But whatever the trouble, it should be repaired.

Only hands of a confident mechanic, a compression - testing detective will pinpoint whether the compression loss is caused by defective valves, worn rings, or both.

Although it is often thought that the installation of new points and ignition points in a general cure-all for any starting problem, there is much more involved during a thorough tune-up.

For instance, the ignition coil is often ignored completely. It should be thoroughly washed and inspected for cracks and corrosion and then tested on an accurate coil-testing device. A defective coil can readily cause sluggish starting or even complete starting failure.

The high-tension cables that deliver the vital high voltage (up to 25,000 volts) from the distributor to the spark plugs is something else that is often forgotten about. Sooner or later these rubber-covered cables will harden and crack, allowing the spark to escape long before it reaches the spark plugs. As well, the inside cord that carries the high voltage can fracture, resulting in an open circuit.

Loose connections, broken insulation, or corrosion of the thin wiring (primary wires) between the ignition switch and the coil and distributor can cause intermittent starting failure.

If a badly - worn starter - motor draws too much energy from the battery, the ignition system can starve for current and fail to function. It is a simple matter for a mechanic to check the amperage being drawn by the starter. If the starter is defective, usually a re-built unit is the most economical approach.

Make sure the choke is closing fully before attempting to start a cold engine. With automatic choke it is necessary to press the gas pedal down towards the floor, which releases part of the automatic choke mechanism, allowing it to move into the proper cold starting position.

On rare occasions, the gasoline can drain out of the float chamber of a defective carburetor after the car has been parked overnight. When this occurs, the engine must turn over dozens of times before the fuel pump will refill the empty chamber. To check for this problem, remove the top of the carburetor and check the float level after the engine has been idle for a day.

Some years ago, I encountered this problem on my own car. After dismantling the carburetor several times, I located a tiny flaw in the metal of the float chamber through which the fuel was seeping.

Promoting Politician Is Like Selling Tomatoes--Goldfarb

TORONTO (CP) — Selling a politician is much like selling a can of tomatoes, says a Toronto sociologist who plans a lot of selling this year.

Martin Goldfarb is currently planning political strategy for Newfoundland Premier Joseph Smallwood, Manitoba Liberal Leader Israel Asper and the Ontario Conservatives.

Comparing the approaches to tomatoes and politicians, Mr. Goldfarb said: "You lay out the problem, look at the objectives of research, design a study around the objectives, and then analyse the data.

"It's a matter of choice. There may be 20 cans of tomatoes on the shelf and the consumer has to choose one. Well it's really the same in the voter marketplace."

In fact, political work may be easier since the choice is more limited.

"Some guys will vote Tory until they die."

Consequently, says Mr. Goldfarb, politicians can concentrate on fewer people with more effect.

But like tomatoes, political campaigns can also go bad.

Mr. Goldfarb, 32, acquired his first political account in 1966, two years after founding a consulting firm.

He was hired to conduct polls and motivational research for Paul Hellyer's unsuccessful bid for the federal Liberal leadership, after Mr. Hellyer, as defence minister, had used the firm to improve techniques in armed forces' recruiting.

There are limitations to what scientific technology can do for a candidate, says Mr. Goldfarb, and Mr. Hellyer's campaign proved that.

"We did a damn good job to get Hellyer as far a he went," he says.

Polls by the consulting firm showed Mr. Hellyer was going to win until he made a speech to delegates the night before the balloting, he says.

"His performance that night was a real dud. He lost 150 votes immediately afterwards because of it."

Now there's no way I could do anything about that. You can do the research but the guy still has to win it himself."

He has since worked in individual election campaigns for Mr. Hellyer, Defence Minister Donald Macdonald and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

Mr. Goldfarb estimates that with the use of various techniques about 10 per cent of the voters can be influenced.

"I think our research could be enough in a close election to win or lose," he says. "If it's tight we make that much difference."

And the sociologist has plans for Premier William Davis of Ontario.

He is doing a psychological analysis of the province's electorate, telling Mr. Davis what specific groups of voters want to hear, mapping out province-wide and regional campaign strategies for the party, and computer-programming the premier's campaign schedule.

His company was hired by the Progressive Conservative party, and with "a little bit of professional help" the premier should win the next election, he says.

"Sensitivity sessions" have already been held in Toronto, Chatham, Sudbury, Kingston and Ottawa.

Two sessions were also held with teen-agers.

"They'll tell you very openly and give you insights into the way their parents are thinking that their parents may be inhibited from talking about," Mr. Goldfarb says.

On the basis of these sessions a questionnaire will be prepared which will be administered to about 2,000 Ontario voters. From the answers Mr. Goldfarb will be able to outline the major issues as perceived by voters. Then the job is to change the voters' minds or to get the government to change its stand.

Mr. Goldfarb graduated from The University of Toronto in 1965 with an MA in sociology.

Jumbo Jet Seen At Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Sightseers jammed roads leading to Toronto International Airport Sunday afternoon trying to get a look at the landing of the first scheduled flight by an Air Canada jumbo jet.

Highways department officials asked motorists to avoid the area. An airline spokesman said local radio stations were asked to warn passengers to leave early for the airport to get through a jam created by the "thousands" of onlookers.

The Boeing 747, piloted by Capt. Bill Benson of Montreal, left Vancouver late because of ceremonies there and was 20 minutes late arriving in Toronto. It was 20 minutes late leaving on the return flight, the spokesman said.

Air Canada chairman Yves Pratt was on hand in Toronto to greet some of the 358 passengers aboard the 365-passenger plane. Every seat was filled aboard the return flight.

FARMERS! DO YOU UNDERSTAND BILL C-176?

BILL C-176 is a farm bill currently before the House of Commons. Your government is suggesting that this bill will SOLVE THE ILLS of farming.

THIS IS AN ILLUSION. It is an OPPRESSIVE BILL. Amendments requested by farmers to make this a FARMERS' BILL were ignored.

As per the task force report, the Federal Government has a plan to ELIMINATE TWO-THIRDS OF THE FARMERS OF CANADA.

BILL C-176 is one of the recommendations designed to accomplish this goal.

C-176 provides for:

- a council and agencies appointed by, sitting at the pleasure of and answerable to the Minister.
- imposing of compulsory quotas.
- imposing of compulsory check-off.

This will arbitrarily MAKE THE FARMER FINANCE his own DESTRUCTION.

The farmers have requested IMPORT CONTROLS. Supply management involves quotas and import controls. C-176 DOES NOT PROVIDE for import controls.

QUOTAS for Canadian farmers WITHOUT IMPORT CONTROLS make Canada a DUMPING GROUND.

C-176 oppressive legislation, with no negotiation provided for, treats farmers as second class citizens.

Farmers conditions HAVE NOT BEEN MET
The farmers' interests HAVE BEEN DISREGARDED.

THE FARMERS' AMENDMENTS MUST BE ACCEPTED OR WE MUST HAVE A VOTE OF ALL CANADIAN FARMERS.

Sign the coupons attached and mail one to your Federal member of Parliament. Mail the other to Jack Horner, M.P., one of the members who is vigorously opposing the bill . . . DO THIS NOW! while you still have the right to make your own decision.

NO POSTAGE REQUIRED! MAIL NOW!

Please delay the passage of Bill C-176 until:

- Conditions stipulated by the farmers be met

— OR —

- that a plebiscite of all Canadian farmers be held indicating support for the bill.

Lasso 4 with Atrazine gives season long control of annual grasses and broadleaf weeds

Last year Lasso 4 was a brand new herbicide and we made a lot of promises. Now the promises have been proven.

A Lasso 4/atrazine mix needs no incorporation.

Lasso 4/atrazine will not damage your crops or ruin your rotation plans because there is less carryover.

Lasso 4/atrazine controls both broadleaf weeds and grasses (including crabgrass, fall panicum and barnyardgrass) in corn.

Lasso 4 is available from your local farm supply dealer.

Unions Urged to Unite To Demand Jobs for All

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Canadian trade unions must "mobilize" to demand full employment, says the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union. It called for a four-point attack on unemployment:

—Tax reductions on annual incomes of less than $15,000.

—Developing the Canadian Development Corp. as a vehicle for Canadian industrialism and economic independence.

—Reducing "defence expenditures" by two-thirds.

—Using Canadian natural resources for Canadian economic development.

Visit to Space Base Completed

MOSCOW (CP) — Russia will send more men into space to link up with the Salyut—Salute —orbiting space base, official accounts of the first docking by the three-man Soyuz 10 mission indicated today.

Tass news agency said experiments with the unmanned station will continue soon. The three Soyuz 10 cosmonauts returned to earth Sunday after a 5½-hour linkup with Salyut.

The description by Tass of the Soyuz flight as "a stage in the general program of work" with the space station was taken as a sign there would be more manned flights to rendezvous with it.

Salyut's size and capabilities have been kept secret since it was put into orbit last Monday. However, Russian experts say such stations will be a main feature of space exploration in the coming decade. Col Vladimir Shatalov, commander of the Soyuz 10 mission, said the main tasks during its two-day flight included perfecting new systems for sighting, approaching and docking with an unmanned station.

Shatalov, a veteran of three Soyuz space flights, was the pilot during the complex docking manoeuvre, which was completed during a single orbit of the more than 30-orbit voyage.

However, Soyuz 10 was brought to within 200 yards of the space station automatically before Shatalov took over manual control.

The cosmonauts returned to earth safely Sunday aboard the command ship module after the test of a new docking collar and other equipment for use in building orbital space platforms.

Soyuz 10 docked with the unamanned space station Salute Saturday, and the two craft orbited for 5½ hours locked together.

Mood of Farmers Said 'Revolutionary'

GUELPH (CP) — Walter Miller, vice-president of the National Farmers Union, said Sunday Canadian farmers are in a revolutionary mood and are prepared to "shove the Canadian economy right down."

In an interview following demonstrations Saturday in which farmers gave away free produce such as milk and eggs in several Ontario centres, he said he could not disclose union plans, but added:

"You know what could happen if farmers stopped delivering food and the store shelves became empty."

Farmers in Brockville, Woodstock, Hanover, Chatham and Goderich gave handouts to protest consumer prices and prices paid to farmers.

Barbara McAllister, a union director in Brockville, said the demonstrations were staged "to get across to the consumer what is actually happening to egg and dairy producers."

She said it costs a local poultry farmer 22 to 24 cents to produce a dozen eggs but he only gets from 18 to 24 cents in return.

In Brockville, more than 20 farmers gave away 600 dozen eggs and a ton of milk in search of public support.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Ghettos Infect All Society

If you live in New York and hail a cab in midtown, the driver won't take you to Harlem if it's after sundown. If you live in Chicago and want to take a cab at night to the South or West Side ghettos, the hack will refuse, will make you pay first, or will demand an extra fare for the trip.

Harlem, the Chicago ghettos, and dozens like them throughout the nation, are enclaves: they exist like foreign communities in a country, controlled (more or less) by an occupying police force.

They don't live on the same monetary system, either. Everything costs more — food, shelter, appliances, and credit most of all. The jobless rate is twice as high; schooling is half as good; gamblers and pimps and dope-pasters are the figures of authority here.

And the poor who live here are three times more likely to be robbed, burglarized or mugged than the citizens living elsewhere.

There is quite literally a cancer in the community, and one that can only spread. It is past the point where anyone can assign blame or responsibility; it makes no difference now how the disease started — it must be got under control or every large city in the U.S. will perish.

What are we doing about it? Practically nothing. Large sums are appropriated, agencies and bureaus and commissions are appointed, staffed and funded — but somehow little of the money gets down where it is most needed. Housing starts are negligible, jobs are scarce, training is a joke, and "law enforcement" is a blend of corruption, negligence and repression. These are facts it only takes 24 hours to find out.

Conditions are far better in the South than in almost all Northern cities. The South is beginning to turn itself around having learned that a system of organized bigotry simply doesn't work in modern industrial society. The Northern big cities don't practice official bigotry, they simply follow a "scorched earth" policy in reverse, by which everything the poor minorities need to subsist is denied them.

The social body is like a physical organism: it is impossible to have an untreated focus of infection that will not spread throughout the whole system. Unless a cancer is burned out, or excised in some way, it will metastasize throughout the whole body. And no part of the "body" of the community will remain unaffected by this poison.

It is too late for sermonizing, moralizing, philosophising, or making value-judgements on one segment of society or another. We are all in the same contagious ward, and there is no isolation chamber. In a time of plague, only concern for the common good can save us.

Quinte Boys Coast To Gymnastics Title

NAPANEE — Quinte Secondary School opened up a wide lead over Napanee and then coasted to the Bay of Quinte boys' gymnastics title as the two were the only local area entries to contest the title.

Adam cott juniors and Thomas A. Stewart seniors competed at the meet held in Napanee Saturday but were not counted in the official point totals.

Quinte's Pat Donovan was the individual standout taking first place finishes in the parallels, vaulting and floor exercises to pile up 40.70 points in the individual standings.

Teammate Tom Dellio, who will be competing in the individual OFSAA meet in Toronto Friday, won the horizontal bar and pommel horse events, while tieing with Dave Taylor for first place on the rings.

The Quinte team totalled 13.6 points, 24 more than runnerup Adam Scott.

The Bay of Quinte champions will be sponsoring a gymnastics display by the Tramp Champs, a group of professional trampoline artists, Wednesday.

The exhibition will be held at Quinte Secondary School and is slated to begin at 8 p.m. Admission price is 75 cents.

Candy's Dandy In Oshawa Pool

OSHAWA — Candy Ewing of the Trenton Dolphins Swim Club managed to "float like a butterfly and sting like a bee" at the Ontario swimming championships held in Oshawa this weekend.

The 14-year-old Trenton swimmer was able to sting opposition from 45 clubs located across Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Michigan winning both the 100 and 200 yard butterfly events in her age group.

Oakville swimmer Murray White was the top individual competitor winning eight events in the 11 and 12-year-old class. Teammate Geoff Brown picked up seven wins in the 13 and 14-year-old group as Oakville walked away with the team championship.

White set Canadian records in the 100 and 200-yard breaststroke, 100-yard butterfly, 100-yard freestyle and individual medley, as well as tieing a national record in the 100-yard backstroke.

Accuracy Not Enough

DIXIE — Belleville's Wilson Concrete Tykes will get extra marks for accuracy in the Intissaga Paperweight Tournament this weekend.

Wilson's counted three goals as seven shots in the match with Agincourt but were eliminated because they were not hot. 11-7 during the course of the 32 stalemate. The Belleville tyke all-stars had overcome an early 2-0 lead to gain the tie.

David McCawa, Glen McQuaid and Larry Deighton scored for Wilson's.

Sports Briefs

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japan moved its first Davis Cup tennis victory over Australia in 50 years today.

Toshiro Sakai beat John Cooper 6-1, 15-13, 8-6 to complete a 3-2 win in the eastern section A final.

The Japanese won the first two singles matches Friday, but Australians pulled even 2-2 by capturing the doubles and the first of the reverse singles matches.

The last Japanese victory over Australia, in 1921, put them through to the challenge round, in which they were defeated 5-0 by the United States.

Answering questions after today's match, Cooper said he had found it difficult to play the natural Australian attacking game on the slow clay court here.

"On grass we would have won 5-0," he declared.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Aging Bob Foster stalked galloping Ray Anderson for 15 rounds Saturday night and scored an unanimous 15-round decision to retain one version of the world light heavyweight boxing championship.

Foster, who weighed 170½, improved his record to 43-5-0, but failed to score a 37th knockout. Anderson, 172½, now is 35-6-1.

Foster took the title from Dick Tiger in 1968 and Anderson is only the second contender to take him past the fourth round in six defences.

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus' mind still was on his defeat at the Masters when he teed off in the final round of the Tournament of Champions Sunday.

"I wasn't pleased with the way I've been finishing lately," Nicklaus said. "I think I've been paying too much attention to the scoreboard and not enough attention to myself.

He didn't have to worry, shooting a final-round 70 for 279 and an eight-stroke victory in this event that brings together tour champions from the last 12 months. It was the biggest winning margin in more than two years.

He finished at 279, nine under par. It was eight strokes back to a group of three tied at 287—South African Gary Player, Australian Bruce Devlin and Dave Stockton.

With Nicklaus, they were the only players to break par on the 7,114-yard, par-72 layout that features deep, clinging rough and hopeless fairways.

It was Nicklaus' 32nd victory on the American tour. The $33,000 first-place cheque boosted his earnings to over $102,000 in only seven starts and put him just behind Palmer on the money-winning list.

George Knudson of Toronto, winner of last year's Robinson (III.) Open, had two rounds of 76 but still finished in a two-way tie for 11th place with Miller Barber at 293, earning $5,700.

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Soviet weightlifter Valery Yakubovsky set world records for the heavyweight press and total lift at a tournament here Sunday.

Yakubovsky's total lift of 1,125 pounds was 5½ pounds better than the previous record, also set by Talts.
